CONTRACTOR SAYS MAN ASKED $20,000 'CUT' PLASTER WORK

C. Hardy, Testifying for the Prosecution in PWA Fraud Trial, Demands Irving Lee Made Demand on Him.

BOOK IN A PARTNER TO LAND CONTRACT

Was Told Louis Tacker Could Get Auditorium Arena Award, But G. F. Robertson Jr. Finally Did the Work.

Testimony that Irving Lee, one of the labor union representatives charged with conspiracy to defraud the Government through excessive charges on PWA contracts, demanding $20,000 of the price to be paid for plastering the arena section of the Municipal Auditorium was giving today in United States District court, where the four labor union representatives and five plastering contractors charged with the conspiracy are on trial.

The witness was O. C. Hardy, who was president of the Plastering Contractors' Association until disbanded in January, 1935, when the Contracting Plasterers' Association had become dominant in the city.

Other defendants present when Lee demanded the $20,000, Vincent Lee, business agent of the Contracting Plasterers' Association; William Anderson, business agent of the plasterers' union, of which Irving Lee was a member; and Harry Hagen, business agent of the lathers' union. With Hardy were the late Louis Tacker, a plastering contractor who was expected to get the auditorium job, and William Lee, who was associated with Tacker.

Hardy Didn't Get the Job.

Before this meeting, Hardy said, he had been in business under his own name, but Irving Lee had told him to associate himself with Tacker, telling him that Tacker would get the auditorium job. Hardy did make Tacker his partner, but the work went ultimately to George F.
Robertson Jr., one of the contractor defendants, and last October Tacker shot and killed himself. He had been a witness before the grand jury which indicted the defendants.

"We want $20,000 if you do the auditorium job, and we want $5000 on the line," Hardy quoted Irving Lee as saying at the meeting.

Tacker, he said, replied that he did not have the money, and would not pay it.

"Well, there is nothing more to be said," the witness quoted Irving Lee as saying.

He told of a later meeting, in April, 1935, in the Saddle & Spur book shop on Washington avenue, where the same group was present.
Irving Lee told them then, Hardy said: "If you want to stay in business, you'll have to pay us $1000 on the May-Stern job, 10 per cent on the Missouri Mule, and up to 15 per cent on your other jobs."

Agreement to Make Payments.

Hardy testified he and Tacker agreed to these payments and William Anderson told Tacker's associate, William Lee, that to show how fair he wanted to be the Tacker firm could make a list of 30 union workmen it wanted to employ, and he would see that the list got them.

There had been earlier testimony that plastering contractors who did not go along with the Contracting Plasterers' Association could only "wooden-legged" plasterers assigned by the business agent of the plasterers' union to work for them.

ROOSEVELT IN NEW ORLEANS FOR GULF FISHING CRUISE

Stops at Jefferson Davis Home on Tour; Son and Gov. Leche
Join Party.

By the Associated Press.
NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—President Roosevelt and his party arrived in New Orleans at 12:28 p. m.
today to board a destroyer for a fishing cruise in the Gulf.

Elliott Roosevelt, the President's third son, and Gov. Richard W.
Leche of Louisiana, who had recovered from an illness that sent him to a hospital yesterday, joined the presidential party at Gulfport, Miss., where the President re-boarded his special train, which he

The President waved his light tan felt hat to the crowds lining the streets in Gulfport. He arrived at the depot heavily laden with bouquets of magnolias. He made a brief address from the rear platform of his train.

Earlier, at "Beauvoir," where Jefferson Davis spent his last days, the President's automobile stopped before the steps of the old white frame dwelling crowded with spectators and a scattering of Confederate veterans, holding American and Confederate flags. Miss June Braun, daughter of Biloxi's Mayor, stepped forward and presented the President a gavel made from a cedar tree that grew on the Davis estate.

KANSAS OIL MAN'S ESTATE HELD DEFICIENT IN TAXES

Federal Board Demands $380,000
From Executor for James E.
O'Neill's Holdings.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The Board of Tax Appeals ruled yesterday the National City Bank of New York was $218,973 and $111, 910 deficient in 1922 and 1923 income taxes, respectively as executor of the estate of James E. O'Neill, former president of the Prairie Oil & Gas Co. of Kansas.

The board held collection of the deficiencies was not barred by the statute of limitations because O'Neill filed returns for 1922 and 1923
"which were fraudulent and made with intent to evade taxes" by omitting income of $441,000 for 1922 and $286,000 for 1923 received by him as distributions of profits from the United States by the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada.

MAYOR'S SECRETARY OWES $360 BACK TAXES

Raymond Tucker, in Arrears 3
Years, 16th City Official Found Delinquent.

Raymond R. Tucker, secretary to Mayor Dickmann, owes $360.84 in back taxes on his home and personal property for the last three years, it was found today in a renewed inquiry in tax delinquency among city officials.

He was the sixteenth official refounded to have been delinquent.
His taxes were levied in the name of himself and his wife, Mrs. Edith L. Tucker, at their home, 6451 Vermont avenue. The bills were divided as follows: 1936, $108.67 realty and $8.31 personal; 1935, $114.38
realty and $9.70 personal; 1934,
$115.68 realty and $4.11 personal.

Tucker, whose salary is $6000 a year, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter he would pay the bill tomorrow.

It also was learned today that Arthur R. Ross, associate to the president of the Board of Public Service, and his wife, Mrs. Katherine J. Ross, owe $243.81 taxes for last year. This includes $221.37 on their home, 5365 Cabanne avenue.
He said to a reporter that he hoped to pay the bill soon.

Three officials squared their tax accounts with the city yesterday.
Their payments, all for 1936, were:
Alderman Leroy E. Couplin of the Twenty-sixth Ward, $11.91; Director of Public Welfare Joseph M.
Darst, $5.54, and Supply Commissioner Victor P. Roach, $4.71.

The largest debt for back taxes was found yesterday to be against Deputy Comptroller Charles L. Cunningham, who owes $362.02 in real estate and personal taxes for the last four years. As it happens, Cunningham is the chief assistant of Comptroller Louis Nolte, whose duty it is, under the law, to refuse to draw salary warrants for city officials owing back taxes.

However, Nolte said to reporters that he did not believe he would have to withhold Cunningham's salary, as he felt sure his aid would pay the tax bill before Saturday, the first of the month.

He did not know that Cunningham was behind in tax payments until the fact was published, Nolte declared. The Comptroller directed Cunningham today to notify the other officials still owing taxes that their May 1 salaries would be allowed but that the May 15 salaries would be withheld unless they settled their tax accounts.

Another official who cleared up a back debt to the city yesterday was James E. Darst, manager of the Municipal Auditorium and Joseph E. Darst, who sent a check for $30.14 to the Department of Public Utilities, representing the cost of repairing damage to a light standard, caused last Aug. 5 when his automobile ran over the curb and crashed into a tavern at 6435 Chip-ewa street. Nolte had announced recently he would withhold further salary payments to Darst until the bill was paid. James E. Darst also owes $15.79 in back taxes for 1936.

STATE'S ATTORNEY OF HARLAN COUNTY ON MINE PAYROLLS

Kentucky Prosecutor Tells Senators of His Dual Capacity in Area of Mine Terrorism.

QUESTIONED ABOUT MANY DISMISSALS

Asserts He Has Prosecuted Deputies — Reports of Union Workers Being Fired.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—How the law is enforced in "Bloody Harlan" county, Kentucky, was further illuminated by the La Follette Committee today, when Daniel Boone Smith, the prosecuting official, admitted on the witness stand that he is on the payroll of three coal companies which have waged a bitter fight against the United Mine Workers' Union.

It had already been shown that High Sheriff Theodore R. Middleton is a partner of the operators in several profitable business enterprises, and that a vast majority of his army of deputies receive their pay from the operators.

Much of the bloodshed which has contributed to Harlan County's forfeiture reputation has resulted from deputies' efforts to prevent the unionizing of the coal miners.
Murder, kidnapping, beating, arson, dynamiting and other forms of terrorism have marked the progress of this recent warfare.

The La Follette committee today was considering a telegram received yesterday afternoon from U.
M. W. A. officials in Kentucky stating that Lloyd Clouse, an organizer, was murdered in Harlan County Saturday night and that scores of miners are being discharged for joining the union. Pearl Basham, one of the operators accused in the telegram of firing union miners, was in the committee room today.

Commonwealth Attorney.
Smith, a dark, affable, athletic, smartly dressed man about 32 years old, explained his duties as commonwealth attorney for the judicial circuit embracing Harlan and Bell counties, and told the committee he had handled 4500 cases in the last three years.

While serving as commonwealth attorney, he testified under questioning, he has also been on regular monthly retainers from three coal companies — Harlan-Wallins, Mary-Helen and R. C. Tway — all three of which have been involved in numerous labor disputes.

"Do you feel there has been any conflict between your duty as prosecutor and your obligation to your private clients?" Chairman La Follette asked.

"When I accepted these retainers," Smith said, "I told the operators that, if any conflict arose, I would be the public prosecutor first and their attorney second. I have religiously tried to observe that rule."

Chairman's Observation.
"From the evidence before this committee, it seems quite obvious that there was a very sharp conflict of interest between the miners on one hand and the operators on the other, and that these interests were involved in some of these criminal prosecutions," the chairman observed.

"If that is true, I'm not aware of it," the youthful prosecutor insisted. "I might add that, since I have been commonwealth attorney, I have prosecuted not less than 25 deputy sheriffs, and have convicted many of them."

In defense of his course, he pointed out that he had prosecuted and convicted Chris Patterson for dynam-iting the home of Lawrence Dwyer, 72-year-old union organizer, a crime which witnesses have attributed to the instigation of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association. Smith emphasized that all three of the companies represented by him were members of the association.

"I am completely independent of those coal companies," he said.
"They have not influenced my official conduct in any way."

He receives $100 a month from Harlan-Wallins, $50 from R. C.
Tway, and $25 from Mary-Helen.
He handles individual cases for other operators, he said, and bills them accordingly. His official salary is $500 a year, and the law permits him up to $3500 a year from fines.

STRIKERS VACATE EMERSON PLANT AFTER 53 DAYS

150 March Out Shortly Before Court Calls Injunction Suit, Which Is Continued.

MOVE 'IN INTEREST OF PUBLIC PEACE'

Picketing Resumed After Stay-ins Leave — Labor Board Files Complaint Against Company.

The 53-day stay-in strike at the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. ended at 9:44 o'clock this morning when 150 men, who had been in absolute control of the plant at 2018 Washington avenue all that time, voluntarily evacuated the premises. The strike was the second longest stay-in demonstration of record in the United States, falling seven days short of the record.

Evacuation was at the request of the recently formed CIO Council, which advised the action "in the interest of public peace," and occurred 16 minutes before a scheduled hearing of a company injunction suit to oust the strikers and prohibit picketing.

The injunction hearing was laid over until next Thursday by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood, who remarked, when informed by counsel that the strikers had left the plant, that in his opinion sit-down strikes were illegal.

Picketing of the plant was continued by other members of Local Union 1102, United Electrical & Radio Workers of America, representing the 2000 Emerson strikers.

The National Labor Relations
Board, through its regional director, Leonard C. Bajork, made public today a complaint issued against the Emerson Co. under the Wagner Act charging the company with unfair labor practices by (1) interfering with the right of employees to organize, (2) fostering and giving financial aid to a company union,
(3) refusing to bargain collectively with representatives of a majority of employees. A hearing was set for May 6 at the Federal Building.

Decision to give up the position in the plant was approved by the executive committee of Local 1102, which considered the stay-in demonstration as only one phase of the strike called March 8 for recognition of the union as sole agency for collective bargaining, higher wages and better conditions. The company offered full recognition to the union and promised that wages and other demands would be negotiated within a month, but the strikers last Thursday rejected the proposal because the wage offer was indefinite.

From the time of their rejection of the company proposal until last night, when the company withdrew recognition of the union as sole agency for collective bargaining, the stay-in strikers occupied the unique position of holding company property to enforce compliance with wage demands. William Bentner, C. I. O. organizer in charge of the strike, justified the strikers' stand on the ground that the company had failed to keep promises to its employees in the past.

Company Issues Statement.
Joseph Newman, president of the Emerson company, gave out this statement at noon: "We appreciate the decision of our employees, resulting in their peaceful evacuation of our plant, which is in the Emerson tradition, and it is our sincere hope that the negotiations now in progress will result in a speedy and mutually satisfactory settlement of the matters under consideration."

The stay-in strikers, who had been fed from a union commissary, postponed breakfast this morning, but continued their self-imposed duties and guard details until just before they left the plant. At their final assembly they were led in prayer by Frank Schleiman, their leader, who thanked them for their excellent discipline and high morale.
Lining up inside the factory the men walked out in march formation led by Schleiman, Bentner and Walter Pirtle, the only one of the 150 men who had allowed his beard to grow. There were cheers from a crowd of 450 fellow strikers and relatives, who lined the sidewalk across the street. After posing for photographers the strikers marched west in Washington avenue to Twenty-first street, carrying bundles of clothing, cots, mattresses and other personal effects. Several groups had piled their possessions on iron cots, which they carried.

BRITAIN TO GIVE REFUGE TO SOME CHILD REFUGEES

Limited Number to Be Taken Care of, Provided They Do Not Become Public Charges.

NAVY'S ASSISTANCE NOT YET CERTAIN

England and France Expected to Aid if Gen.
Franco Makes Promise of Protection.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 29.—Home Secretary Sir John Simon announced today that Great Britain would offer a refuge to "a limited number" of the children now besieged in Bilbao, Spain.

Also, both British and French authorities indicated naval aid in the evacuation of 300,000 refugees from the besieged Basque capital awaited a promise from the insurgent General, Francisco Franco, that he would not molest such an undertaking.

Sir John wrote to Wilfred Roberts, one of several parliamentarians who are seeking to aid in the evacuation. He said a number of children from Bilbao might be brought into England under the auspices of the National Joint Committee for Spanish Relief. He stipulated they must not become a charge on public funds, that eventually they must be repatriated and that health precautions must be taken.

Bald on Civilians Assailed.
Viscount Cecil, in the House of Lords, bitterly assailed insurgent bombings of Basque civilians and declared "there is nothing of this kind in the history of civilized nations." If German pilots were responsible, he cried, Berlin should call them. (Germany has denied this.)

In Paris, Foreign Minister Yvon
Delbos told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies that a Franco pledge of nonmolestation was sought for the evacuation.

France, Delbos said, is ready to lend warships for the refugees, but the British felt it was necessary to diminish the chances that the warships would have to take action by getting some sort of a truce before evacuating the first lot of 15,000 non-combatants from Bilbao.

True negotiations, he hinted, are being carried on now between France and the Basques. Once this is accomplished, the French and British fleets will act to help the refugees.

Further British Comment.
British spokesmen said "The Government is always ready to assist any humanitarian endeavor," but emphasized it first was necessary for the Basques to agree on evacuation.

The spokesmen said declarations by some parliamentarians that the Foreign Office had given approval for immediate evacuation with the protection of British warships apparently were based on a misunderstanding, but they left the way open for ultimate Government assistance.

A member of the National Joint Committee for Spanish Relief, with which the Parliamentary group allied itself, was flying to Bilbao to arrange first for removal of 100, 000 children to temporary homes in Great Britain, France, Scandinavia and other countries.

Seeks Aid of War Vessels.
Roberts, Liberal member of the House of Commons, said he planned to confer immediately with naval officials on the means by which the British Government would assist.

Referring to "the ghastly possibilities" if the air raid, which killed 800 Spaniards in Guernica, should be repeated at Bilbao, Roberts said:
"We hope to start evacuation of women and children from Bilbao to Saint Jean de Luz (France) as soon as the necessary organization there is ready—probably within two or three days."

British warships have remained three miles offshore in escorting foodships to blockade Bilbao. The

BASQUES' PRESIDENT CALLS ON WORLD POWERS TO SHELTER CIVILIANS

By the Associated Press.
BILBAO, Spain, April 29.—
RESIDENT JUAN AN-TONIO AGUIRRE of the Basque Republic today asked world Powers to relieve Bilbao of much of its refugee-swollen population, now 400,000, about twice normal.

The cabinet met to plan the evacuation of 300,000 non-combatants, women and children.
But for the men of the Basque country, Aguirre declared, "we ask nothing."

He repeated protests against insurgent destruction of Basque towns and called on foreign diplomats and governments to witness his charges of "the ravens-ous bombardment" of the civil population of Guernica.

The appeal was intended to leave the Basque men unhindered in their defense of Bilbao.
All political parties agreed to abandon their May day holiday and intensify work for the national defense.

FLEET GETS ORDERS FOR MAJOR SEA ACTION

Two Divisions Formed From 139 Ships for Test of Battle Fitness, Strategy.

By the Associated Press.
ABOARD U. S. S. PENNSY-LVANIA OFF HONOLULU, April 29.—The United States fleet received orders last night for the major action of its six weeks' manuevers in the mid-Pacific.

The 139 war craft, with 474 airplanes, were split by operation orders into two fleets—black and white.

At dawn today, the craft were ordered to be under way for their rendezvous. In Lahaina Harbor, off Maui Island of the Hawaiian group, there will be seven battleships, 11 heavy cruisers and aircraft carriers.

At Hilo, 120 miles southeast on Hawaii Island, will be two battleships and three heavy cruisers.
Pearl Harbor, to the northwest, will be station for 19 submarines, 43 destroyers and aircraft patrol divisions, with light cruisers.

Far to the north, in Aleutian Island areas of Alaska, there is an independent force of one battleship, two light cruisers and four new destroyers.

At a secret rendezvous in the next week or so, two great opposing fleets will be concentrated. The black will be commanded by Admiral Claude C. Bloch, aboard the battleship California. Vice-Admiral William T. Tarrant, commanding the white, will be aboard the heavy cruiser Indianapolis.

The action involved is a crucial test of results of training, battle fitness and the tactical, strategical ability of officers.

The white fleet, defending the Hawaiian Islands, is superior in land-based aircraft. The black is superior in battle line and fleet-based aircraft squadrons.

The major action is expected to be completed in two weeks.

ASHURST CLAIMS 50 SENATE VOTES FOR COURT PLAN

Measure Will Pass "This Year or Next," He Says After Three Senators Join Opposition.

'SUPPLEMENTARY' IDEA OF NORRIS

Urges Two-Thirds of Supreme Court Be Required to Invalidate Federal Legislation.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, April 29.—Chairman Ashurst (Dem.), Arizona, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said today that there were 50 votes in the Senate for the Roosevelt Court scheme and that it would pass this year or next. Fifty is only one more than a bare majority of the 96 votes.

On the other hand, opponents expressed confidence that they had the whip hand in the Judiciary Committee and in the Senate itself. The announcement that Senators McCarran (Dem.), Nevada, Hatch (Dem.), New Mexico and O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, would oppose the Roosevelt bill caused the opponents to count a clear majority in the committee.

The lineup of the Judiciary Committee on the bill is 10 against, six in favor and two uncommitted, but leaning toward the measure. In discussing the possibility of a vote next year, Ashurst said he did not mean to forecast that the decision would be delayed until then, but merely intended to say that the bill eventually would pass. "I think we will vote this year," Ashurst said. "I don't believe there is any intention on the part of opponents to filibuster. We'll get a vote after about two months' debate."

Norris' Supplementary Bill. The committee chairman spoke his views on the prospects for the legislation after another executive meeting of the committee to discuss the bill and proposals to alter it. The entire session was occupied today, committee members said, with a discussion of a motion by Senator Norris, Nebraska, to add to the presidential bill an amendment to require more than two-thirds votes by the Supreme Court to invalidate Federal legislation. The Norris amendment, which would not apply to State statutes, would require a two-thirds vote in the present court to overrule acts of Congress, or 11 to 4 decision with a 15-man court.

Norris offered the amendment as a supplement to the White House bill rather than as a substitute for it. He said he had a "tentative audience in the committee" as he explained the proposal, but would make no forecast of the line-up. Ashurst announced, however, that he was opposed to the Norris plan or "anything else to take away judicial power from the court."

37 Senators Against Bill. Private checks of the close Senate lineup were made inconclusive as before, because of the number of Senators unwilling to talk publicly about how they would vote. The number of publicly committed opponents was 37, seven more than was counted openly for the bill. Senator O'Mahoney indicated in a statement today some of the alternatives that he might support. He said he was in sympathy with the President's purpose "to put an end to judicial usurpation of the legislative power," but that his bill would "not accomplish any of the objectives for which it was offered."

The only way to infuse young blood into the judiciary is by constitutional amendment compelling retirement at a given age," O'Mahoney said. "The only way to prevent divided decisions is by constitutional amendment, or, if Senator Norris is correct, by statute requiring the concurrence of more than a majority of the members of the court to declare a law unconstitutional."

"The only way to keep the court in tune with popular opinion is by constitutional amendment to do away with life tenure and fix definite terms."

McCarran Explains Stand. McCarran, who has proposed an amendment to permit an increase of two in the size of the court, disclosed his position yesterday when the committee turned to a discussion of proposed amendments. "I took the position," he said later in his office, "that the Supreme Court should be an independent part of the Government. It stands and was intended to stand as an independent arbiter between the people and their Government."

"If that court which is the final arbiter in all matters involving the rights of the people can be remodelled to suit the will of any other department of the Government, then it would mean that this court, which should in all things be a stable branch of the Government, will be moulded to suit the will of every changing Government."

36-HOUR WEEK TO CIO UNION

Agreement Signed With Rubber Workers Also Provides for Time and Half for Over 40 Hours.

By the Associated Press. AKRON, O., April 29.—The United Rubber Workers of America signed their first contract with a major rubber company late yesterday ending a two months' strike at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

The contract provides for a standard 36-hour week with time and a half for over 40 hours. It grants collective bargaining with the union "for such of the employees who desire." It was agreed that before any layoffs are made working hours shall be reduced to 24 hours a week for eight consecutive weeks.

The agreement is the first in major industries for a standard 36-hour week and emergency 24-hour week. Two other major rubber companies, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and the B. F. Goodrich Co., announced the discontinuance of financial aid for employee organizations.

Other Points in Agreement. Principal points in the Firestone agreement include: The union agreed not to cause or tolerate any sit-down or stay-in-strikes or other stoppage of work. The company pledges not to finance any labor group or organization.

The union pledges not to coerce or intimidate any employees or solicit memberships on company time or property. The agreement provides further: Re-employment without discrimination, negotiation of wages if industrial conditions warrant, scale of paid vacations, definite seniority system, service records for any laid off. The agreement is to run until April 28, 1938.

L. S. Buckmaster, local union president, called a general meeting for 10 a. m. Friday for a vote on ratification of the agreement. The union is affiliated with the Committee for Industrial Organization. The agreement specifies that operations are to be resumed as soon as possible after ratification. Terms of the agreement regarding recognition read: "The company agrees to bargain collectively with the union through its accredited representatives and to meet with such representatives to handle and adjust grievances for such of the employees who desire their services."

"The company will not aid, promote or finance any labor group or organization which purports to engage in collective bargaining." United States Rubber Co. Affiliate Gives Up Employee Council. DETROIT, Mich., April 29.—Union leaders announced today that the United States Rubber Products, Inc., is discontinuing a "factory council" of employees.

Robert Hill, president of Local No. 101, United Rubber Workers of America, an affiliate of the Committee for Industrial Organization, said the council had posted notices on bulletin boards of the discontinuance of the employee representation plan.

Union officers recently said charges of fostering a company union had been filed with the National Labor Relations Board against the firm. The corporation, which makes automobile tires, is a subsidiary of the United States Rubber Co.

He said Smith retorted: "I'll have you indicted tomorrow for carrying concealed weapons, and send you to the pen for 10 years."

Smith, sitting about five feet from Dwyer, winced at the testimony, then laughed, and whispered something to Sheriff Middleton.

Recalled to the stand, Smith partially corroborated Dwyer's story of the barber shop encounter, saying he told the organizer, "You're going to face a jury, and you better be ready for trial."

Smith, it developed, was another Harlan County official who campaigned as a "friend of the coal miners." He had defended miners charged with murder after the so-called "Battle of Everts," in which three miners and one deputy were killed in 1931.

After union organizers were gassed in the New Harlan Hotel in January, a committee agent, armed with the serial numbers of gas grenades purchased by Sheriff Middleton, called on him and asked to examine the used shells taken from the hotel. He refused the request, saying the serial numbers had been obliterated. One of Edgar Hoover's agents testified today that he exploded a similar grenade yesterday, and demonstrated that the numbers were not defaced. The Sheriff contended that his grenades were all used up in "demonstrations."

The hearing has turned up some characters, but few strangers than William Johnson, a tanned, sullen man of about 45 years old, with a cowl and a high drawl, who came on the stand this afternoon. "By what name are you called?" La Follette asked. "I been called a lot of things," Johnson replied. "Do you have a nickname?" "Well, they call me Thug Johnson," he said. "You're called that?" "I understood it to mean I was a thug—that's why I answered to it."

"Have you ever been convicted of a crime?" "Yes, sir, I was indicted for murder in Wise County, Virginia."

"Were you convicted?" "Yes, sir—No, sir—I ain't been convicted of it."

"Any others?" "I was convicted of murder twice in Wise County."

"Is that all?" "That's the only murders I was ever tried for."

Told to Fire Union Men. Johnson said he was a Baldwin-Felts detective prior to 1933, when Pearl Bassham brought him to Harlan County and gave him a job in the Harlan-Wallins mine. His instructions, he said, were "to fire every union man I found on the job."

He continued: "I worked with Jim Matt Johnson. Him and me went out together a-thuggin'."

"What do you mean?" La Follette asked. "He called me a thug, and I called him one. We done thuggin' work together—went out a-huntin' for union men and organizers."

"Did you find any?" "Well, I never killed nobody," the witness responded, and then added "in Harlan County."

Ben Unthank, Johnson singled out an organizer named Robert Ragland, and invited him behind the commissary for a drink, he said.

"What happened then?" "I give him a drink of whiskey, whupped him over the head with my pistol and arrested him for being drunk."

Testimony Given Late Yesterday at Hearing. William Turnblazer, leader of a unionization campaign in the Harlan area, gave the committee the version from his field workers, saying Clouse had been murdered by four mine guards near Verda, Ky., scene of much anti-union violence in recent years. Clouse was a union organizer.

The message said Clouse's brother, Jasper, had been "fired and beaten up" and that 23 men had been discharged at a Verda mine operated by Bassham.

Another Verda mine, where 120 of the 140 workers had joined the union, has closed, the telegram reported. It asserted other operators were discriminating against union members.

Denial by Operators. This was denied in Kentucky by the Harlan County Operators' Association, which said all mines were in full operation and that no men had been discharged.

Bassham recently told the committee he never had heard of the National Labor Relations Act until a few days ago and that for years he had been requiring his employees to sign an illegal "yellow dog contract," pledging themselves not to join a union.

(Charles Middleton, a Verda peace officer, was quoted in Kentucky dispatches as saying the killing of Clouse resulted from a private quarrel and not from union activities.)

Investigators said they were considering possible action against Sheriff Middleton accused of offering $2000 to a witness to keep him from testifying.

One of Middleton's former deputies, Hugh Taylor, said the Sheriff coerced him the money on April 2, but that it never was paid.

Letter From Judge. The name of Judge Gilbert was mentioned occasionally during the testimony and Chairman La Follette read an exchange of telegrams with the judge in which the latter at first said he would be present at yesterday's hearing, but later informed the committee "press of duties" would not permit it.

The committee heard from W. T. (Tom) Holmes, Harlan County mine superintendent, that he had been selected by Judge Gilbert to serve as a jury commissioner to replace Asaett M. Warren, the judge's first choice.

La Follette read a letter from Judge Gilbert to Warren which said:

"Since I had you called or about that time this Music boy was killed, which has brought on a condition that would cause it to be awfully hard on you to act as jury commissioner."

along the level, paved highway to Bilbao. The defense forces captured two flags, one of them Italian, took 17 Moorish prisoners and brought back three Italian soldiers who deserted to the Government forces.

Officials admitted, however, that the Basques were in retreat in other sectors where three columns of insurgent forces are converging in their march to Bilbao. Officers reported their troops were retiring in order, shortening and consolidating their lines.

The village of Amorebieta, 10 miles from Bilbao, was bombed by insurgent planes, but without heavy casualties. The insurgent air fleet appeared twice over the village and, after dropping bombs from a considerable altitude, dived to 100 feet and turned machine guns on the streets. Most of the residents had gained places of refuge.

Fall of Durango. The defense of Durango crumbled last night and opened the highway for an insurgent attack on Bilbao. The insurgents took the town in an assault against hastily improvised forts in churches and houses and against street barricades. It was termed "a great rout" in which many prisoners were taken from the Basque defenders.

The insurgents took the town in an assault against hastily improvised forts in churches and houses and against street barricades. It was termed "a great rout" in which many prisoners were taken from the Basque defenders.

The insurgents captured 14 villages yesterday, with the heights around Durango occupied after the capture of the city itself. Twenty-four cannons, 75 machine guns and 3000 rifles were seized at Durango, and the Basques left hundreds of dead there.

Yesterday's insurgent advance saw occupation of all Basque territory east of a line between Durango and Lequeitio, on the coast about 15 miles north of Durango. Gen. Mola's men finally broke into Durango at 7 p. m. when it was too dark to count the dead or prisoners accurately. Poor visibility because of a mist was the only thing that prevented the insurgents from occupying Guernica then.

The Basques' stand at Durango became in its final stages a street battle near the edge of the city. Many dead were left near the city walls. The decimated Basque force tried to flee into the hills west of the city but encircling insurgent lines trapped them. Civilians who had hidden in their cellars emerged with raised arms.

No Word of Church Force. There was no word of the fate of a Basque detachment that dragged artillery into the church of Santa Maria and turned its thick walls into a fort. Earlier the insurgents had been reported held back by the fire from the church.

Frontier observers expected the insurgent motorized forces would push down the Durango road coincident with the mass evacuation at Bilbao. The situation foreshadowed a bitter siege or a sudden capitulation.

Insurgent sources asserted the Basque Government had demanded more fighting planes from Valencia. These sources said Bilbao then.

BLAZE IN MADRID DURING SHELLING

MADRID, April 29.—Firemen and soldiers saved valuable munitions supplies from fire at a cavalry barracks today during a heavy insurgent artillery shelling which increased the death toll to 316 for the 18 days of successive bombardment.

Firemen from every division within the city were called to combat the flames which destroyed the barracks. Munitions and oil and gasoline supplies were taken out.

A great crowd gathered to watch, despite the danger from enemy shells. Several soldiers barely escaped being hit by falling debris as they led frightened horses to safety.

Police ordered an investigation to determine if the blaze was incendiary. The capital's restored Municipal Council leader, Rafael Henche de la Plata, made an inspection.

ington and east to Eighteenth, past the company offices at 1824 Washington, where the marchers boomed and shook their fists at the windows.

Turning south in Eighteenth the strikers passed the Century Electric Co., at Eighteenth and Pine, where their union is conducting a strike. They boomed Century workers, who appeared at windows, and were greeted by strike pickets gathered on the sidewalk. The parade ended on a vacant lot near the Emerson plant.

During the parade many of the strikers were greeted with remarks of "when did you get back" by relatives and friends, who took them home in automobiles. A banner carried at the head of the procession read: "We Picked a Winner—The CIO."

William C. Reidel, who was elected "Mayor of Emerson City" on April 6, municipal election day, told reporters that the stay-ins were opposed to ending the demonstration, but yielded to the advice of CIO leaders.

Keys Turned Over to Company. A committee of six strikers waited at the factory until 11 o'clock, when they formally turned over the keys to a group of company officers headed by Superintendent John Dry.

The superintendent shook hands with Oscar Debus, union president. The union committee accompanied the company officers on an inspection tour of the six floors and the basement of the plant. Dry, remarking that the inspection, which required about 50 minutes, was only preliminary, told reporters the factory appeared to be in satisfactory shape.

The strikers pointed out that delicate instruments among the equipment had been locked away and that the stay-ins had been prohibited from entering the superintendent's office. Foremen will enter the factory tomorrow for a careful inspection.

Clifford Wood, one of the strikers' committee, reminded Lewis T. Arnold, personnel manager, that the latter had promised to buy him beer, which had been denied the stay-ins, when the strikers evacuated the plant. Arnold took Wood to a restaurant across the street and was speedily joined by other strikers, who consumed $13 worth of beer at Arnold's expense.

Joseph Lennon, union attorney, accompanied the members of the CIO Council when the council's decision to evacuate the plant was read to the stay-in strikers early today. Members of the council were: John Doherty, Steel Workers' Organizing Committee; Thomas Morley, Gas & Coke By-Product Workers; Norman Smith, United Automobile Workers; and Max Michelson and Richard Brazier of the clothing workers.

In its formal complaint against the Emerson company, the National Labor Board states that since July 5, 1935, the company has been one of the 952 employer members of the National Metal Trades Association, having as its object establishment and defense of the open shop policy in plants of members throughout the country.

Coercive statements and threats have been made by the company and the means adopted to persuade, warn and advise employees to refrain from membership or assistance to the union, the board charges. As a result of this and alleged intimidation, the company is preventing employees from exercising their rights under Section 7 of the Wagner Act and thereby is engaging in unfair labor practices within the meaning of Section 8 of the act, the complaint continues.

The company has fostered, controlled and given financial and other assistance to the Emerson Employees' Association and in this way also has engaged in unfair labor practices, the board avers. This association, known as a company union, was dissolved by striking employees soon after they quit work. The complaint relates that a ma-

THREE CONVICTS KILLED, ONE SHOT IN PRISON BREAK

Guards at Moundsville, W. Va., Use Machine Guns on Fugitives Who Seize Penitentiary Truck.

By the Associated Press.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., April 28.—Three convicts were killed and another was seriously wounded today in an attempt to flee in a truck from the West Virginia penitentiary.

Guards, firing machine guns and rifles from the walls and prison yards, shot the men while 1800 other prisoners huddled in corners in the six-acre property.

Two of the men, Paul Richards, 20 years old, and Roy Altizer, 22, were killed instantly. The third, Harry Battle, a Negro, died of his wounds. Clifford Stewart, 20, is the convict wounded.

Capt. C. M. Stone, deputy warden, said the attempted prison break occurred in the early afternoon recreational hour while the 1800 convicts were in the prison yard.

"Two prisoners are dead. Four convicts hopped on a prison truck as it was leaving the yard, overpowered the trusty driver and drove the truck full speed out of the first gate."

"The driver lost control of the truck and wrecked it against a large scale near the outer gate."

Stone said the other prisoners made no attempt to escape in the excitement.

A guard on the wall that surrounds the six acres covered by the prison saw the capture of the truck and gave the alarm by opening fire.

Prison attaches said the four convicts after seizing the truck drove it through the wooden inner gate of the prison and leaped from the truck as it crashed into the scales near the outer gate.

Warden C. F. McClintic was in Parkersburg, W. Va., today, leaving Capt. Stone in charge.

The prison wall of Sandstone is 25 feet high and 10 feet wide at its base.

3 1/2 per cent would be given to workers whose base pay was under 50 cents an hour. Time and a half would be paid after 48 hours.

Sentner pointed out that a 5 per cent wage increase on a group top scale of 80 cents an hour amounted to three cents, while a 2 1/2 per cent increase on a scale of 40 cents an hour would be one cent. The union is demanding a 10-cent hourly increase, with a 50-cent hourly minimum and time and a half after 36 hours a week.

Five hundred strikers, meeting this afternoon in a vacant store across from the plant, unanimously rejected the wage offer, which Sentner told them was "too, too generous."

The organizers informed the men that negotiations would continue, and he asked the strikers to submit to their committee the names of any Emerson stockholders they knew. A meeting of company stockholders is to be held May 6.

The suit asked for orders enjoining the strikers from damaging plant machinery, remaining in the plant, conspiring to hinder persons desiring to work, intimidating employees or engaging in mass picketing. It also asked for an order against conspiracy to hinder the company in peaceful possession of its property.

The strike was called in the CIO drive to organize 12,000 employees of St. Louis electrical manufacturing plants. Two other strikes, at Century Electric Co. and Baldor Electric Co. have been declared since, and the union last night organized a joint strike committee to co-ordinate strike activities.

Wage Offer Rejected. The Emerson management late yesterday made a wage offer to the strikers, which was characterized by Sentner as "a slap in the face." At the same time the company withdrew recognition of the union as sole agency for collective bargaining, contending that recognition was a negotiable point.

Superintendent Dry, representing the company, said the management would deal with the union only for its membership, under the Wagner Act.

The company asked the strikers to return to work at their old pay rates for three months, to permit a clearance of existing manufacturing contracts, and offered a 5 per cent wage increase after three months. The increase to be computed on the top scale in each plant group. Five months after operations were resumed an additional treasury. Hagen indicated disgust when told the amount was but $20, Hardy testified.

The witness mentioned a later meeting at which, he said, the Lee brothers and Hagen berated him for "trying to send us to the penitentiary," and said Vincent Lee ended that discussion with the remark, "Never mind, he'll get it and get it good."

Hardy said his home now is in Schuyler, Neb.

Tells of Four Payments. William Lee, a cousin of Vincent and Irving Lee, testified that he made four payments to them representing the agreed 10 per cent they and their associates were to receive from small contracts obtained by the Tackser firm with which he was associated. He identified checks which he said the firm's bookkeeper made payable to him and which he cashed, making payments to his cousins in cash.

During the period from May to November, 1935, he said, he made two payments to Irving Lee on the street at Ninth and St. Charles streets, and on one occasion made payment to Vincent Lee and William Anderson at the same place.

In the fourth instance, he said, he was unable to find Irving Lee, he left the money with a clerk at Lee's "smoke shop."

Tells of Conference. During one of the numerous conferences with his cousins and their associates, William Lee testified, Irving remarked that he had heard an investigation of him was being made, remarking that "if I go to prison somebody will get hurt."

"If you're not careful, you'll get hurt yourself," the witness quoted Tackser as replying.

The Auditorium arena plastering job had been estimated at $125,000 by Tackser, William Lee said. He recalled that Tackser had added $10,000 to this figure, but said he made no further explanation.

After much argument over his own qualifications as an estimator, William Lee was permitted to give his own estimate of a fair price for the Auditorium arena job. He said his estimate was "around $90,000."

Following Hardy's testimony, Frank Orr, head of the Keystone Plastering Co., which was placed on the "unfair" list of the Contracting Plasterers' Association and was unable to get union workmen for its jobs, was called as the Government's third witness. He told of conferences, mentioned in earlier testimony, concerning consolidation of the two organizations of contractors.

At these meetings, Orr testified, Harry Niehaus, a defendant and president of the Contracting Plasterers' Association, refused to permit members of the other group to come into the association as a body, saying that some were undesirable. Orr said Niehaus refused to answer his questions concerning whether the Keystone company was "undesirable."

Orr said, in cross-examination that he had done no plastering work since 1935 when the Keystone company was placed on the "unfair" list and denied union workmen. He said placing the firm on the "unfair" list followed a hearing at which Hagen accused him of violating union rules by "failing to report jobs." Orr knew of no union rule, he said, which required contractors to report jobs.

Fred Campbell, Maplewood plasterer who served with Orr and Niehaus on a committee of members of the Plastering Contractors' Association in negotiations with the Contracting Plasterers' Association, gave testimony similar to theirs about the discussions at these meetings.

DISABLED STEAMSHIP AFIRE IN BRITISH COLUMBIA STRAIT

104 Passengers on Vessel; Coast Guard Patrol Boat on Way.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 29.—Coast Guard division headquarters picked up distress calls today from the steamship Cordova, reported afire with a broken steering gear in a storm in Hecate Strait, B. C. It carried 104 passengers.

The Coast Guard patrol boat 163,994 in Works Progress Administration funds for the improvement of the 57-acre Tilles Park, at Lay and Litching roads, St. Louis County, has been authorized, R. M. Bristol, city engineer for WPA projects, announces. The park is owned by the city.

The allocation will provide work for 163 men for six months and is expected to complete the improvement, at a total cost of $202,752. The principal work remaining includes landscaping and completion of tennis courts and other recreational facilities. Work began November, 1935.

Capt. G. J. Goetz, the master, reported a southeast gale and a rough sea. He gave his position as the center of the strait, which separates Graham Island from the provincial mainland, opposite the mouth of the Skeena River.

EX-AGENT SAYS BREWERY MADE LOANS TO BARS

Gene Schwartztrauber at Illinois Hearing Testifies A. T. Gast Advised Him to Make Advances.

Former President of Firm Denies Assertion — 16 East St. Louis Saloon Keepers Tell of Aid.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 29.—The Illinois Liquor Control Commission yesterday heard testimony that saloon proprietors in East St. Louis and nearby Illinois towns obtained loans for the purchase of fixtures from representatives of the Gast Brewery, Inc., of St. Louis, in violation of Illinois liquor control laws.

John Schmoll, former St. Louis Circuit Clerk, now trustee for the brewery which is seeking reorganization under the amended bankruptcy act, and A. T. Gast, former president of the brewery and still in its employ, said they had no knowledge that saloons were being subsidized.

The question as to whether the brewery should have its license revoked was under advisement. Sales Manager on Stand.

After most of the 16 saloon keepers subpoenaed with the brewery officials to appear before the commission had testified, telling of financial assistance provided by Gene Schwartztrauber, former sales manager of the Gast Brewery for the East St. Louis district, Chairman Arthur Smith called him into the stand.

Schwartztrauber said he had advanced from $25 to $250 to several saloon owners after being authorized to do so by Gast. In most cases, he said, the advances were made from proceeds of a soft-drink business which he said he and Gast operated as a side line.

Gast denied that he had any knowledge of loans made by the sales manager and said he did not think the profits from the soft-drink business were sufficient to provide funds for loans.

Saloon "Spending Money." Schmoll said the brewery's salesmen were provided with 70 cents for each barrel of beer sold for spending in the customer's saloon. He added that this was "common practice" and that some breweries allowed as much as $1.25 a barrel, at times rebating to the customer the difference between this amount and that actually spent in their places by salesmen.

Schwoll estimated that Gast Brewery salesmen received about $42,000 a year in such expense money. He expressed the opinion Schwartztrauber, who was discharged by the company, was motivated by a desire for revenge.

Woman Bar Owner's Story. Among the saloon keepers who testified was Mrs. Zula Vollmer of East St. Louis who said a fixture salesman took her to the Gast Brewery to arrange for fixtures. She said she obtained $160 worth of saloon furnishings, paying $50 cash to a brewery representative, and then asked Gast for a loan.

Mrs. Vollmer said she assigned insurance policies on the lives of her husband and 15-year-old daughter, as security for a loan of $100. Schwartztrauber, she testified, paid her the money.

The loan was made after she had arranged to obtain the fixtures and "pay off the debt at 50 cents a barrel to the brewery," she told the commission. Later, she said, the fixtures were repossessed although she was under the impression that the payments for beer were being applied on her debt. The insurance policies were returned to her, she added, and she obtained their cash value of $135.

"Someone at Brewery." Forrest E. Holton, 715 Veronica avenue, East St. Louis, told the commission he borrowed $83 from "someone at the brewery" and later paid the money to Schwartztrauber. The note, he said, was made out to "some labor organization."

Sam Preka, Fairmount saloon proprietor, told of giving Schwartztrauber a note for $510 for fixtures. Leo Plat, 310 North Fifty-fifth street, East St. Louis, produced a receipt showing he had paid $110 to the Gast Brewery for fixtures.

Fred Wallhauser came from Nameoki to testify that Schwartztrauber had made a $100 personal loan to him.

James Chlougos, proprietor of the Rainbow Tavern at East St. Louis, said he had received no financial assistance from the brewery or its representatives, but complained, as others had done, about the slot machine business. He said operators continually put them in and took them out, that they caused fights among customers and that they received only $2.50 to $5 a week from them.

Six-Down Idea Reaching Japan. PORTLAND, Ore., April 29.—Japan is "beginning to have sit-down strikes here and there, following the American fashion," said Sato, Japanese newspaper executive, in an interview here on the way east.

HANGED IN KITCHEN OF HOME IN GRANITE CITY

The body of Samuel Papp, 56-year-old steelworker, was found hanging by a clothesline from the door frame of a kitchen pantry in his home, 1919 Sherman avenue, Granite City. The four burners of the stove were turned on, unlighted, and windows and doors were tightly closed.

The body was discovered after a delivery driver, making a delivery, turned on the gas and called police. Officers said Papp's wife left him several days ago after a quarrel. They found their children, three of them, the other staying with Mrs. Papp.

NEUTRALITY BILL GETS QUICK HOUSE APPROVAL

But Johnson and Vandenberg in Senate Fight Power Given President

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The House, in a race with time, adopted today a compromise conference report on the Pittman-McReynolds "cash and carry" neutrality bill. The report went to the Senate, where leaders stood ready to jam it through before midnight.

But an immediate vote was delayed by vigorous opposition from Senators Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, and Johnson (Rep.), California. Vandenberg asserted that approval of the conference report, conferring on the President discretion to impose a "cash and carry" policy on American commerce with belligerents, would "invite us to declare war by executive decree."

Johnson declared that he believed the neutrality measure was adopted in "response to an emotional urge in this country."

"Such unlimited power as it seeks to confer on the President, I will not confer on any man," he added. "It would confer on the President the power to declare war, and I will not add that to the many powers he already has."

Vandenberg contended: "As the neutrality bill passed the Senate, it went to the extreme border of executive discretion which can be tolerated. As it comes back from the conference committee it has crossed that border."

Arrangements have been completed to rush the bill to President Roosevelt by airplane so he might sign it before the present neutrality law expires Saturday. The report was approved by a voice vote.

The compromise measure would add two major features to the temporary neutrality act, which expires Saturday:

1. A "cash and carry" system for trade with belligerents, under which the latter would be required to pay cash for purchases and the merchandise would be carried abroad in foreign ships only after title had passed from American ownership. The system would be in effect for two years only.

2. A section to bring warring factions in major civil conflicts within the scope of the American neutrality policy.

The bill would retain provisions of the existing law for mandatory embargoes on extension of credit and loans and on shipments of arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerents.

The principal disagreement between House and Senate was on the vital cash and carry plan. The Senate wanted it to go into operation automatically as soon as a war broke out. The House wanted to lodge some discretion with the President in putting the system into operation.

As worked out in conference, the measure would require the President to use the cash and carry system whenever he found that step necessary "to promote the security or preserve the peace of the United States or to protect the lives or commerce of citizens."

That trade with Canada, for instance, might not be destroyed unnecessarily in case the Dominion were allied with England in a war that offered no threat to American neutrality, the conferees agreed to give the President discretion.

The chief executive would be allowed to make any limitations and exceptions he might see fit in respect to "lakes, rivers and inland waters bordering on the United States, and as to transportation on or over lands bordering on the United States."

In addition, the bill would: Forbid American nationals to travel on ships of hostile nations, with the President given power to make exceptions.

Bar contributions to belligerent countries or factions except to relieve human suffering.

Give the President the power to stop the use of American ports as supply bases.

Let the President bar both submarines and armed merchant ships from American waters.

Provide a maximum penalty of a $10,000 fine and five years imprisonment for violation of the proposed law.

In the brief debate that preceded the report's adoption, Representative Fish of New York, ranking Republican on the Foreign Affairs Committee, said some of the provisions of the compromise were "idealistic" and "visionary."

'WILDCAT' TAXICAB OPERATOR FINED $250 ON 5 CHARGES

Eugene Hall, Negro, Accused of Resisting Arrest; Traffic Inspector Fired Shot at Him March 30.

Eugene Hall, 17-year-old Negro, arrested for driving a "wild-cat" taxicab March 30 after a traffic inspector fired a shot at him, was fined $250 by Police Judge James F. Nangle yesterday for resisting arrest and on four charges connected with illegal taxicab operation. William Woods, also a Negro, who was in the car with Hall, was fined $5 for resisting arrest.

PRISON TERM A MISTAKE; MAN REGAINS CITIZENSHIP

Marion (Ill.) Resident Served Six Months in Penitentiary Instead of in Jail.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, Ill., April 29.—Harold King, 31 years old, was restored to citizenship yesterday by City Judge John M. Reid who found King had been mistakenly sentenced to prison last year on a plea of guilty to a charge of assault.

King had served six months of his one to 14-year sentence when his attorney, George Carter, discovered the court records showed the charge against him had been reduced from assault with intent to murder to assault with a deadly weapon. This charge provides only a jail sentence.

Carter placed the record before Judge Reid and asked that it be reopened. Judge Reid agreed and King was returned. He was freed after a hearing yesterday. King was indicted after a fight with John Atherton, his wife's stepfather. King said he had struck Atherton with his fist.

Actor Jumps 200 Feet From Bridge.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—J. Byron Creamer, 33 years old, Allenhurst, N. J., was killed yesterday by a fall from the George Washington Bridge over the Hudson River near the New Jersey shore. His back was broken by the 200-foot fall. Creamer was listed on his automobile license as an actor. Friends said he had been depressed for several months following an automobile accident in Florida in which a girl was killed and he was severely injured.

BOY, 16, DEAD IN BED AFTER FALL ON STEPS

Death of Lewis Smith of Oak-land Apparently Due to Blood Clot, Says Doctor.

Lewis Smith, 16-year-old Kirkwood High School student, was found dead in bed at his home, 800 Westwood place, Oakland, this morning, when his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Smith, went to awaken him for school. Death was apparently due, a physician said, to a blood clot from effects of a fall last night when, visiting a schoolmate.

Last night, Lewis went to the home of a friend, Robert Christman, 107 Edwin avenue, Glendale, to obtain one of his school books, and to look at the model of an Indian bridge built for a Boy Scout exhibit at the Christmas home. When leaving, Lewis slipped and fell down a short flight of six steps in the Christmas home, but said he was not hurt and walked to his home about a quarter of a mile away.

After returning home, Lewis helped his mother dry the supper dishes and then studied until about 10 p. m., when he retired. He was cheerful and did not complain of any discomfort.

Dr. C. H. Leslie of Kirkwood, who was called to the Smith home this morning, gave the boy a heart stimulant and summoned an inhalator from the Kirkwood Fire Department but was unable to revive him. Lewis' father is sales manager of the Vitamax Mills, Inc., 3421 Chouteau avenue. Besides his parents, four brothers survive.

J. A. HARTZFIELD FOUND SHOT

Kansas City Republican Leader Had Been Moody Recently.

KANSAS CITY, April 29.—J. A. Hartzfeld, 60 years old, lawyer prominent in Republican and Jewish affairs, was found seriously wounded yesterday in a washroom of the building where his firm has offices. Hilary A. Bush, a junior member of the law firm found him unconscious, a bullet in his brain and a pistol with one exploded cartridge, nearby. Associates said Hartzfeld had been moody recently.

Hartzfeld was active in the 1936 presidential campaign, during which he issued a statement branding as a "malicious lie" what he called an effort to attribute anti-semitic leanings to Alf M. Landon, the Republican candidate.

STRIKE IN TWO-UNION INDIANA PLANT ENDED

Rex Co. Agrees Not to Discriminate Against Either Organization.

By the Associated Press.

CONNERSVILLE, Ind., April 29.—Thomas Hutson, State Labor Commissioner, announced last night a settlement of the strike at the Rex Manufacturing Co. He said the concern's 1400 employees would return to work today.

Hutson said all differences between two unions in the plant had been adjusted, and that the company had agreed there would be no discrimination against either organization.

Elmer Davis, United Automobile Workers' organizer, stated no charges would be filed with the National Labor Relations Board against the company, which manufactures electric refrigerators and automobile trailers.

UAWA pickets, who had been on duty since the calling of the strike, left their posts following Hutson's announcement. The UAWA called a strike at the plant late Tuesday, alleging discrimination and failure of company officers to confer with a grievance committee.

Hand-to-hand fighting, resulted when members of the Cabinet and Refrigerator Workers' Protective Association refused to join the strike and remained in the plant several hours. At least three persons suffered injuries which required medical attention.

The Rex company was closed in March by a four-day sit-down strike. Work was resumed after the concern granted pay increases, established a standard work week and recognized the UAWA as the bargaining agency for members of that union.

Davis had threatened to file charges with the N.L.R.B., alleging the firm had intimidated union members in violation of the Wagner Act.

TWO ALCOHOL TAX UNIT MEN ACCUSED OF JURY TAMPERING

Alleged to Have Had Conference With Head of Investigating Body.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 29.—E. C. Yellowley, district supervisor of the Government Alcohol Tax Unit, and L. E. Baker, unit investigator, were given until May 6 by United States District Judge James H. Wilkerson today to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for allegedly tampering with the Federal grand jury.

Judge Wilkerson's order was on a petition filed by United States District Attorney Michael L. Igoe alleging Yellowley and Baker held a private conference with the foreman of the April grand jury.

The prosecutor's petition was presented at the request of Judge Wilkerson and was based, Igoe said, on an affidavit of Sidney B. Eckstone, grand jury foreman.

Eckstone's affidavit recited, the District Attorney said, that Yellowley and Baker, knowing Eckstone was foreman of the Federal investigative body, held a private conference with him in a room of a downtown hotel on the night of April 21.

Both Yellowley and Baker, as well as other officials and agents of the alcohol tax unit, had been called before the jury. They had been subpoenaed as result of a controversy between Yellowley's office on one side and the District Attorney and Federal judges regarding conduct of the enforcement unit in handling revenue law violations.

LICENSE REVOKED; SALE TO MINOR ALLEGED

Al. Told of Drinking at Tavern, Saloon Keeper Loses Permit to Sell Beer. Issued to Dead Brother. The 3 per cent beer license of the Tavern, operated by Amelia

Luebbers at 2131 South Seventh street, was revoked by Excise Commissioner Lawrence McDaniel today on a charge of selling to a minor. A 16-year-old girl who is being held for the juvenile court on a delinquency charge, testified that she had several drinks of beer in the tavern. A license issued to Walter Barnett to operate a saloon at 3612

Finney avenue was revoked when it was learned that Barnett died last November and his brother, Ben Barnett, admitted he had been operating the place since on Walter's license. Ben Barnett shot and killed James Flynn, 5215 Cote Brilliante avenue, in the saloon April 11 when Flynn and two other men climbed over the bar to attack him. The 3 per cent beer license of Albert Lee Mason, proprietor of a tavern at 1227 South Jefferson avenue, was suspended for 10 days on a charge of selling whisky April 9. Charges against proprietors in two cases in which fights occurred in saloons, and in one in which customers engaged in a dice game, were dismissed when evidence showed the bartenders or proprietors were not responsible.

CIO MAY DAY RALLY ON MEMORIAL PLAZA

Protest Meeting Against "Interference by Injunction" Announced for Saturday.

A May day rally will be held Saturday at Thirteenth and Pine streets, on Memorial Plaza by St. Louis Joint Council, Committee for Industrial Organization. The national office of the CIO in Washington has been invited to send a speaker.

William Sentner, national organizer of the United Electrical & Radio Workers of America, announced that the rally would be made the occasion of protest against "interference by injunction, intimidation and company unionism."

Announcements of the plans for the rally stated that, while the affair is under CIO sponsorship, other unions, and fraternal organizations, were invited to participate. "A large representation," it was stated, "is expected from unions still in good standing with the American Federation of Labor, which in the early years of its history endorsed May first as a day of struggle for the working classes." This referred to the fact, related in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, that the A. F. of L. meeting in December, 1888, in Central Turner Hall, known as the "Crucible of Liberty," on Tenth street near Market, voted to hold on May 1, 1890, a mass demonstration for the eight-hour working day. This was taken up by the Socialist-Labor International in Paris in July, 1889, and May day was thus made, and has since been, an international labor holiday. In the United States, however, it has been supplanted by Labor day.

The sponsors of the demonstration here, in their announcement, cited a still earlier precedent for such an observance of May day. "On May 1, 1886," the CIO announcement said, "14,000 St. Louis workers assembled on the present site of City Hall to demand an 8-hour day. Since that time, May day has been a traditional labor holiday in St. Louis, and many unions have a provision in their contracts making that day one on which no work is to be done. This May 1 will mark the revival of the day as one for a city-wide labor demonstration."

Plans for the demonstration were made at a meeting last Saturday, attended by 17 delegates from 29 organizations, with an aggregate membership of 20,000. Band music and a display of banners are to be part of the observance.

44 Germans Lose Citizenship. BERLIN, April 29.—Forty-four Germans, including four women, were disfranchised yesterday by a decree depriving them of citizenship on the ground of "conduct inconsistent with the duty of loyalty to the Reich."

INQUEST IN DROWNING

OF MAN IN FISH POND

Investigation Ordered in Death of William Murray at County Tavern.

A coroner's inquest was ordered in the drowning of William Murray, 67 years old, a retired accountant, whose body was found in a fish pond at Busch's Grove, a tavern at Clayton and Price roads, Ladue, yesterday morning. Murray, a widower, residing recently at the Claymo Hotel, Clayton, was a brother-in-law of Henry Busch, one of the proprietors of the grove.

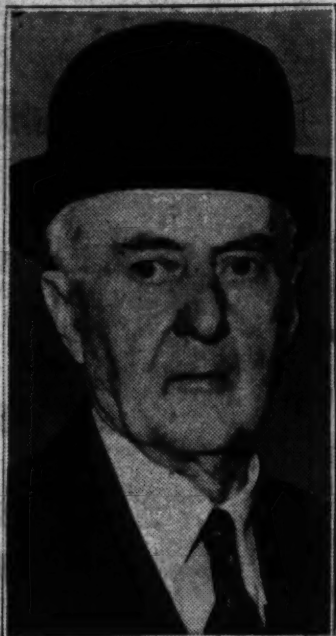

Mike Witte, an employee of the establishment, saw Murray fishing in the pond at 5 a. m. and at 7:30 a. m. found the body floating in the water. Murray's fishing pole was on the bank.

LUGGAGE WORKERS TO FILE CHARGES WITH LABOR BOARD

Chicago Union to Accuse 32 Concerns of Refusing to Bargain.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, April 29. — Joseph M. Jacobs, attorney for the general strike committee of 3000 Chicago luggage workers, said charges of unfair labor practices against 32 companies would be filed today with the National Labor Relations Board.

Jacobs said the firms would be charged with systematically interfering with the self organization activities of the workers and with definitely refusing to bargain collectively.

The luggage workers, members of the International Ladies' Handbag, Pocketbook and Novelty Workers' Union, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, called a general strike April 20 for a 30 per cent increase in wages, a 37½-hour week and union recognition. Edward McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor, arrived here from Washington last night to attempt arbitration of the dispute.

Measure Calls for State Board Which Would Name Probation Officers.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—Revision of the existing system of handling parole applications of inmates of State penal institutions and more adequate supervision of persons paroled is proposed in a measure reported out last night by the House Committee on Penitentiary and Reform Schools as a substitute for four House bills.

The committee substitute would establish a State Board of Probation and Paroles. This board would take over the duties of parole recommendations, now exercised by the State Penal Board, which has jurisdiction of the Penitentiary in Jefferson City, the intermediate reformatory at Alton, the boys' reformatory at Booneville and the Industrial Home for Girls at Chillicothe and Tipton.

Under the present system, the Penal Board, one member of which is designated as Parole Commissioner, makes recommendations to the Governor on applications for parole.

The parole power, vested in the Governor, is not changed by the proposed measure.

The substitute bill was drafted by Representative Suggitt L. Edwards of Audrain County, chairman of a subcommittee of the House Committee on Penitentiary and Reform Schools, which recently made an investigation of the present parole system.

The bill proposes a board of three members, one of whom would be the Lieutenant-Governor. The other two would be appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the Senate. The board members would receive salaries of $3000 a year, plus necessary expenses.

The proposed board would have the authority to investigate the cases of all persons confined in State penal institutions, make recommendations to the Governor as to paroles, pardons or commutations of sentence, establish rules and regulations as to eligibility of penal institution inmates for parole, prescribe conditions of parole and revocations, and make provision for the supervision of persons released on parole. The board would be empowered to appoint the necessary number of parole officers to supervise persons released on parole and to act as probation officers for the judicial circuits of the State. The bill requires the board to make reports to the Governor as to parole conditions and authorizes the Governor to make such orders as he may deem necessary concerning paroles and the probation system.

The bill would make privileged the records of the board and any information obtained by it in its investigations and provides this information shall not be admissible in evidence in any proceeding before any court, board, commission or other governmental department.

MAN KILLED; AUTO HITS ONE SAFE, TWO STRUCK OUT IN FANNING BEE

W. H. Fingerlin, 55, Kirkwood, Victim of Accident at Gravois and Utah.

William H. Fingerlin, 55 years old, a railroad switchman, 182 West Rose Hill avenue, Kirkwood, was killed early today when his automobile struck a concrete traffic signal base at Gravois and Utah street.

Charles Sheldon of Kirkwood, driving south in Gravois behind Fingerlin, told police the machine swerved suddenly as Fingerlin approached the standard at moderate speed. He said the light was burning and the concrete standard was illuminated by smaller white lights near its base.

Fingerlin died of a skull injury at St. Anthony's Hospital.

Cardinal Rooter Only One of Three Vagrants Arrested to Get Off.

A noisy argument over the respective chances of a pennant victory for the Cardinals and the New York Giants and a particularly boisterous exchange regarding the batting average of Joe Medwick, was the reason for the appearance in Police Court yesterday of three of St. Louis' better known vagrants.

The fans, whose names have been inscribed frequently by clerks of both police court divisions as Edward Brennan, John Cahill and Richard Fichlerman, were arrested Tuesday in an alley near Sarah and Easton avenues after persons residing in the neighborhood complained they could not hear the radio broadcast of the Cardinals' game because of the debate.

When police arrived all was quiet. The alley fans were taking their own seventh-inning stretch—prone beside empty pint bottles. They were booked, "drunk on the street."

Judge Edward M. Ruddy questioned the defendants at some length in view of his previous judicial acquaintance with them. Brennan correctly answered his questions about the Cardinals and discussed the merits of Medwick and Mize, contriving to bring out, by abruptly changing the subject, that he had not been sent to the workhouse for 3 1/2 years.

Cahill sang the praises of the Giants, Hubbell and Ott, and of himself who had been out of the workhouse for a whole quarter year. Fichlerman observed that he didn't much care who won the National League pennant, since he was a Yankee rooter, but he would like to have judicial cognizance taken of his record which was a year away from the South Broadway rock pile.

The box score as finally prepared by the court clerk showed: Brennan (Cards) $50 fine stayed on good behavior; Cahill (Giants) indeterminate sentence to the Workhouse for the season, not to exceed one year; Fichlerman (Yanks), $50 fine.

Judge Ruddy remarked that leniency shown Brennan was due to his better record rather than his loyalty to the home town team.

WINDSOR DISPLEASED OVER U. S. SALES OF CRITICAL BOOK

Says He Doesn't Mind References to Himself, but Objects to Mention of Mrs. Simpson.

By the Associated Press.
ST. WOLFGANG, Austria, April 28.—The Duke of Windsor showed displeasure last night when told that sales of "Coronation Commentary," the book dealing with his brief reign and abdication as Edward VIII, were mounting in the United States.

He has expressed keen interest in the American circulation of the book, on account of which his London solicitors filed an action Tuesday for alleged libel damages and an injunction against the author, Geoffrey Dennis, and the publisher, William Heinemann.

The Duke's attitude was said to be that he does not object to the references to himself (the book accused him of "muddling, fuddling and meddling") so much as to those to Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, his fiancée.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, April 28.—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson's divorce decree nisi from Ernest Alfrich Simpson will be made absolute Monday, a day earlier than had been expected. Then she will be free to wed. It was learned today the application will be heard by Justice Bucknill.

WABASH SHOP EMPLOYEES CHOOSE A. F. L. CRAFT UNIONS

One Exception as Blacksmiths Select an Independent Organization.

All shop employees of the Wabash Railroad, except blacksmiths, have chosen representation through craft unions of the American Federation of Labor, it was announced yesterday by the railroad. Results of shop elections, which began March 29 under the Railway Labor Act, have been certified by the National Mediation Board.

The blacksmiths, by a vote of 51 to 49, selected the Brotherhood of Railroad Shop Crafts of America, an independent organization, as their representative for collective bargaining. Other crafts voting were machinists, boiler makers, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, car men, power house employees and shop laborers.

U. S. Court Takes Missouri Appeal Under Adversement.

By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, April 28.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals took under advisement yesterday the appeal of the State of Missouri from a United States District Court decision holding the Federal courts instead of State courts had jurisdiction in an insurance case.

The State of Missouri instituted action in the State courts to force several fraternal beneficiary associations to pay a gross premium tax, contending they were "in fact old line insurance companies." Federal District Judge upheld a decision removing jurisdiction to the Federal courts. The State appealed.

SON OF CHIANG LEAVES RUSSIA; MAKES PEACE WITH FATHER

In Soviet Union He Had Been Considered Genuine Communist, Managed Factory Branch.

By the Associated Press.

NANKING, April 28.—Chiang Chin-ko, prodigal elder son of Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, after 12 years' residence in Soviet Russia has returned to China, it was disclosed today, and made peace with his father.

The younger Chiang took his Russian wife and their son and apparently has broken ties with the land of the Soviets, where he was considered a thorough Communist and where the press quoted him as "renouncing" his father.

These reports of estrangement between father and son were denied yesterday by persons close to the General.

Chiang Chin-ko returned to Shanghai about two weeks ago. He and his father met at Hangchow.

Chekian Province, and it is supposed they discussed the young man's future. After that the son went to Fenghua, in Chekiang, where he was born, to see his mother, the divorced wife of the General. The son and his family still are at Fenghua, where it was indicated they would remain indefinitely.

The General and his present American-educated wife, the former Soong Mei-ling, both are in Shanghai.

Young Chiang went to Russia as a student in 1925 and became an industrial engineer, employed as branch manager of a big Leningrad factory and apparently in high favor with the Soviet Government.

Contempt Jail Term Dropped.

Do you look for cleanliness?

For fifty years, strict insistence on cleanliness has been Pevely's dominant operating principle—the rigid rule for every employee. It is given expression in many ways—spotless plant, white-clad workers, glistening stainless steel pasteurization equipment. All machinery and pipes that come in contact with milk are taken apart and scalded with live steam several times each day. Every Pevely bottle is washed continuously for twenty minutes and sterilized. It is this policy that makes Pevely's plant a model of scrupulous sanitation. It is the same policy that now has given St. Louis its first sunlit, air-conditioned dairy. It is your assurance of cleanliness in milk and dairy products.

VARIETY WITH STRAWBERRIES

THE STRAWBERRY AND CREAM SEASON is with us again and in thousands of St. Louis homes added deliciousness is being given this old springtime favorite by using Pevely Cream—rich, full-bodied and distinctive in flavor.

And there are other ways of serving strawberries with other Pevely Products. Strawberries are luscious with Pevely Culture-Soured Cream and with the four Pevely Cheeses— Cottage, Creamed Cottage, Old Fashioned Cottage and that tasty new cheese creation—Pevely Quaker Cheese.

Here are two recipes that proved unusually good:

MERINGUE PUFF
6 egg whites
2 cups sugar
4 teaspoons lemon juice
4 teaspoons vinegar

Beat egg whites until stiff, then add sugar very slowly (a tablespoon at a time). Continue beating with Dover beater until mixture is so stiff beater will not work, then use wire whisk. Add lemon juice and vinegar. Mixture should be beaten at least half an hour. Cut white shell paper to fit cookie sheet, then place meringue on unbuttered paper in two piles. Bake in 300 degree oven about 1 hour and 15 minutes.

Several hours before serving, place the following filling between the layers:
1 1/2 cups Pevely Cream, whipped
2 cups strawberries
1 tablespoon sugar

Wash, hull and slice berries. Dredge with sugar and mix with whipped cream. Whip an additional 1/2 cup of cream and place on top of the puff after it has been put together. Place puff on round platter and garnish bottom with 1 quart washed and hulled strawberries and 1 pound of canned (or fresh) black cherries. Yield: 12 to 14 servings.

GRIDDLED STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE
16 slices of bread
3 tablespoons Pevely Butter
2 quarts strawberries
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 pint Pevely Double Cream, whipped
1/4 cup grated, unsweetened chocolate

Cut bread into rounds with 2 1/4-inch cookie cutter, and saute on both sides in the butter which has been melted in an iron skillet. Wash, hull and cut strawberries into fourths and dredge with sugar, add lemon juice and allow to stand several hours. When almost ready to serve, place half of the strawberries on 8 slices of the sauted bread, place remaining rounds on top of strawberries, then pour over remaining strawberries, cream and juice. Cover top with whipped cream, sprinkle each portion with grated chocolate, and run under low flame until chocolate begins to spread a little (about 2 minutes). Serve immediately. Yield: 8 servings.

IF YOU HAVE NOT RECEIVED MY recipes incorporating the use of strawberries, ask your Pevelyman for them or just phone Grand 4400.

American Bar Chairman Details Plan to Take Choice of Judges in Cities Out of Politics

J. P. Wood Advises Appointment by Governor, Followed After Period of Years, by Popular Vote or Retention.

Selection of able judges by direct election is almost impossible in metropolitan areas, John Perry Wood of Los Angeles, chairman of the Committee on Judicial Selection and Tenure of the American Bar Association, said in an address at the annual dinner of the Bar Association of St. Louis at the Coronado Hotel last night, in which he described the committee's plan of reform in selection of the judiciary.

The committee has recommended that judges of State courts of record be nominated by an independent group, comprising lawyers and laymen, then appointed by the Governor or some other State appointive officer. The plan would also provide that, after a period of service of four, six or possibly eight years, the appointee so selected should go before the people on his record and they would vote on his retention. If he were rejected, another appointee, nominated by the independent commission or board, would take his place.

Missouri Inquiry.

A committee of the St. Louis Bar Association, of which Ronald J. Foulis is chairman, is making a study of various plans of selecting judges, including the plan described by Wood, and is expected to make recommendations next fall. The Judicial Council of Missouri, appointed by the State Supreme Court, has recommended a return to nominating judges by conventions, the procedure in effect in Missouri before judges were nominated directly by the voters at primary elections.

Wood pointed out that, while in rural districts, direct election of judges had been fairly successful, because the voters, mostly of native birth, knew the candidates, in metropolitan areas the results had been "universally bad."

"In metropolitan districts," he said, "the invasion of politics is almost complete. That in such districts there are still good judges is in spite of the system, not because of it. In large cities, politics reaches its lowest level. Too often, those elected to the bench are the most competent exponents of ballyhoo. Indeed, the man able and disposed to render competent and even-handed justice is the least likely to possess the qualities of the successful political campaigner. At all events, we know that the elective system works badly in many instances. No system is sound that produces such results. I know little of the situation in Missouri. I do know, however, that in most large cities, democracy has utterly fallen down in the selection of judges."

Wants Bench Out of Politics.

"The power of the judiciary rests in the faith of the people in its integrity and intelligence; when confidence in the courts is gone, respect for the law itself will speedily disappear, and society will become the prey of fraud, crime and violence."

"With capable, high-minded judges, freed of pernicious political pressure, justice will be expeditious and accurate. With the other variety of judges, with judges mindful of the next election, justice will be poorly administered, whatever the system of laws may be."

As an example of the confusion resulting from direct election of judges, Wood cited Detroit, where in 1935 there were 308 candidates for 35 judicial offices, with the result that careful selection of competent judges was almost impossible, and those who were elected were chosen entirely on the basis of political activity.

In his own State, California, before the system of nominating judges by direct election was discarded, some of the judges devoted more than one-third of their time to politics, Wood said.

"There is one other consideration that must not be overlooked in considering judicial independence and efficiency," Wood asserted, "and that is that nothing is so subversive to orderly government as the burning resentment of men who, quite too frequently, go from our courts feeling that they have not had justice."

Frequently Only a Choice of Evils.

"Possibly the most discouraging result of the elective system has been that well-qualified lawyers now rarely will become candidates for election to judicial office; in consequence, the people in many instances have only a choice among evils. I happened to be a member of a committee of the Los Angeles Bar Association whose duty it was to prevail upon qualified lawyers to become candidates for the bench, against incumbents deemed unqualified. We were unable to get one man to stand for office. The reply in each instance was substantially the same: 'Why should I give up my practice, go on the bench, and then either have to play politics constantly or in six or 12 years be picked out by some politically wise fellow as an easy candidate to beat?'"

"To those who have given intelligent study to the subject, it has become increasingly clear that under the elective system, the courts in metropolitan areas are steadily deteriorating. Nor is the situation

7-Day Sit-Down Strike Ends.

By The Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., April 29.—The seven-day sit-down strike at the Valcan Corporation plant, manufacturers of shoe lasts and heels, ended yesterday. Strikers, acting in relays, had occupied the plant since March 9. The company yesterday passed out to its 300 employees bonus checks for about a week's pay. The bonus had been scheduled in March when the strike intervened. President C. M. Searl, who succeeded Col. A. L. Mercer as head of the corporation during the strike, announced that a one-year contract provided for union recognition, the 40-hour week and time and one-half pay for overtime.

BRIDE OF 14 SHOTS SELF AT ELSBERRY, MO.

Her Parents Disapproved of Her Elopement Marriage Friday to Youth, 20.

Mrs. Anna Cox Wallace, 14-year-old bride of a runaway marriage last Friday, shot herself in the left side of the chest yesterday afternoon in what apparently was a suicide attempt at her home in Elsberry, Mo., in Lincoln County, 25 miles northwest of St. Charles. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Charles, where her condition was said to be critical.

Her husband, Victor Wallace, 20, told a Post-Dispatch reporter this morning outside the door of her room at the hospital that her parents opposed the marriage so they eloped to Bowling Green at Friday. She gave her age as 19 then, and he had believed she was 19, he declared. When they returned to her home in Davis, Lincoln County, her father refused to approve of the marriage, Wallace said. They took rooms over a store in Elsberry, where both worked in a glove factory.

Yesterday morning she said she felt ill, so he went to work alone, Wallace said. When he returned in the afternoon, their landlady met him outside and told him she had heard a shot. He found his wife lying wounded and unconscious on the floor, a .25-caliber pistol in her right hand. She had had to pry open a locked bureau drawer with a knife to get the weapon, he said. He asserted he did not know why she did it.

Because of her condition, officials were not permitted to question her.

helped by the fact that interim vacancies and newly-created judicial offices are filled by unrestricted gubernatorial appointment. The whole situation points to the necessity of abandoning direct election and going to appointment with adequate safeguards. The stream of justice cannot, with safety to free institutions, be poisoned at its source.

Self-Starting Condition.

"I have no doubt that you of St. Louis have not come to the pass of those in most other metropolitan districts. You cannot, however, hope to avoid their fate; you cannot hope for a continuance of a court disposed and able courageously to render impartial justice in all cases, regardless who the litigants may be, unless you seek and find a way to choose your Judges, not subject to the infirmities of direct election.

"I understand that as a remedy the nomination of Judges at non-partisan conventions held for that purpose alone has been proposed. This undoubtedly will improve things. Nothing is much worse than the direct primary, where most candidates are self-starters and start in too many instances with an overweening ambition as the chief qualification.

"Can we be assured that politics will be eliminated by nomination by a non-partisan convention? Will not the Judges, themselves, to insure renomination, feel that they cannot wholly eschew politics? These considerations doubtless all of you have in mind."

Method in 14 States.

Wood then explained in detail the plan of appointment by a dual agency, as recommended by his committee in conjunction with the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association, providing for nomination of judges by an advisory board and appointment by the Governor. "The plan," he said, "had been formulated in 14 states—California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, New Mexico, Oregon, Ohio, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin.

Tenure of office subject to election at which electors vote to continue or retire the incumbent, but with no competing candidate, is advocated in 10 states. In Michigan, however, he pointed out, the bar is advocating both appointment and retirement by an independent agency, without any election.

Plan Wood Favors.

Wood favored this feature of the Michigan plan, pointing out that "under direct competitive election, the judge can only be removed by putting in his place another usually no better qualified."

"Those who oppose change," he said, "cry that the judge must be kept close to the people, to the end that the interest of the poor and defenseless shall be fresh in his mind and say that only by keeping judges elective can that be accomplished. If any desire a judge who, he believes, will be open to influence in his behalf, let him remember that the purchased rarely remains bought, and that he who will modify his judgment for any personal consideration will sell himself to the highest bidder. Will such be the poor and defenseless? Let no one think that he can have justice long from anyone who will judge him once for all."

MURDERED WITNESS' ESTATE

Albert Montlake's Safety Deposit Box Yields $10,000 in Gems.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Albert Montlake's safety deposit box yielded gems worth $10,000 and $2150 in cash yesterday but little in nature of a clue to his death.

Montlake, indicted in New York with Meyer Gordon, Loop jeweler, and Morris Penkoff for conspiracy to transport $21,000 worth of bonds stolen from a Racine (Wis.) bank by John Dillinger's bandit band, was shot and killed Monday night. He was to have been a Government witness. Gordon was released after questioning.

MEDAL VOTED TO G. M. COHAN

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The House voted yesterday to appropriate $700 for a gold medal for George M. Cohan, song writer and actor, despite "economy" objections of Republicans. The medal would honor Cohan for his work during the World War.

Representative Michener (Rep.), Michigan, declared he did not believe the author of "Over There," would accept the decoration in the "face of the President's economy plan."

Have you "knowing eyes"?

A "HIGH-BROW" FOREHEAD
Brows well-formed, highly arched, and of a refined silky texture. Thickly grown above the nose, but tapering thinly toward the wide-spaced temples. Base of forehead jutting forward at the center with two small mound-like crests.

"KNOWING EYES"
Eyes distinguished particularly by the lids, which are only partially drawn up... giving the eyes not only a shrewd, but a characteristically humorous and "knowing" twinkle. The eyes of this type are most frequently a calm, cool steel-gray, but slate-blue, green, and hazel colored eyes are by no means uncommon to the type.

If you have "knowing eyes" you don't have to look twice when you see Old Kentucky's "double-rich" straight Bourbon offered for sale. Just buy it!

RAY WOODS BACK HOME HIS DIVING DAYS OVER

Stunt Man Returns From San Francisco, but May Never Walk Again.

Ray Woods, professional high diver, who broke his back in a dive from the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge March 22, returned home today, ruefully admitting his diving days are over, but hopeful that he would recover the use of his legs, which physicians say is doubtful.

Accompanied by his wife, Bernice, and his mother, Mrs. Bessie M. Woods, who watched him make his last dive, Woods arrived at the Delmar station of the Wabash railway shortly before 8 o'clock. It was necessary to lift him through the window of the train to a stretcher, on which he was carried to an ambulance which took him to his home at 5630 Pershing avenue. The stretcher was carried up four flights of stairs to his apartment.

In the ambulance on his way home, Woods, smiling and cheerful, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he planned to rest at home for a while and later might enter De Paul Hospital, if an operation was necessary. He said that he doubted that his spinal cord was severed because he is able to move his once paralyzed hips, indicating that the nerve system is at least partly recovering from the injury suffered in the dive.

"I made that last dive the same way I made all the others," he said, "but the wind got me and I couldn't straighten out. I was swept under the bridge and landed in the water on the side opposite the one from which I had dived.

"One foolish thing I did was in making the dive when I'd already broken three vertebrae in another dive a short time before. But then I didn't know they were broken, just thought my back was sore. I've always had a strong back and I thought I would make out all right. And I was doing all right until the wind got hold of me."

After spending two weeks in the San Francisco General Hospital, Woods was moved to his apartment in San Francisco, from which he was taken Monday night to begin the trip home. He said that he suffered no discomfort on the long train ride. The City and County of San Francisco paid his traveling expenses.

Woods, a graduate of Soldan High School and a former A. A. U. diving champion, had been diving professionally for about 10 years. In May, 1933, he made his last bridge dive here, his second from Eads Bridge.

When Your Corns Are Nearly "Killing" You Take This Noted Foot Specialist's Advice

Dr. Scholl's New Triple-Action Zino-pads Prove A "Life-Saver" to Millions of Corn Sufferers

To cut a corn or burn it out with strong liquids, salves or plasters frequently produces infection and blood-poisoning. Neither method removes the cause—friction and pressure of the shoe.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads are safe. They are a complete triple-action corn treatment. When you buy Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads you get thin, soft, soothing, cushioning pads that relieve pain instantly by removing friction and pressure of the shoe, the cause of corns.

You also get Separate Medicated Corn Removing Disk which when used with Zino-pads quickly and safely loosen the corn so it lifts out. These Disks are included in each box. A Zino-pad alone placed over the tender spot prevents the corn from returning.

Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads are velvety-soft, waterproof—will not come off, get soggy in the bath, nor will they stick to the hose and ruin them. There are sizes for Corns, Callouses, Bunions and Soft Corns between the toes. Cost but a trifle. Sold everywhere. Get a package today to day at your favorite drug counter. Insist on genuine Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads and avoid disappointment.

Medicated disk removes corn. Pad prevents return.

The animation of permanent registration in the House of Representatives this week after it had lain dormant for more than two months has demonstrated with a clearness rarely seen the power of political bossism.When Boss Tom Pendergast remained silent and was believed to be opposed to permanent registration, bills for St. Louis and Kansas City were definitely shelved in the House Elections Committee.A week ago Pendergast announced that he wanted a permanent registration bill for Kansas City, and with a speed heretofore developed only in matters of the rarest emergency a bill has been prepared within that time, substituted for the pending bill in the House Elections Committee, reported to the House and perfected.Pendergast's order for the Kansas City bill brought back to life the St. Louis bill, and within 12 hours a substitute was prepared and reported to the House by the same committee. The bill was perfected today. If St. Louis gets permanent registration the Kansas City boss will be entitled to the credit.There was no opportunity for the House members to have any knowledge of the provisions of either bill, both being brought up for perfection and perfected within two hours after the printed copies were available to the members.One Hearing on St. Louis Bill.
The St. Louis bill was introduced in the House Feb. 11, and the Kansas City bill March 2. The St. Louis bill had the support of Mayor Dick-mann, Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic City Committee; of the Chamber of Commerce and a large number of civic organizations. One hearing was held on it by the House committee, and then action was postponed from week to week, until it appeared certain that it never would come from the committee.The Kansas City bill was in like condition. While it was introduced by all 10 members of the Jackson County (Kansas City) delegation, not one was active in its support.
At the time of the hearing on it a representative of the Pendergast organization appeared in opposition, telling the committee that while the Kansas City organization was not opposed to permanent registration, it was opposed to theparticular bill. He had no substitute to offer, however.At that time Pendergast was in Tucson, Ariz., for the winter and was not in close touch with legislative or political conditions in the State. Immediately after his return to Kansas City last week, he issued his orders and his puppets in the House swung into quick action.Representative William H. Lafferty, recognized as the Pendergast spokesman in the House, was calledto Kansas City for a conference with Pendergast. Lawyers in Kansas City were put at work drafting a substitute which eliminated safeguarding features which were objectionable to the politicians, and Lafferty returned to Jefferson City to spread the orders he had received.St. Louisans Taken by Surprise.
The Elections Committee was in session Monday night when messengers arrived from the boss with the substitute. There was a slighthitch in the proceedings, the intention being to report the bill out of the committee that night. St.
Louis members, who had been fighting a registration bill for St.
Louis and holding it in the committee, were taken by surprise. They wanted time to consider what to do about the St. Louis bill in view of the action on the Kansas City measure, and succeeded in defeating a motion for an immediate report. In hotel room conferences dur-ing the night, however, Lafferty and his Kansas City associates succeeded in winning over enough St.
Louis members so that the bill was reported into the House the nextmorning, as had been planned.
A day was required to print the substitute bill. It was back from

Lon Warneke Seeks His Second Victory; Bordagaray Triples

By J. Roy Stockton.

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, April 29.—Lon Warneke, victor in his first start as a Cardinal because of a ninth inning two-run rally, made his second trip to the hill this afternoon, facing the Cincinnati Reds under threatening skies, in the first game of a series of two, concluding the Redbirds' stand at home.

Ray "Peaches" Davis, who lost to the Cardinals in the opening game of the season, was Warneke's opponent.

Virgil Davis, last year a member of the Gas House Gang, was the Cincinnati catcher. The threatening weather held down the attendance to 2,000.

The Cardinal Board of Directors held a meeting in Sam Breadon's office before the game today but the Cardinal president said he was not free to discuss at this time the business transaction.

Ballanfant, Klem and Sears were the umpires.

McGrath, Quist To Play Singles For Australia

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, D. F., April 29.—Clifford Sproule, non-playing captain of the Australian Davis Cup team, sprang a surprise today by naming Vivian McGrath to play singles with Adrian Quist in the first round matches of the North American zone cup matches against Mexico, beginning Friday.

Jack Crawford and Quist were named for doubles duty.

McGrath, victim of a sore arm, at first was believed lost to the Australian team but has shown such rapid improvement that he convinced Capt. Sproule of his readiness.

The draw for the series placed Quist against Esteban Reyes in the opening match tomorrow, with Ricardo Tapia playing McGrath in the second match.

Selection of the Mexican doubles team was deferred until tomorrow. Sunday's final singles matches will pit Quist against Tapia and McGrath against Reyes.

Feller's Arm Little Better After Four Days of Treatment

By the Associated Press. CLEVELAND, April 29.—Bob Feller's "million dollar pitching arm" was little better today after four days of treatment, and his physicians said such injuries ordinarily require two or three weeks and sometimes longer to heal.

Dr. H. B. Castle, the physician, said he did not expect the injury—tearing of a few fibers just below the elbow—would keep Feller out for the season. In Feller's case, he said, a "week or so" of care may be enough.

Club officials previously had announced Feller's arm would be "all right" early this week and that the 18-year-old strikeout champion would take "his regular turn" pitching.

Remarks of National League President Ford Frick that Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians' boy pitcher, would need a lot of coaching and developing before he can become a consistent major league winner drew a pointed reply today from a Cleveland club official.

"I believe it might be well for Mr. Frick to confine his analysis of players to his own league," declared C. C. Slapnicka, the American League's club vice-president. Frick was quoted as saying in

HURLER FRENCH TO BE OUT FOR 2 MONTHS WITH FRACTURED HAND

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The Chicago Cubs were willing today to talk business with anyone who had a good, or even pretty good, pitcher to peddle.

The Cub pitching staff, the apple of Manager Charlie Grimm's eye a month ago, was just about big enough to operate twice a week, if the dates were not crowded too closely together, following a trip of disasters, climaxed by the stunning loss yesterday of Larry French, talented southpaw.

First Tech Carleton suffered a chipped bone in his pitching elbow during spring practice. Then, Curt Davis, another member of the powerful "big five," came up with a sore pitching wrist. Davis may be ready to take his turn next week but Carleton is not expected to make a hurling gesture for another month.

Grimm's strongest department was all but wrecked yesterday in the first inning against the Cincinnati Reds when French tried to flag a vicious line drive by Ernie Lombardi. The result was a couple of broken bones in his right hand and the prospect of two months on the sidelines.

The Cubs pushed on to Pittsburgh today with only two members of the crack staff of more optimistic ice sound of wind and limit. Unless unexpected good fortune as the purchase of one or more capable hurlers occurs, Grimm plans to raise Charlie Root, his star relief man, and Southpaw Clyde Shoun, whom he had figured to use as a "spot" pitcher against clubs featuring left-handed batting power, to starting ranking.

The relief roles, pending developments, will be handled by Clay Bryant, big and promising, but disappointing so far this season, and Newell Kimball, an untied youngster called up from the club's Los Angeles Pacific Coast League branch.

Staggered by the latest blow, Grimm didn't want to talk, but said he and his scouts were overcast with no possibilities, and would listen to any reasonable propositions involving pitchers.

The pitching situation was not Manager Charlie Grimm's only worry, for Gabby Hartnett, star catcher and field captain, has been out of the lineup because of a sore throwing arm, and Bob Garbark, recruit reliever, is laid up with a broken thumb.

Senator Shortstop Injured. WASHINGTON, April 29.—Physicians said last night that Cecil Travis, shortstop of the Washington Senators, tore a ligament in his right knee yesterday while sliding into third base in the game with the New York Yankees. They said he would be out of the lineup for two weeks.

By W. J. McGoogan.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

CHICAGO, April 29.—The Browns missed a chance to climb into a tie with the White Sox when they lost today's game to the Chicago club.

The score was 12 to 0.

Jim Walkup was Hornsby's starting pitcher while Monte Stratton opened up for the White Sox.

Extra base hits off Walkup put the White Sox in front early in the game and he was removed in the Browns' sixth for a pinch batter.

It was a fine day for baseball, probably the best the Browns have seen this year, but threatening weather in the morning held the attendance down to a mere 3,000.

Manager Rogers Hornsby went through batting and fielding drill but didn't feel up to playing so Tommy Carey was at second base again.

The umpire ruled Frank Pearee, Cub outfielder, out at the plate and end a rally in which the Cubs scored two runs to tie the game at 8-8. Demaree rounded third and headed for home on Gabby Hartnett's double to right. Paul Waner threw to Lee Handley at third base too late to catch Demaree, but the rookie third-sacker relayed the ball to Catcher Al Todd. Grimm rushed onto the field when Moran's relay and delayed the game with his futile argument until he was sent to the clubhouse.

Earlier, the game had been delayed for several minutes when Shortstop Arky Vaughan was knocked out in a collision with Umpire Magerkurth. He was revived and remained in the game.

GRIMES PROMISES TO QUIT FIELD WHEN HE IS CHASED BY UMPIRE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Burleigh Grimes, fiery Brooklyn pilot, today escaped a fine for umpire baiting when he gave his word to National League President Ford Frick that hereafter he would leave the dugger bench when banished from ball games.

"We're bound to have a certain amount of arguments in baseball," admonished Frick, "but hereafter when an umpire tells you to get out and stay out, I want you to do so. Otherwise it's going to cost you a lot of money."

"All right," promised Grimes. "I don't promise not to stick up my rights as I see them but I'll get off the field."

On Grimes' promise, President Frick did not assess him another fine for his argument last Monday with Umpire Larry Goetz.

Frick, however, collected the $25 fine he plastered on Burleigh Grimes' argument with Umpire Fay Parker last Sunday. Grimes paid it.

The club climbed to its dugout in a unit fit and, from that vantage, heckled the umpire with Lafayette.

The arbiter ordered back into the dugout, sponse, he imposed the $25 fine.

The Lake Charles manager explained: "There were three in that dugout. He couldn't expect a ball in a dugout of snakes."

Morris said it was not quite good enough.

Easterner Drops Jack With Left Smashes — Godoy Gains Decision Over Galento in 10 Rounds.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 29. — Jack Torrance, a war-worn and weary man of the cane-brake, sat sadly in his dressing room and slowly shook his head. Five minutes earlier, he had lain bruised and battered on the canvas of the hippodrome ring with Abe Simon glowering above him after a minute and two seconds of fighting in the second round last night. He didn't want to talk about it. All he knew was he had been beaten.

"No, let my nose bleed, it bleeds all the time," he said, brushing aside a trainer. "Just let me be for a while. I'm not hurt, he didn't hurt me, I feel all right."

The massive fighter who has been a national champion and world record holder in the shot put, a football player, and finally a heavyweight making him New York debut looked up with sad eyes.

"I couldn't do a thing. Couldn't throw a punch. I think I'm better than that."

Will Keep on Fighting.
When he came downstairs to leave the hippodrome, the bleeding had stopped. His lip was cut but otherwise he seemed unmarked.

"I'll keep on fighting. I ain't going to quit now, I'll be back."

Back in the crowd Jimmy Bronson, Simon's handler, was telling what a game guy Torrance was. How he got off the floor twice and kept swinging, how he had taken Simon's two hard lefts, dropped and pulled himself up to go on.

Godoy Defeats Galento.
Torrance strode toward a taxi. Some of the crowd watched him and the trainer and watched Arturo Godoy out-ging and out-maul Tony Galento to win a 10-round decision.

Galento, known as one of the hardest hitters in the heavyweight division when he can connect, was outclassed in everything but heart. He absorbed punishment in every round, but was in there swinging at the finish trying to find an opening for his left, famous throughout New Jersey for its sleep-producing proclivities.

A superior boxer, Godoy easily blocked the lefts and rights Tony threw at him, meanwhile piling up points with his own effective punching.

The show of almost 1000 pounds of beef attracted 4500 fans who paid $5984.04 to watch the behemoths in action.

Burton Moore, Fulton, Miss Stephens' track coach, said it was the first time his protegee ever ran the distance in public. He said the best previous time for 80 meters was 9.8 seconds, set by Stella Walsh, Polish-American runner.

The track meet was won by Harrisonville. It was attended by 2000 persons.

SNAKES IN THE DUGOUT, BUT THE FINE STICKS

By the Associated Press.
MONROE, La., April 29. — The Lake Charles baseball club of the Evangeline League had a good snake story, but it must pay a fine just the same for "riding an umpire."

The club climbed to the roof of its dugout in unit Tuesday night and, from that vantage point, heckled the umpire in the game with Lafayette.

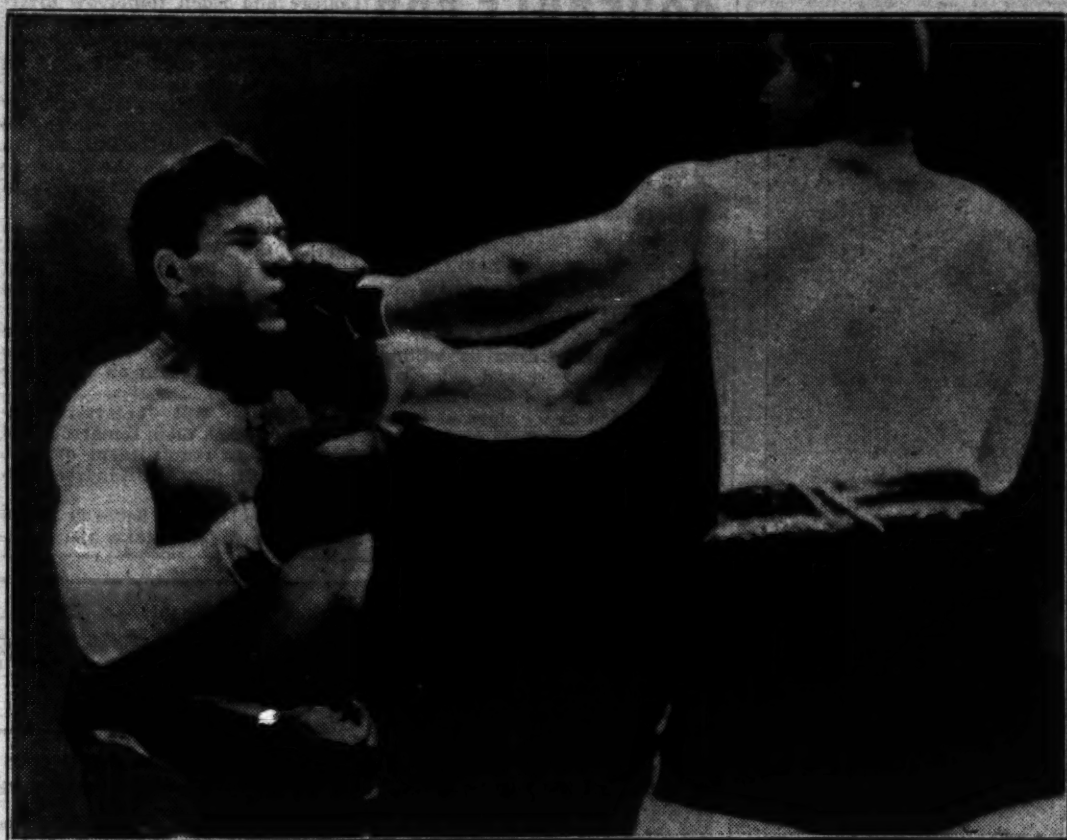

The arbiter ordered the team back into the dugout. With no response, he imposed the fine.

The Lake Charles manager called League President J. Walter Morris to explain.

"There were three snakes down in that dugout," he said. "You couldn't expect a ball team to sit in a dugout of snakes."

Morris said it was a good story, but not quite good enough.

Thomson Drives an Estimated 350 Yards With About 3000 Looking on at Golf Exhibition

An estimated 350-yard drive by Jimmy Thomson elicited "oohs" and "ahs" from a crowd said to number 3000 who watched four touring golf professionals do their stuff in a golf exhibition this afternoon at Forest Park.

Thomson's shot was made just before the foursome started off on their 18-hole match and it was the longest of any hit by him or Harry Cooper and Lawson Little, who also took a wallop at the pill. Horton Smith, Joplin's gift to the pros, explained what was going on, aided by an amplifying unit.

The members of the quartet are familiar to golf enthusiasts, for they have won championships or have been within striking distance many times. Their exhibition tour is in the interest of a sporting goods manufacturing concern. They arrived in the morning and before going to the park, talked of their game.

He's the man who's always burning up the courses in major league play, only to be defeated many times by someone behind him who apparently was out of the running. Because he is British he isn't allowed to play on the United States Ryder Cup team. He said there is little chance he will ever play on the team as the powers that be have shown no inclination to make a special ruling covering his case.

Thinks He Is Improving.
Thomson, one of the game's longest veterans, began rubbing his leg with liniment. It was sore from a strain he suffered a few days ago. He went to the phone and ordered an ankle brace. It was sore from the Miami Biltmore tournament early in January. Aside from that, he was okay.

"There is often criticism that you don't pay enough attention to improving your game on the greens," Thomson was told. "What about it?"

"That's what I've been working on for the last two years," he said. "I think I'm getting better."

"Are you pulling your drives any?"

"No, not necessarily. You see, a long drive can come in mighty handy. On par-five holes, for instance, if you can get on the green in two you have a good advantage over the fellow who takes three to get on."

"The thing is, of course, to get accuracy in your drives. On many holes, if you wallop the ball it has to be extremely accurate to stay in the fairway. The fairway gets narrower and if you can't stay within it, it doesn't do much good."

$600,000 IN REQUESTS FOR SEATS FOR THE JUNE 22 FIGHT

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, April 29. — While awaiting the decision of the courts on the application for an injunction filed to prevent Jim Braddock and Joe Louis meeting here, June 22, the promoters, the boxers and their managers are making plans to go ahead.

Louis appeared before the Illinois commission today with his manager, Julian Black, and received approval of the site for his training camp which is to be at Lake Geneva, Wis.

Joe, attired in a light gray suit with white stripes, green short, green tie, dark green soft hat, light tan topcoat, tan shoes and gray hose, also signed to box a charity exhibition tomorrow afternoon for the benefit of the Chicago Crippled Children's Hospital.

Black said Louis would be located in a home just outside of Lake Geneva and will do his training at the high school athletic field there. Expects to Kaye Braddock.

Dead Pan Joe, as usual, had little to say but nodded that he had seen Braddock win the title from Max Baer and that he thought he could defeat the champion.

"By a knockout?" he was asked. "Yeah, I think it'll end in a knockout," he replied.

Joe Triner, chairman of the commission, said he would waive the rule providing that the contestants shall be in Chicago five days before the bout.

"That rule is for the purpose of insuring the presence of principals here," he said, "and there's no necessity for that in this case. They both will be training near Chicago and the commission will permit them the privacy of their camps until the day of the fight, when they will come to Chicago for the weighing in, which probably will be held in a downtown theater as the commission offices are not large enough for the purpose."

Joe Foley, former newspaper man, is listed by the commission and in the contracts as the promoter, although everyone knows he is really the "front" man for Mike Jacobs.

Ready to Proceed, If—
"We are ready to proceed within three days if the court decision is in our favor," he said, "but we are making no reservations for tickets as yet. We have had requests for $600,000 worth of tickets, but I have returned all such requests because the demand will be so great that I don't want people to claim priority because of requests mailed months ago."

"We will set up Comiskey Park so that a sell-out would bring in 80,000 people and gross receipts of $1,200,000. The seat prices are to be $3.00, $6, $11, $16.50 and $37.50. Braddock has been guaranteed 50 per cent of the receipts after taxes."

Triner was asked what prompted him to seek the bout for Chicago when Braddock was already signed to meet Max Schmeling in New York.

"First let me tell you that I do not condone contract breaking," he said, "but on the advice of the First Assistant Attorney-General of Illinois I determined this move was not a breach of contract. Our contracts call for Jim Braddock to meet Joe Louis in a 15-round match to decision and the championship is not mentioned in any way."

DON BUDGE TO PLAY NAKANO IN DAVIS CUP SERIES OPENER

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, April 29.—J. Donald Budge, America's first ranking player, will meet Fu Mitsu Nakano in the opening match of the Davis Cup play between the United States and Japan beginning here tomorrow.

Jiro Yamagishi, captain of the Japanese team, will play Frankie Parker in the second singles match. The draw for the opening singles matches of the international competition was made here today.

Yamagishi named Nakano as No. 2 man of the Japanese team, and Parker was chosen to handle the other singles assignment for the United States.

In Sunday's concluding singles contest, Nakano will face Parker and Yamagishi will meet Budge in the windup.

The doubles will be played Saturday with Budge and Gene Mako, partner golf against Yamagishi and Hideo Nishimura, third member of the Japanese squad.

Those who have watched the prospective rivals in practice pick the United States to triumph in this American sports match. They believe Budge's dynamite smashes and ruggedness will carry him to two singles victories that Parker will take one singles and that Budge and Mako will prove invulnerable in the doubles competition.

Legislature Puts on Show Of Pendergast Rule

The printer yesterday morning, and though it was not on the calendar for action, Chairman Gill of the Elections Committee, a member of the Kansas City organization, asked for unanimous consent to call it up. There was no objection, and almost without debate it was referred.

It was immediately rushed to the Committee on Perfected Bills, of which Lafferty is chairman, in the expectation that it could be reported back today and passed.

Miller Appears on Scene.

In the meantime, the St. Louis members were in almost frantic action to get something done on the St. Louis bill. Chairman Hannegan of the Democratic City Committee; James A. Waelchli, former chairman of the Election Board, and Justice of the Peace James H. Miller, Fourth Ward committeeman, appeared in Jefferson City, ostensibly on other business.

Representative Maurice Schechter hid himself away with two stenographers to prepare a substitute bill, and it was reported to the House late yesterday afternoon, although no meeting of the committee had been held to take the action. Chairman Gill of the committee obtained the approval of a majority of the members by calling on them one at a time.

It now appears probable that both St. Louis and Kansas City will get permanent registration bills all due to a brief order by the House to Lafferty and one telephone conversation of the boss with Senator Casey of Kansas City.

The reason for the sudden change of front is difficult of analysis, no authoritative information being available. The explanation most frequently assigned in legislative discussions is that the Kansas City boss decided that something must be done to attempt to restore the political organization to some degree of respectability after the election fraud disclosures of the Federal grand jury investigation, and the numerous convictions of election judges and clerks in Kansas City.

But that could be only surmise. There have been permanent registration bills introduced in previous Legislatures and never before had the boss issued an order that one be passed.

Leaders Unable to Get Action. Neither Mayor Dickmann, Chairman Hannegan, the League of Women Voters nor any of the many civic organizations in St. Louis had been able to move the St. Louis bill until Pendergast took action. He had said nothing about St. Louis, but seemingly the St. Louis legislators decided they dared not face public opinion if a St. Louis bill failed while a Kansas City bill carried. So they got busy.

The indications point to Gov. Stark being left stranded with his makeshift registration bill. He had recommended permanent registration in his inaugural message, and when it appeared that neither of the two comprehensive bills would get out of committee, the Governor caused the preparation of a measure which did little more than make the registrations under the old system a permanent record. It has been handled in the Senate by Senator Brogan of St. Louis, but has not even been perfected.

If the House bills are carried through with anything like the vigor that has been displayed this week, there will be no place for the Governor's measure.

It could happen, of course, that the House bills would meet opposition in the Senate, but Pendergast is virtually certain to get what he wants there, as well as in the House, and St. Louis is very likely to tag along and derive the benefits.

Two Safeguards Left Out of New St. Louis Registration Bill. The new St. Louis bill was perfected by the House this morning, after several attempts to amend or postpone action on the bill were defeated.

Dr. A. J. Gray, Republican Representative from Atchison County, unsuccessfully attempted to include in the bill a provision requiring the signature of voters at the time of balloting. A motion of minority floor leader Harry Clymer of Steelville to postpone perfection of the measure until next Tuesday as that members could study the bill was voted down also.

The bill now goes on the House calendar for third reading and final passage, and probably will be approved by the House early next week and sent to the Senate.

The bill is a revised form of the measure written by Mayor Dickmann's Citizens' Advisory Committee, in which two important safeguards have been eliminated.

A provision requiring the signature of voters, for comparison purposes, at the time of balloting, and a section providing for a biennial census of all persons in the city over 19 years of age were excluded from the new bill.

Proponents of the original measure contended the signature requirement was a fundamental requisite for a strong permanent registration system. This feature was opposed by a majority of the St. Louis Representatives, their ostensible reason being that it would delay voting and possibly keep from the polls thousands of voters who would not want to be put to the trouble of signing a certificate before receiving a ballot.

New Bill's Signature Provision. Under the new bill, which retains the present voting regulations, an election judge could demand the signature of a challenged voter before permitting him to cast a ballot, and compare that signature with that on the registration card. The census feature, which had been devised to replace the present canvass system as a more thorough method of checking the registration, was also objectionable to the St. Louis legislators, who felt it would be made, however, on written application to the Election Board within five days of an election.

Name Removed Rule Retained. The bill retains an important section, under which voters who failed to cast a ballot at least once within four years would be removed from the registration lists. The purpose of this provision is to provide an additional check for the removal of the names of voters who have died or have moved from the city.

In such cases the board, before removing the voters from the lists, would be required to serve written notice twice, asking them to appear before the board to show cause why their registrations should not be revoked. If a voter should fail to cast a ballot for four years, or more, he could re-register later if he desired, even though his registration had been stricken for that reason.

In general, the permanent registration plan proposed in the new bill would operate under the same election machinery now in operation.

It is expected that the measure will be perfected today and probably passed by the House early next week.

KASKASKIA FLOOD WORK LIKELY Have Been Assured.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Representative Laurence F. Arnold of Newton, Ill., says he has been assured the Kaskaskia River basin flood control project in Southern Illinois will be included in the revised national flood control program this year.

Arnold displayed a bill prepared for him by the army engineers, calling for a Kaskaskia flood control and water conservation reservoir at a cost of $3,913,000. The estimated cost of lands and damages in connection with the reservoir construction is $3,853,000. The Kaskaskia reservoir was included in the Omnibus Flood control bill which the House passed last year, but the Senate Commerce Committee eliminated the project.

WHEELER CALLS ROOSEVELT COURT REACTIONARY

Bar He Says "There Comes a Time When You Must Place Country Before Party."

REVOLTS AGAINST BEING A 'YES' MAN of Seven Judges of State Supreme Court,

Other Members of Bench
Heur Address.

Before a sympathetic audience of lawyers and their guests, United States Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana last night continued his bitter attack on President Roosevelt's scheme to remake the Supreme Court, in a short address dealing with defiance of the administration's efforts to force the bill through Congress.

He spoke at the annual dinner of the St. Louis Bar Association at the Coronado Hotel, where many of the lawyers were accompanied by their wives and other guests.

The speakers table were six of the seven judges of the State Supreme Court and other judges of the Federal courts. The attitude of the Bar Association toward the scheme was shown several weeks ago when, at a meeting attended by about one-fourth of its membership, it adopted a resolution opposing the scheme by a vote of 12 to 14.

The high point of his address was his dramatic emphasis, he declared, "I refuse to be a yes man any President." "There comes a time," he continued, "when you must place your country above party."

He was speaking of the fact that as a Democrat he campaigned last summer throughout the West and Middle West for President Roosevelt's re-election, a long personal friendship with Roosevelt made it especially difficult for him to oppose the President, he said, but he felt that he said no more.

Speech Is Out Short.

Senator Wheeler gave only a half hour of the address he had prepared, as he spoke less than a half hour. A lengthy program had been planned, and the Senator had to take a night train for Oklahoma. He did not mention yesterday's news from Washington that Senator McCarran (Dem.) of Nevada, a member of the Judiciary Committee, had announced his opposition to the court scheme, indicating that the committee will make an unfavorable report on the bill. Just before the dinner Senator Wheeler received telegrams from associates in Washington informing him of McCarran's stand, and he was in a confident mood as he sailed into the attack in his brief address.

Senator Wheeler was the Progressive party candidate for Vice President in 1924 when the late Senator Robert M. La Follette (father of the present Senator of that name) was the presidential candidate. At all other times in his political career he has been a Democrat.

"Most Reactionary Thing."

Speaking as a liberal, he declared last night that the Roosevelt court scheme "is the most reactionary thing that has been proposed in generations."

It was gov. to be in Missouri where the right of free speech was not questioned, the Senator observed at the outset.

"You know out in your neighboring State of Kansas," he continued, "I was denied free speech a few days ago when they censored me. I had said in a news reel as 'too partisan.' It seems to me that I made some news reel partisan speeches in Kansas last year when I was campaigning for President Roosevelt, but no one censored those speeches."

His reference was to deletion from a news reel of remarks he had made against the court packing scheme. After widespread newspaper publicity, the Kansas state board of moving picture censors withdrew the order for deletion of the remarks.

Farley on Calling Roll.

With withering scorn, Senator Wheeler recalled the recent statement of Postmaster General-Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley about putting the plan over Congress gets through talk.

He quoted Farley: "We will let the Senate talk, and let the House talk, and then we will call the roll and we have the votes."

"Now it seems to me that Mr. Farley went just a little too far," Senator Wheeler said, "with that remark about calling the roll. I think he should at least permit the Senate to talk and the House to talk and then call the roll."

He had read in today's newspapers what Mr. Farley said in a speech in Illinois—that the administration's whole program will fail unless they are permitted to pack the Court. Now I have been a Democrat all my life, but I am an American citizen first when I oppose this scheme. I was the first Democratic Senator to come out for Mr. Roosevelt for President in 1932. I was for him because I thought he was progressive and liberal, and I wanted the Democratic party to be a liberal party.

His View as a Liberal.

"People have called me a radical, and I am a radical in the sense that I want to see the institutions of our country preserved, that I want democracy to be retained unweakened. As a liberal, I see in this court packing scheme the most reactionary thing that has been advanced for generations."

Why was it reactionary? He explained that as he had traveled over the world in recent years he had seen struck by the gradual acceptance in civilized nations of one-man power, of dictatorship.

"Dictatorship and Liberalism."

"It used to be in Europe," he said, "that democracy was the ideal and goal of the liberals. But things have changed. In a large part of Europe today where the people are under the heels of dictators, we find that dictatorship and liberalism are synonymous in the minds of many people."

"And that explains why I am against this court scheme. No matter how good the man, how noble the President, I stand against one-man power, against any President having a subservient Congress and then having a subservient Supreme Court which will rubber stamp any legislation that the administration desires."

"I refuse to be a yes man for any President, Democrat or Republican."

Hurriedly the Senator disposed of the principal arguments advanced by the administration when the court scheme was first proposed early last February, and said the issue turns out to be this: Shall the President be permitted to add six new members to the Supreme Court (one for each member now past 70 years old) for the purpose of getting a court that will decide cases the way the President wishes them to be decided?

"Greatest Liberal of All."

Ridiculing the President's argument that younger men were needed to make the court more liberal, Wheeler asserted that the most liberal man in the Senate probably is Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, past 70; that perhaps the greatest liberal in all America is Justice Louis D. Brandeis, 80 years old; that the late Justice Holmes served on the Supreme bench at 90 and rendered outstanding liberal opinions.

"I resent the implication of Attorney-General Cummings," he declared, "that Justice Brandeis is senile. And I assert that the day never will come when the Attorney-General will be able to fill the shoes of Justice Brandeis or any other Supreme Court Justice, conservative or liberal."

"Most Efficient Chief Justice."

Senator Wheeler told of getting the letter from Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes—which was read to the Senate Judiciary Committee, showing that the Court is up with its work, and destroying the argument of the President and Attorney-General that more justices were needed to enable the Court to keep up with its docket. He thought Hughes was the most efficient Chief Justice the country ever has had.

He asserted that in the whole court controversy there had been no speech which so misrepresented the facts about the Supreme Court as did the speech of President Roosevelt at the Democratic "victory dinner" in Washington last March 4.

"Unfortunately," he said, "the President gave the impression to people not accustomed to thinking analytically about governmental problems, that in some way the Supreme Court was responsible for the Ohio River flood, for the dust storms in the West and for all the suffering of the unemployed. We had the spectacle of the President, at that $100 a plate dinner, telling the people that we must pack the Supreme Court to prevent these things."

Would Rather Abolish Court.

"As for myself, I would far rather abolish the Supreme Court than ever make it subservient to any President or to Congress."

He paid tribute to President Roosevelt's service to the country in the early days of his administration.

"But what is this new 'crisis' which the President now says is greater than any we have ever faced before and makes it necessary for him to pack the Supreme Court?"

"When I traveled on the President's campaign train last summer, and heard his speeches, and talked with him, I did not hear him say anything about a crisis. He said prosperity had returned, that we had solved our problems, and the theme of his whole campaign was 'Happy Days Are Here Again.'"

"What happened after the election to bring on this new 'crisis'?"

Justice Brandeis on Liberty.

Senator Wheeler concluded his address with the following quotation from an opinion written by Justice Brandeis:

"Experience should teach us to be most on guard to protect our liberty when purposes of government are beneficent. Men born to freedom are naturally alert to repel invasion of their liberty by evil-minded persons. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning, but without understanding."

This was said by Justice Brandeis in 1928 in an opinion dissenting from the affirmation of conviction of persons for prohibition law violations where the evidence had been obtained by tapping their telephone wires.

Senator Wheeler will return to Washington after speaking in Oklahoma against the court packing scheme.

PRICES CUT, WAGES RAISED IN RUSSIA; THIRD 5-YEAR PLAN

Decrees Signed by Stalin and Molotov to Reduce Retail Charges on All Manufactured Goods.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 29.—The Government decreed today lower retail prices on manufactured goods, ordered drafts of a third five-year plan for industry, and announced reorganization of the Don Basin coal mining industry with higher wages for workers. The decrees were signed by Joseph Stalin and V. M. Molotov, president of the Council of People's Commissars.

The Don Basin mines, north of the Caucasus Mountain area, in Southern Russia, have lagged in production under the present five-year plan, which the Government announced Monday had been fulfilled, for the most part, ahead of schedule. Labor troubles were blamed.

The first step toward reorganization today was appointment of S. A. Sarkisov to succeed V. M. Bazhanov as director of the coal fields. Bazhanov becomes assistant director and chief engineer.

The decrees order immediate improvement of work, cultural and living conditions for the miners, who have been reported unwilling to stay on the job, with the result that the mines have been 15 to 20 per cent below schedule for supplying industry with 65 per cent of its coal.

The State Planning Commission was ordered to begin at once its preparation of the third five-year plan to be submitted to the Council of People's Commissars for approval by July 1. Newspapers were asked to conduct general discussion of questions and problems of the new plan for public consideration.

Monday's official announcement said industry equaled its goal of about 17 billion dollars in production for the second five-year plan on April 1, far ahead of the deadline of Jan. 1. (This was for total production and did not specify individual industries, which might have fallen behind the general trend.)

New evidence of housecleaning was presented meanwhile by the Union of Soviet Writers, which has been eliminating supposed followers of the exiled Leon Trotsky from its membership. Spokesmen at the annual session of the dramatic section of the union announced discovery of extensive diversion of royalties by officials. It was alleged that L. Korshon, noted playwright and head of the union's copyright section, had misappropriated royalties derived from nationalized compositions by classical authors and authors unprotected by copyright.

Brazilian President Takes Over a State Government

Vargas Strips Old Friend, Gov. Flores da Cunha, of Authority, in Political Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

PORTO ALEGRE, Brazil, April 29.—The commander of Brazil's southern military forces took over control of the Rio Grande do Sul State yesterday and its Governor stepped aside, virtually stripped of all executive authority.

Gen. Emilio Lucio Esteves, charged with maintaining peace and order, held Federal troops in barracks ready for any trouble as Gov. J. A. Flores da Cunha yielded his powers.

The action came as Brazilian political circles were expecting Gov. Flores to back as presidential candidate in the 1938 elections Armando Salles Oliveira, former Governor of Sao Paulo State. President Vargas is against his candidacy. Vargas rose to power after the 1930 revolution in which Flores supported him.

French Premier Conditions Declaration, However, on United People's Front Support.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 29.—Premier Leon Blum informed a group of Socialist Deputies today he would be willing to consider nationalization of insurance if he were solidly supported by the People's Front.

The Premier's statement followed a suggestion by Finance Minister Vincent Auriol to the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies that the Government assume control of France's debt-burdened railroads.

Acquisition of arms and munitions factories by the Government already is under way.

Blum, insisted that the halt in Government spending and economic reforms must be continued for the present.

PRINCETON SNUBS GOETTINGEN

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 29.—President Harold W. Dods announced yesterday that Princeton University had declined an invitation to send a delegate to Germany to Goettingen University's 20th anniversary celebration.

The decision was reached several weeks ago, he commented, "but public announcement was withheld pending the preparation of a formal greeting to convey Princeton's esteem of Goettingen's distinguished past and our hopes for her future." Princeton's announcement followed similar action by Yale Tuesday.

MUSSOLINI POSTPONES VISIT TO HITLER TILL JUNE OR JULY

Diplomatic Quarters in Berlin See Some Hitches in Ironing Out Differences Over Spain.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 29.—Premier Mussolini's projected visit to Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler was postponed today until June or July. Mussolini and Hitler were to have met at Hitler's Bavarian mountain retreat, Berchtesgaden, May 4, presumably to discuss developments in Spain.

Postponement of the visit was seen in diplomatic quarters as evidence that Mussolini and Colonel-General Hermann Wilhelm Goerring, who recently conferred with Mussolini as Hitler's envoy, failed to iron out their differences over Spain.

It is an open secret here that Hitler, on the advice of his general staff, is trying to extricate Germany more and more from the Spanish venture.

The Wilhelmstrasse declares Germany is interested only in obtaining raw materials, primarily ores, from Spain and will be satisfied with any settlement of the Spanish civil war provided it does not create a "Bolshevik" regime.

Postponement became apparent when it was announced that Baron Konstantin von Neurath, Reich Foreign Minister, would leave for Rome Sunday to return the recent visit of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister. Later, probably about May 9, Marshal Werner von Blomberg, German Minister of Defense, will leave for Rome.

215 LEPROS, NINE NARCOTIC PEDDLERS EXECUTED IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, April 29.—Two hundred and fifteen lepers and nine narcotic peddlers, including a young woman, were executed yesterday in widely separated parts of China.

The lepers were shot at Pailun-shan, Kwangtung Province, by the military authorities despite protests from the local populace, according to "The China Times," Shanghai Chinese daily. This wholesale leper butchery was the third in Kwangtung this year. The previous ones have aroused a storm of protest in the Chinese press.

Miss Lu Tse-Lan, 25-year-old narcotic peddler, was shot by a firing squad at Hanchow, Kiangsu Province, before a large crowd, which first watched her being taken through the city streets.

Miss Lu was arrested by railway police on the Lungshai Railway when she attempted to smuggle a large quantity of heroin from Hanchow to Chengchow. Selling heroin or cocaine is subject to a severe penalty than dealing in or using opium.

Miss Lu's heroin shipments were traced to the Japanese concession at Tientsin, where most of the heroin now widely used in North China originates.

In Peiping eight narcotic dealers were paraded through the streets and executed at the Bridge of Heaven, bringing the total of such executions in Peiping to 30 since Jan. 1, when the new anti-narcotic laws became effective.

Fire in Temple Hospital Sends 728 Addicts Scurrying; 20 Shot.

By the Associated Press.

PEIPING, China, April 29.—Fire which raged through the ancient "Temple of Ten Thousand Longevity" today sent 728 narcotic addicts fleeing into the city's streets. One hundred of them gained at least temporary freedom from the treatment that had been forced upon them.

Police captured more than 800, including 20 whom they shot and wounded as they raced out of the burning structure. Many were semi-crazed women, long victims of the narcotic habit.

Authorities searched Peiping for those who were still free. The Temple was built in 1577.

Infantry Brigade Turns Back Night Surprise Attack in Waziristan.

By the Associated Press.

SIMLA, India, April 29.—Fanatical tribesmen raided a British military camp in Waziristan Tuesday night, leaving 22 dead and injured, reports from the Northwest border province said yesterday.

The tribesmen, followers of the Fakir of Ipi, self-styled "champion of Islam," suddenly attacked the second infantry brigade's camp in the lower Khatalsora Valley. Though the casualties had not been tabulated completely, it was believed the native losses were heavier than those of the military.

The Fakir, who has opposed British rule more than 30 years, was reported to have established a hospital to care for tribal casualties in the sporadic Waziristan revolt. The leader himself was living in a mountain cave as protection against air raids.

More than 6000 British troops have poured into the district, near the Afghanistan frontier, to quell the revolt.

BORAH DECLARES TRUST LAWS NEED ONLY ENFORCING

Vast Amount of Power in Curbing Statute Never Used, Idaho Senator Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, long a campaigner against monopolies, took issue last night with Attorney-General Cummings' report to the President that the antitrust laws are weak.

The statement did not mention Cummings by name, but it followed by only a day the Attorney-General's report that he had found insufficient evidence of collusion among companies and that a revision of the anti-trust statutes was needed.

"I hope we are now to deal in thorough fashion with monopoly all along the line," his statement said, "playing no favorites and having no pity, but proceed upon the theory that monopoly is wrong in principle and utterly destructive of the welfare of the average man and woman."

"It is within the power of this administration to put an end to monopoly, and no greater service can be rendered to the poor people of this country. When I say poor people, I do not mean alone those who have reached the relief roll. I mean the small business man, struggling to keep his business; the farmer fighting to keep his farm, and millions seeking to maintain their homes and educate and clothe their families."

"The power of the few to fix prices is the power to impoverish the masses, and that has been going on even in periods called prosperous periods; and we have the share-cropper in the South, the slum dweller in the North, 71 per cent of American families living on the bare necessities of life, and unemployment talked of as a permanent cancer upon the body politic."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Eyes Brewers With Suspicion.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
I READ the other day where all the big brewing industries of the country have banded together to form what they call the "United Brewers Industrial Foundation," headed by Col. Jacob Ruppert.

The circular announcing this foundation said it was organized to maintain cordial relations between the brewing industry and the public and to "interpret" the brewers' problems and activities to the public.

It looks to me as though the brewers are getting all set to make the same mistakes they made before prohibition. What do they mean by "maintaining cordial relations"? Do they really mean that they want to maintain relations which will be advantageous to the brewing industry?

It would appear that this foundation which has been set up in the interest of the welfare of the American public is more probably a smoke screen to cover the real purpose of enabling its members to produce and sell more beer.

The announcement said that another function of the organization was for the dissemination of authoritative information on the brewing industry. It's an even bet that somewhere in the background there is a high-powered secretary and publicity man who is getting about $100,000 a year to disseminate this information.

It's doubtful if the brewers are as much interested in protecting the public welfare as they are in perpetuating the saloon.

Nazi Propaganda in St. Louis.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
ST. LOUIS has become a city where Hitler dictates what movies may be shown. Perhaps Washington, D. C. had better send an American Ambassador to our city.

Where does the Mayor get the authority to ban a movie criticizing the Nazis, when he permits public showing of pro-Nazi films and propaganda?

No Nazi should have the temerity to tell any American city what films ought not to be shown here, and no real American would heed any Nazi orders.

The Herndon Case.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
ANYONE who reads Angelo Herndon's recent autobiography, in which he made an earnest plea for life, was convinced of his innocence. "Let Me Live" is a powerful indictment of a social system that allows our courts to sentence young men to 20 years on a chain gang for daring to express their ideas.

Now, Justice Herndon and the other four concurring Justices have won many young people to their side by upholding their belief that the Georgia insurrection law under which Herndon was sentenced violates the guarantees of liberty embodied in the fourteenth amendment.

Although the invalidation of the 1871 law comes 66 years late, the Supreme Court Justices who sided with the majority are to be commended for their sense of justice and mercy. Thinking individuals will rejoice that Herndon's plea for life has been granted, and that a milestone in the long and arduous struggle for civil liberties has been reached.

High Ratio.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE hard and bitterly-fought battle of Angelo Herndon has at last come to a successful conclusion, and an anti-lynching bill has passed the House. Over these victories there is much rejoicing, rejoicing that is completely overshadowed by the brutalities of a Missouri mob.

Incidentally, 500 to 3 seems an unusually high ratio in the "home of the brave."

John Bull: Gentleman or Bully?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
THE comparison in your editorial "Dulles vs. Gentlemen" (April 16) seems rather lopsided to me. You may say what you wish about the European dictators; I don't like them, but when you call John Bull a gentleman, that is something else.

Look at the record: During the World War, England interfered with neutral shipping (foodstuffs as well as war supplies) to the Scandinavian countries, Holland and Denmark, until they were on a ration basis. She rifled our mail on the high seas on neutral ships. She hoisted our flag on her own armed merchantmen, then lowered it and hoisted her own and fired on unsuspecting German submarines. But until then, German submarines had conducted the sinking of ships in a humane way.

During the Civil War, England furnished the South with such quantities of war materials that we came very near to blowing with her. But worst of all was the subjugation of the Boers, a people who were educated and civilized, and because they were possessors of rich diamond mines, they were blacklisted into submission.

FRED ALPERT.

JACKSON COUNTY'S REIGN OF TERROR.

No residents of Kansas City or Jackson County may sit on the next Federal grand jury because they "might be so subjected to interference that they could not discharge their duties properly." The quoted words are those of Judge Otis.

Judge Otis' insistence on choosing a jury from outside of Jackson County deserves high applause, but what a commentary it is on the power and extent of the Pendergast machine! It means that machine has instituted a reign of terror from which no man in a community of 500,000 persons is safe. It means that the ordinary processes of justice require the selection of citizens far removed from the influence of the fixers and the hoodlums who infest Kansas City and Jackson County.

Judge Otis' precaution is well-grounded. The lengths to which machine hoodlums have gone in the past show they will stop at nothing to preserve their dominance. In his campaign for Governor last fall, Jesse W. Barrett, referring to the last mayoralty election in Kansas City, when a group of independent citizens attempted to defeat the machine candidate, said:

"We all remember the pictures of the hospital wards, filled with men who were broken and bruised by the gangsters who assaulted them at the polls. You remember that flood of fraudulent votes. You were baptized in blood, but the contest was won by the machine. The score was four murders, 200 assaults and 100,000 felonies. But the blackjack and the pistol are not the only weapons of the machine. In a hundred ways it can work its will on the citizenry. It owns the courts and the taxing machinery. Only recently, a Government witness in the fraud trials was threatened with prosecution on an old charge in the State courts—the same courts which ignore the wholesale rape of the ballot. The power to raise assessments against citizens who complain of machine rule is always present, as are the power to revoke business licenses and the power to declare buildings defective and other methods of reprisal against those who refuse to bend the knee."

A preacher who had the hardihood to denounce the machine found that the assessments of members of his congregation were being increased, some as much as threefold. One member who owned a group of stores was told his license to do business was revoked. When they asked what could be done to avoid this official punishment, they were told: "Change your minister."

Who can doubt that the machine, now facing the greatest crisis of its career as Federal justice marches solemnly and relentlessly against it, will fall to use any power at its command to coerce and intimidate whomever it can? On occasions far less dangerous to it, the machine has not hesitated at felony and murder.

All this in a city which proudly refers to itself as "the Heart of America." All this in a city renowned as a great and flourishing American metropolis, with its huge industries, its magnificent buildings, its celebrated Nelson art gallery, its lovely parks and residential districts. An ugly canker is eating at the "Heart of America." Beneath its superficial order and beauty is operating one of the foulest gangs of hoodlums that ever corrupted American democracy.

Is it not a shameful thing that Kansas City and Jackson County must be saved by citizens from outside their limits? Is it not shameful that, in the reasoned opinion of a fearless Judge, the power of the hoodlums has grown to a point that not one man in a community of 500,000 may serve as grand inquisitor of the crimes of the Pendergast machine?

CRIMINAL CODE REFORM IN ILLINOIS.
Missouri cannot have its antiquated criminal laws modernized because our legislative bosses do not want it done. Fortunately for other states, however, the influence of these self-servers stops at the borders of Missouri. Over in Illinois, for example, the State Bar Association's criminal code bill has been approved by the Judiciary committees of both the Senate and the House, and the prospect is for passage in the very near future. The purpose of Illinois' proposed new code is precisely what it should be, namely, to speed up justice, simplify procedure and generally increase the protection of law-abiding citizens against the criminal element and its legalistic abettors. Missourians may very well join residents of Illinois in hoping for passage of the Illinois Bar Association's reform measure by large majorities. Every such forward step elsewhere makes the more certain the eventual modernization of criminal procedure in this State.

THE 15 PER CENT BILL.
Apparently as a sequel to the President's special message of April 20, in which he expressed a newly-awakened anxiety about Federal expenditures, Congressman Cannon has introduced a bill to slash Federal appropriations for the coming fiscal year by 15 per cent. According to Speaker Bankhead, the measure has the approval of Mr. Roosevelt, who is given discretionary power to restore the cut in any of the departments, to meet fixed contractual obligations and the like. While a flat 15 per cent would save a billion dollars, it is impossible to tell how much the Cannon bill will save because of the discretionary clause.

What the President obviously is interested in doing is to wipe out the estimated net deficit of $418,000,000 in the fiscal year 1938 and to present the country with a "layman's" balanced budget at the end of that year; that is, a balance of actual income and outgo. "I regard it as extremely important," said the President's message of April 20, "that we should achieve a balance of actual income and outgo for the fiscal year 1938, and I appeal to you to join me in a determined effort to bring about that result."

Last fall, at Pittsburgh, the President was assailed with no misgivings about the national finances. In his "box-car" speech, he said:

"And now a word as to this foolish fear about the crushing load the debt will impose upon your children and mine. This debt is not going to be paid by oppressive taxation on future generations. It is not going to be paid by taking away the hard-won savings of the present generation. It is going to be paid out of an increased national income and increased individual income produced by increased national prosperity."

That is vague enough, and the "foolish fear" about the crushing debt seems not so foolish, after all, as Mr. Roosevelt himself now tacitly acknowledges. The new tax law, as he pointed out the other day, will yield an indicated return of $387,000,000 less than the estimate, and the receipts for the first nine months of the fiscal year indicate that other revenues will be $337,000,000 less than the estimate. This despite the "increased national prosperity," which was supposed to take care of everything.

In any case, the Cannon bill is an attempt to beat back on the road to financial sanity. It is a hard and rocky road. It is lined with sharpshooters. But it has got to be traveled, and Mr. Roosevelt has got to lead the way.

MASS SLAUGHTER IN SPAIN.

"A deliberate effort to use air power as an instrument of massacre and terrorism" is the description applied by a member of the British Parliament to the Spanish rebels' murderous destruction of Guernica, the ancient Basque capital. Certainly the previous annals of modern warfare offer nothing so shocking as this massacre. The fleet of rebel planes, furnished by Franco's Nazi allies, rained death upon the undefended town for more than three hours. Flyers used machine guns to shoot down fleeing civilians in the fields. More than 800 persons were killed, and fire set by incendiary bombs completed the devastation.

The attack was a deliberate effort at terrorism. Guernica is not a military point, and is miles from the battle line. A nearby arms factory and military barracks were not molested by the bombers. The barbarous slaughter was a matter of policy, an effort to aid the rebel drive on Bilbao by murdering non-combatants, thus theoretically producing panic behind the lines and undermining the morale of the Basque fighters. The same tactics are in use at Madrid, where rebel artillery almost daily rakes the city with shrapnel fire and kills scores of civilians in the hope of weakening the capital's defense.

Both sides have been guilty of revolting excesses, and have shown the world the full horror of what war means in a modern world of mechanized and aerial murder equipment. It would be misleading to paint the loyalists as guiltless, but the weight of the evidence is that they have confined their air raids almost wholly to military objectives. William F. Carney of the New York Times, a correspondent frequently described as favorable to the rebel cause, said, in writing of an air raid on Madrid in which 60 women and children were killed: "This is in contrast to the orders given by the Madrid Air Ministry that its air force must in no event bomb any rebel cities, but merely rebel airdromes and military positions, sparing innocent victims." The rebel raids, on the other hand, have time and again centered on humble villages, on workmen's quarters, on food lines, on congregations at mass, on hospitals.

The Basque provinces are cut off from the other loyalist parts of Spain. Capture of Bilbao would mean release of the rebels' Northern forces to reinforce the armies besieging Madrid. So terrorism is unleashed on the Biscay front, and, as the communiqué tersely puts it, "Guernica no longer exists."

THE GENERAL AND THE KING.
Everybody knows that London is counting on Americans to make the coronation a success from the tradesman's viewpoint. A peer of the realm, Lord Marley, blurted out the whole story not long ago, telling how prices were to be boosted sky high. Other Englishmen have said as much and have joined his lordship in urging us to cancel reservations, stay quietly at home and thus toll the avarice of the whole badly aitch-dropping crowd.

This well-intentioned counsel has apparently been spurned. Americans will be cheering in solid phalanxes, cost what it will. And it may be confidently predicted that they'll get a gorgeous run for their money—far more than the most rabid Anglomaniacs among them had reckoned on.

For Gen. Pershing will be there, magnificently. His regalia, designed by himself, as the regulations permit, will be an eye-filling costume. Knee-length coat and trousers fashioned of the blue fabric of a military yesterday; with braid and buttons of gold and oak-leaf decor, a swaggering sash of buff and a jeweled sash symbolic of that far-off "rendezvous with death." Such a gallant figure of a man for all his years, carrying easily his panoply of distinction, it is conceivable that he may run away with the show.

Of course, King George will also be among those present.

DEBUNKING THE "ALIEN MENACE."
Statistics are sometimes dull reading, but those presented in a reprint article on this page today deserve careful study for the thoroughness with which they demolish the alien bogey so often set up as a straw man by unreasoning patrioters and demagogic legislators. Mr. Shaughnessy, Acting Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, is perhaps the most authoritative source for information in this field. Like his predecessor, the late Col. Daniel McCormack, he takes a realistic view of the problem, uninfluenced by the hysteria with which it has been attended.

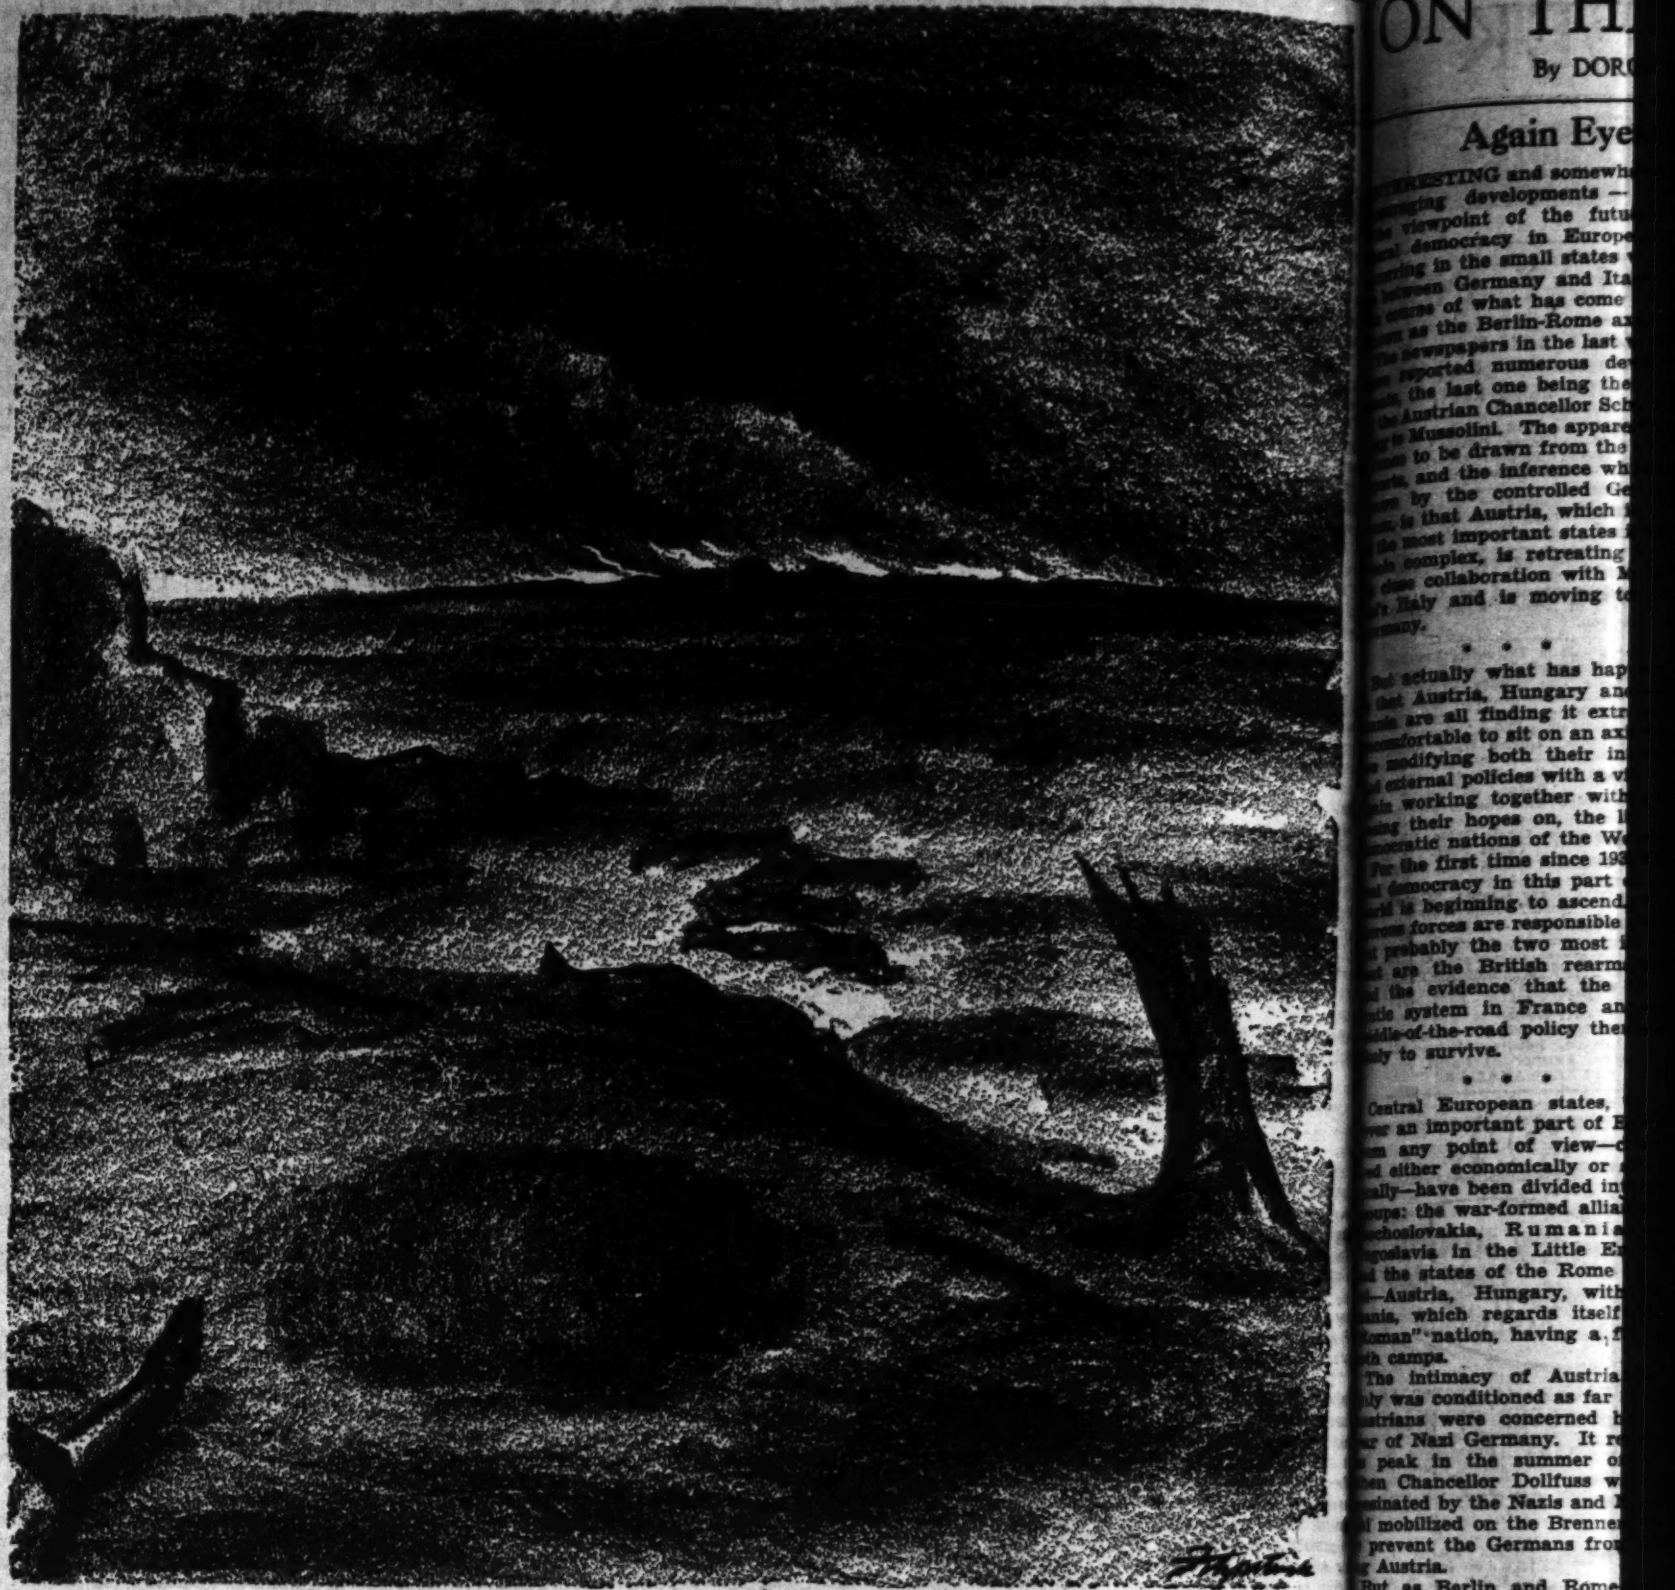

As Mr. Shaughnessy shows in his address, aliens are actually decreasing in number. Last year, for instance, for each new arrival, eight aliens were subtracted from the total count. An idea of how the situation is misrepresented may be gained from the proposal of a patriotic society last year to restore property by deporting 10,000,000 aliens, or almost 6,000,000 more than there are in the country! The problem is rapidly solving itself. No new laws are necessary, as the speaker implies, except provisions for tempering justice with mercy.

This was attempted by the Kerr-Coolidge bill, which failed of action in Congress last year. This would have made it possible to deport some 20,000 alien criminals, who remain in the country because of loopholes in the existing laws, and to grant discretion in cases where worthy members of communities, many with families, are subject to deportation because of technical and trifling violations of the immigration laws.

One of the most persistent alien-baiters in Congress, Representative Dies of Texas, introduced a bill early in the session that carried out the fantastic ideas of his group. This was subjected to bitter attacks before the House Committee on Immigration, and now has been drastically revised. The substitute measure contains most of the good features of the Kerr-Coolidge bill. It attains one of the major objectives sought by that bill with a provision granting discretion to the Secretary of Labor for the next four years in cases of deportable aliens with American wives or children, the so-called "hardship cases."

There is no occasion for such a furor as the alien question has produced. Under ordinary circumstances, the needed amendment would have been enacted without material disagreement. But because the subject has been taken up by self-seeking politicians and by organizations in need of a cause, an undue amount of controversy has been stirred. Mr. Shaughnessy has effectively debunked the pretensions of the alarmists.

Maybe housecleaning has something to do with the trailer case.

"GUERNICA NO LONGER EXISTS."

The Vanishing Alien

Figures disprove charges of "alien menace," official shows, for number of foreign-born in country is constantly decreasing; last year, for every new immigrant, eight others left, became citizens or died; number illegally here estimated at about 100,000; country needs new legislation, speaker says, only to correct certain injustices.

From an Address by Edward J. Shaughnessy, Acting Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization, Before National Council on Naturalization and Citizenship.

IN 1905, 1906, 1907, 1910, 1913 and 1914, we admitted to the United States more than a million aliens each year. Naturally, we had shortly thereafter a very large resident alien population. However, the picture has changed decidedly during the last decade. The 1920 census showed 7,430,899 aliens not naturalized residing in the United States. The 1930 census showed 6,284,613, a decrease of 1,146,286. This tremendous decrease during this decade, approximately 15 per cent, occurred in spite of the fact that during each of the 10 fiscal years from 1920 to 1929, inclusive, there migrated to the United States from a minimum of 279,978 to a maximum of 808,228 aliens. We now estimate that during the last seven fiscal years, 1930 to 1936, the alien population has further decreased by approximately 2,000,000 persons.

Let us analyze the elements which go to make a decrease in alien population. We find four: emigrations; naturalizations; derivative citizenship of minors through the naturalization of parents and wives through husbands, and deaths.

In 1930, 241,700 aliens were admitted to the United States. However, during the succeeding six years we find the following admissions: in 1931, 97,139; in 1932, 35,576; in 1933, a new low of 23,068; in 1934, 29,470; in 1935, 34,958; in 1936, 36,323. In other words, during the last seven years, we have admitted 498,539 aliens, as compared with 4,285,510 for the preceding 10 years. Stated differently, the average yearly immigration for the past seven years was 71,177, as compared with 429,551 for the preceding 10-year period. For the last six years of this seven-year period, the annual average dropped to 44,090.

During the last seven-year period, in which 498,539 aliens were admitted, 410,841 emigrated, or an excess of arrivals over departures of 87,697. During the preceding 10-year period, there was an excess of arrivals over departures of 3,012,780.

But there are other features to be considered: the naturalizations, derivative citizenships and deaths. Let me give you a few totals: For the 20-year period from 1917 to 1936, 6,340,901 aliens were recorded as immigrants; 1,977,455 as having departed; 3,175,116 were naturalized; an estimated 1,110,300 derived citizenship either through naturalization of the father or the husband; there was an estimated total of 2,464,301 deaths. Recapitulating, we find that during this 20-year period a total of 8,716,973 persons either left the country, became naturalized, derived citizenship through someone else's naturalization or died, as contrasted with 6,340,901 immigrants.

Last year, our figures show that for every new alien added to our population, there was a decrease of approximately eight aliens by one means or another. In 1936, the ratio was 8 1/2 to 1; in 1934, about 10 to 1; in 1933, about 14 to 1, and in 1932, about 11 to 1. These comparisons cannot but show the most skeptical that the alien population is rapidly decreasing.

There is one reservation that must be made. The statistics above cited do not account for the aliens who have entered the country illegally. There is no way of even estimating accurately how many aliens gained entry in an unlawful manner. Various officials and others have from time to time guessed that there are all the way from 100,000 to 4,000,000 aliens unlawfully here. The late Secretary William N. Doak estimated that there were not more than 100,000 aliens illegally in the country and subject to deportation; the late Commissioner McCormack, after a survey of the situation a year or two ago, reached the conclusion that this estimate was more nearly accurate than other estimates.

Why do we need any new legislation when we have a whole book of immigration laws? We need more law to give us authority, on the one hand, to deport many criminal aliens not now subject to deportation, and, on the other hand, to permit aliens of good character who are here in more or less technical violation of law to remain, particularly in cases where they have American citizen families and where deportation would amount to making public charges of these dependent relatives.

Many people have asked me to give them a brief idea of the substance of proposed legislation. In most instances, the citation of but one example has been sufficient to convince them of the necessity of a law which will supply the necessary balance now lacking in the immigration set-up.

I take the cases of aliens A and B. A is a person who has been in the United States for possibly 15 years and has spent a great proportion of that time in penal institutions. However, he was not sentenced within five years after his entry to imprisonment for a year or more for a crime involving moral turpitude, nor has he, during his 15-year period of residence, been sentenced on more than one occasion to a period of one year or more for crimes involving moral turpitude. He is, nevertheless, a confirmed criminal, a social menace and clearly should be deported. Yet, because of the extreme technicalities of existing law concerning the expulsion of criminals, he is immune from deportation.

Let us now take the case of B. B entered the United States in the latter part of 1924 as a non-immigrant international trader. As an international trader, it was necessary for him to conduct a business involving a preponderance of international trade. But in the course of time, the business developed in such a manner that he eventually found himself a domestic merchant. He, therefore, failed to maintain his status as a non-immigrant international trader and automatically became subject to deportation. He is a man of excellent character and has acquired an American citizen family dependent upon him.

I ask inquirers which one they would prefer to deport, A or B. They immediately say they would deport A and leave B here, and I tell them that under the law we must deport B and cannot deport A. This situation is ridiculous. The legislation we propose would correct this condition.

Dispelling the Red Mirage

From the New York Herald Tribune.

CHARLES P. TAFT'S warning that the danger is gained by "painting red networks of Communism across every evening sky, while spoken before the Daughters of the American Revolution, was addressed to those alarmist souls in this country who continue to see Communist conspiracies behind everything which they do not like. The motives of these writers are admirable. But their judgment is so governed by what they fear or dislike that it leads them into strange errors of deduction. Like those who imagine a "conspiracy" by business or by the "international bankers," they credit to a small and inadequately organized group powers far in excess of those which they possess. At the same time, they "viewers with alarm" show an astonishing lack of faith in the good sense and patriotism of the great mass of the American people.

That there is political capital to be made out of this sort of hysteria has long been evident. Representative Hamilton Fish has frequently capitalized the "Red scare" and that he might place himself in the forefront of the defenders of liberty. Certain persons have followed a similar policy. In Boston, the newly elected Governor of Massachusetts, Mr. Hurley, vetoed the repeal of the teachers' oath bill, a measure which was the product of the same kind of intolerance and lack of faith in the force of the American tradition as the cries of those who say the nation threatened by the Reds.

The tragedy in all this Red-baiting is that it is a form of emotionalism which stifles clear thinking. In fact, it serves as a shield to protect those who cry "Communist!" from the necessity of facing truth by the problems of the day. Their appeal is to fear and hatred, not to reason. As a result, their alarms serve simply to play into the hands of the radicals and to alienate those who, like themselves, are alarmed by the same crisis, but who, unlike themselves, believe that this should be solved by a calm appraisal of the facts before any appeal is made to the nation at large.

DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME.
From the Boston Evening Transcript.
THIRTY MILLION Americans live on daylight saving time between April and October. They are sure of their right to do so because here is a matter within the discretion of the states. The states in turn, as does New York, may leave the adoption of "summer time" to individual communities.

The 30,000,000 are a minority of the American people, but they furnish majorities for daylight saving where it obtains. What would happen were the control of the people's time centered in Washington? Would the majority whose clocks are not set ahead in April impose their will on the minority who want their "summer time"?

Excuses not without plausibility could be found for such a course. It might be said that confusion of times during the summer months interfered with commerce and was a burden upon it, thus giving Congress the right to act.

The right established, it might be urged that Congress should follow the dictates of the national majority, regardless of the wishes of the majorities in states or communities with daylight saving.

Fanciful? Perhaps. Yet stranger things may happen if there is to be further transfer of the national Government of that which has been regarded as belonging to the states. It is a prospect worth consideration.

INTERESTING and somewhat surprising developments in the viewpoint of the future of democracy in Europe are being seen in the small states of Germany and Italy. Again Eyes Look Westward INTERESTING and somewhat surprising developments— from the viewpoint of the future of democracy in Europe—are appearing in the small states which lie between Germany and Italy, in the course of what has come to be known as the Berlin-Rome axis.

The newspapers in the last weeks have reported numerous developments, the last one being the visit of the Austrian Chancellor Schuschnigg to Mussolini. The apparent intention is to draw from the news the inference which is being made by the controlled German press, that Austria, which is one of the most important states in the Balkan complex, is retreating from its collaboration with Mussolini and is moving toward democracy.

What actually has happened is that Austria, Hungary and Rumania are all finding it extremely uncomfortable to sit on an axis and are modifying both their internal and external policies with a view of joining together with, and saving their hopes on the liberal, democratic nations of the West.

For the first time since 1933, liberal democracy in this part of the world is beginning to ascend. National forces are responsible for it, and probably the two most important are the British rearmament and the evidence that the democratic system in France and the United States is moving toward survival.

Central European states, which have an important part of Europe from any point of view—considered either economically or strategically—have been divided into two groups: the war-formed alliance of Germany, Italy, Japan, Rumania, and Bulgaria in the Little Entente, and the states of the Rome protocol—Austria, Hungary, with Rumania, which regards itself as a "Roman" nation, having a foot in both camps.

The intimacy of Austria with Italy was conditioned as far as the Austrians were concerned by the war of 1914-18. It was a pact in the summer of 1934 when Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated by the Nazis and Mussolini mobilized on the Brenner Pass to prevent the Germans from taking Austria.

But as Berlin and Rome draw together, it is not for purposes of mutual collaboration, at least for purposes of mutual blackmail, these states are coming to realize that a perfectly critical game is being played with them which in no way agrees to their inner or outer ability.

Some time ago, Italy made a treaty with Yugoslavia which is not like the one which Hitler early in his regime, made with Poland. The deal shocked the Little Entente, because in making it Yugoslavia disregarded the distinct words of the Little Entente protocol which compels her to consult her allies before making any such agreement with an outside power. An attempt was made to smooth things out, but considerable distrust was awakened, particularly in Rumania.

Yugoslavia is the only Little Entente country which has not recognized the Soviet Government, and Czechoslovakia in particular wishes the members of the Little Entente to be on a decent footing with the Soviets, particularly Rumania, because Czechoslovakia depends upon Russian support in case of an attack from Germany, and can establish contact with Russia only via Rumania.

In Rumania, the pro-Nazi party of the Iron Guard has made so much disorder and trouble that a really organized resistance against it is beginning to form as people realize that they are merely the tools of Germany and Italy. The ousting of Prince Nicholas was an indication of the collapse of public patience. It was preceded by unification, at long last, of the strongly anti-Fascist Peasants' party, under the leadership of Mihalachi.

Titulescu, who was the perennial Foreign Minister of Rumania until he fell foul of the Nazi Iron Guard, and who has clung consistently to collaboration with Great Britain and France, is slowly recovering in St. Moritz, and his star is again in the ascendant. Rumor had it that Titulescu was poisoned, and rumor has it that his bills in an expensive sanatorium are being paid by his poisoners—a Balkanese story. But, at any rate, he is being constantly consulted on foreign policy. And an agreement between Russia and Rumania is on the way.

Hungary, too, played with Fascism until a couple of months ago, when a Nazi gesture was aborted and the Government realized that playing with fire was dangerous business. An anti-Fascist Government in Rumania, Hungary realizes, would be willing to give more liberal treatment to Magyar minorities, and give Hungary a reason for slowly abandoning ideas of territorial revision.

The Yugoslav-Italian treaty is not popular in Hungary. And what is popular is chance again to sell Hungarian agricultural products to Western nations who are able to pay with cash instead of with machine guns.

As for Austria, a close relation with Italy was never popular. And the defeat of Italian troops on the Spanish front reminded the Austrians again that even they could repulse the Italians in the World War—and the Austrians have no great idea of themselves as soldiers.

Schuschnigg postponed his visit to Italy after the debacle in Spain, and now it is announced that the Austrian Foreign Minister will use the occasion of the coronation, not only to visit England, but also to stop in Paris. It will be the first official visit of an Austrian to Paris since 1934.

These small Central European countries are always a barometer for Europe. That they are beginning to draw away from both Rome and Berlin, approach each other, and turn their eyes toward the West is not without significance.

NOTED ACTOR DEAD

WILLIAM GILLETTE, VETERAN ACTOR, DIES

Noted Sherlock Holmes of Stage Succumbs at Hartford, Conn.—81 Years Old.

By the Associated Press.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 29.—William Gillette, veteran actor, died today of a pulmonary hemorrhage. He was 81 years old.

His physicians said a severe cold had undermined his health. He was taken to the Hartford hospital from his Hadlyme home several weeks ago.

He was known best to theatergoers as the author and star of "Sherlock Holmes," a play which took for its theme from the adventures of Conan Doyle's master detective. Another of his productions was "Secret Service."

In the winter of 1935-36, he appeared in New York and other Eastern cities in a revival of "Three Wise Fools," and was acclaimed by theater audiences. At that time in a certain speech in Hartford, Gillette said he hoped to return again in another revival after "another ten years."

His illness started last fall with a cold while he was at his showplace home in Hadlyme, where he had spent many years in virtual seclusion. He was taken to the hospital for a "rest" on order of his physician. He later was forced to return to the hospital.

For some time his condition was reported as "not serious," although at least one blood transfusion was given "to help him rebuild his strength."

With Ben De Bar in St. Louis.

Son of a former United States Senator, the actor showed histrionic ability when as a boy he produced "plays" in the attic of his home in Hartford. His father, Francis Gillette, later a candidate for Governor, tried to discourage the boy, but William, when 13, having graduated from high school, entered the University of New York, where he obtained a place as a utility man in a stock company formed by Ben De Bar which later opened in New Orleans. He received no salary but remained long enough to get some knowledge of stagecraft.

He went home and remained in Hartford several months until Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) neighbor, obtained an engagement for him at the Globe Theater in Boston. He made his first appearance as Gumm, in "Paint Heart Ne'er Won Fair Lady," on Sept. 15, 1875. His rise thereafter was rapid. Appearing next in "The Gilded Age" with John T. Raymond, he followed in Shakespearean parts and a wide range of modern plays, his chief success being as Prince Florian in "Broken Hearts." Two seasons with the McCauley Stock Company in Cincinnati and Louisville followed during which the young actor was evolving his first play called "The Professor," which with the author in the title role, had its premiere at the Madison Square Theater, New York, June 1, 1881. It ran nearly a year.

Other plays and parts. Meanwhile he backed Frank Hodgson Burnett in writing "Esmeralda," and appeared in it as well as in "The Young Mrs. Winthrop." In 1884 he put on his own adaptation of Von Moser's "Der Bibliothekar," at the Comedy Theater in New York and subsequently "The Private Secretary." His next play, "Held by the Enemy," a great success, was produced in Brooklyn in 1886. Later he dramatized "Rider Haggard's 'She,' and also played in "All the Comforts of Home" (1890), "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" (1891) and "Ninety Days" (1892).

Ill health causing his temporary retirement, while convalescing in North Carolina, he wrote "Secret Service," which was produced in Philadelphia in 1895. This, with "Rider Haggard's 'She,' and also played in "All the Comforts of Home" (1890), "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" (1891) and "Ninety Days" (1892).

Other productions he wrote or in which he appeared were: "Too Much Johnson," "Because She Loved Him So," "Clarice," "The Admirable Crichton," "A Maid of All Work," "The Red Owl," "Settled Out of Court," "A Legal Wreck," "Samson," "The Painful Predicament of Sherlock Holmes," "The Robbery," "Electricity," "Among Thieves," and "That Little Affair at Boyd's."

The actor was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters and of the Players', the Lambs' and the Dramatists' clubs. He was unmarried.

WILLIAM GILLETTE. CHURCH FOREIGN MISSIONS SAID TO PROMOTE PEACE

Mrs. Charles H. Sears in Address at Central District Baptist Convention.

Church foreign missions promote world peace because they bring Christianity into international relations, Mrs. Charles H. Sears of New York, executive vice-president of the Women's American Baptist Foreign and Home Mission Societies of the Northern Baptist Convention, said yesterday in an address before the Central District convention of the organization at Third Baptist Church.

Mrs. Sears discussed the decline in church support of foreign missions, pointing out that younger members who are active in peace and social movements regard the missionary program as old-fashioned. "Christian internationalism is the only hope for lasting world peace," she said.

In the keynote address of the convention, Mrs. W. H. Dorrance of Detroit, Michigan State president of the organization, told the delegates that the repeal of prohibition was a warning that reformers must work for the success of a new program after its adoption.

Delegates from Missouri, Illinois and Michigan are attending the convention. The meeting ends today.

NORMAN HAPGOOD DIES; EDITOR, AUTHOR

End Comes After Operation, 69 Years Old; Friend of Alfred E. Smith.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Norman Hapgood, author and editor and political associate of Alfred E. Smith, died today following an operation. He was 69 years old.

He had been ill for several weeks. From a dramatic critic's job on the old New York Commercial Advertiser—a few years after his graduation from Harvard in 1893—he became one of the best known magazine editors in the country. He was editor of Collier's Weekly from 1903 until he went with Harper's Weekly in 1913 as editor. He was with Hearst's International Magazine from 1923 until 1925.

Long a student of politics and government, he was a supporter of Woodrow Wilson, who made him Minister to Denmark in February, 1919.

When Smith became Governor of New York, Mr. Hapgood joined his close circle of advisers and was a frequent conferee on social, economic and political matters. With the late Henry Moskowitz—who was the husband of Mrs. Belle Moskowitz, the former Governor's political secretary for many years—Mr. Hapgood chronicled the life of Smith in the book "Up From City Streets."

Smith Leader at Convention. He was one of the earliest supporters of Smith for the Democratic nomination for President, and was a leader of the Smith forces in the Madison Square Garden convention in 1924, which ended in the nomination of John W. Davis, after the deadlock between Smith and William G. McAdoo. He urged the nomination of Smith again in 1928.

Like Henry Moskowitz, Mr. Hapgood became politically estranged from Smith in later years.

With his brother, William, he was owner of the Columbia Conserv Co. in Indianapolis, which years ago was turned over to the employees to operate and own on a co-operative basis. At his death he was editor of the Christian Register, a Unitarian Church periodical, "Changing Years" in 1930.

As a biographer he wrote books on the lives of Washington, Lincoln and Webster. One of his latest work, published in 1930, was "The Changing Years," a study of the changes in the social-economic conception of government.

Mr. Hapgood, the son of Charles Hapgood, was born in Chicago. His first wife, whom he married in 1896, was the former Emilie Bigelow. In 1916 he was married a second time to the former Elizabeth K. Reynolds.

There are three children surviving by the second marriage, Elizabeth, Norman Jr. and Ten Eyck, all of New York. Mrs. Ruth Tyng, a daughter by his first marriage, which ended in divorce, lives in Zurich, Switzerland. Two brothers survive—Eutychus Hapgood, the author, whose home is in Provincetown, Mass., and William Hapgood, retired business man of Indianapolis.

The funeral services will be Saturday afternoon at All Souls Church. Cremation will follow.

HALF OF STUDIO UNIT IDLE EVEN AT BUSIEST PERIODS

Efficiency Experts Unable to Keep Everybody Working and Out of Each Other's Way.
HOLLYWOOD, Cal., April 29.—Half the people of a motion picture set always appear to be loafing, but it's all in the interest of efficiency. Picture making is a double-jointed business and when part of the troupe is at work, there's nothing for the remainder to do but relax. Take a look at a set just before filming of a scene gets under way; there is a flurry of excitement as cameramen and electricians make final adjustments. Prop men are checking vases and chairs and pictures. Meanwhile, there is a rehearsal of the players who, very likely, have spent the last hour talking or reading or knitting—while the new camera set-up was being made.

Off to one side is a group of idlers. It is composed of the make-up man, the hair dresser, the wardrobe woman, the stand-ins, the still photographer.

Now the rehearsal is ended and several more join the group of idlers. They are the floor electricians and they can do nothing more until the scene is completed. After the "take," the still man swings into action, to photograph the scene just made.

The actors then leave the set while the electrical crew and "grips," or handymen, shift lights and cameras and furniture for the next scene. Loafing at this time, too, is the sound crew.

And so it goes on every set. Someone is always forced into temporary idleness, owing to methods peculiar to the great business of fashioning entertainment. Efficiency experts have tried to keep everybody busy—and some even suggested having one person perform two tasks—but one and all they have either failed miserably or quit in despair.

DARN MEN, ANYWAY! MY ANKLES DO LOOK BAD—BUT IT'S THESE SOAP-WASHED STOCKINGS. THEY'RE ALL COTTONY-LOOKING.

IT'ELL YOU SHE'S A SWELL GIRL!
YES, BUT LOOK AT HER ANKLES!
LOOK HERE, JOAN, WHY NOT STOP COMPLAINING ABOUT THE WAY YOUR LEGS LOOK, AND WASH YOUR STOCKINGS IN DREFT LIKE I DO?
DREFT? YOU MEAN THAT NEW FINE FABRIC SUDS EVERYBODY'S TALKING ABOUT?

YES, IT'S MARVELOUS! IT ACTUALLY MAKES YOUR STOCKINGS SEEM NEW AGAIN—TAKES AWAY THAT 'COTTONY' LOOK.
LET'S GET SOME NOW, I'LL TRY IT TONIGHT.

HERE YOU ARE, MISS JOAN. I HOPE YOU'RE GOING TO MAKE THE DREFT TEST.
COME ON HOME AND I'LL SHOW YOU.

ISN'T IT WONDERFUL? THIS DREFT—WASHED STOCKINGS LOOKS SHINIER, BRIGHTER. THE OTHER SEEMS GRAY AND DOWDY BY COMPARISON.

THE DREFT TEST? WHAT'S THAT?

Take a pair of "clean" soap-washed stockings from your drawer. Wash just one of them in Drest. Then compare. The Drest washed stocking will look "younger" and richer. The other will seem old, gray and "cottony looking" in comparison.

5 MUCH LATER
HELLO, JOAN. I THOUGHT THAT WAS YOU! I'D KNOW YOU ANYWHERE BY THOSE TRIM LITTLE ANKLES!
THANK YOU DREFT!

AMAZING NEW SUDS GIVES STOCKINGS 50% TO 100% LONGER WEAR, SAY WOMEN

Drest actually makes your fine things seem newer... "younger" ... better looking. Longer lasting, too, say women.

Here's what Miss Florence Jones of 929 Michigan Avenue, Evanston, Illinois, says: "I noticed that my silk stockings not only looked richer, but lasted longer when I washed them in Drest. I found they lasted about twice as long without getting runs, as when I washed them in soap flakes."

Miss Louise Allison, 2324 Sheffield Ave. Chicago, says: "My stockings lasted more than half as long again when washed in Drest."

Drest is different. When you first use this remarkable new suds, look for these three things:

1. Drest makes suds as easily in hard as in soft water—five times more suds than any soap flakes in hardest water.
2. It never forms soap scum—that unpleasant "ring around the washbasin."
3. It instantly and completely dissolves in cool water, the right temperature for washing delicate fabrics... leaves no annoying particles to catch in garments.

Anything safe in water is safe in Drest. Ask your dealer for Drest today! Procter & Gamble.

DOROTHY PARKER ON WRITING FOR THE FILMS

Humorist Says It's a "Cross Word Puzzle" Task, With Everybody at It.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, April 29.—In an apartment overlooking the East River, Dorothy Parker and her husband, Alan Campbell, one afternoon last week discussed their recent sojourn in Hollywood. They had a two-year stretch in sunny California, longer than they hope it will ever have to be again, "at one sitting." They admitted that it was a sordid time which had drawn them there, and like the Lorelei, might win them back again.

At the moment, aside from their apartment here, they occupy a country place in Pennsylvania, near New Hope—100 acres with which they have no idea what to do. During week-ends they are engaged in what they describe as plumber conferences, while vainly endeavoring to shoot the chickens outdoors. They also travel with eight dogs of various breeds.

City Dogs Exclusively.
"But the dogs don't like the country," Miss Parker said. "They won't even go out on the porch. It seems to confuse them."

Miss Parker is small and slender, with black hair in a long, straight bob. She and her husband did the adaptation for "A Star Is Born," now being released. Miss Parker has never been to the Music Hall, but intends to go to see her picture there. She doesn't attend the cinema much, but goes to the theater a good deal—she used to be a critic. She hopes to finish a book of short stories soon. "Not So Deep as a Well" is her last book of verse. She published "Enough Rope" in 1927, "Sunset Gun" in 1928, and her first book of prose in 1930, "Laments for the Living," containing 18 short stories.

The social point of view interests Miss Parker. That is one reason she finds writing for pictures so disappointing. With all the exciting social changes going on in the world today, she said, film producers go on using the same old stories.

In "A Star Is Born," she related, Fredric March was supposed to swim out to sea toward the sunset. What worried the producers chiefly was that March wear a bathing suit with a top to meet the specifications of the censors.

"The trouble with the movies is that everybody in Hollywood thinks he can write, including the producers," she said. "I don't believe the films have anything to do with writing except in a cross-word puzzle kind of way. Writing a script is drawing together a lot of odds and ends which can be worked into a moving picture."

She finds a Fear There.
The whole industry is founded on fear, Miss Parker regrets to say, and what it is scared of she doesn't know. If a picture only makes a million dollars instead of two million, teeth chatter. The whole business of Hollywood she finds like a girl's boarding school, hampered by petty jealousies, lack of confidence and fretfulness.

"Even the money is false, for when you come home you find it has melted away like compressed snow," she said.

She said independent producers with integrity, original ideas and means to carry them out achieved as little because of the limited distribution their product gets.

LEFTOVERS PROVIDE MANY TASTY DISHES
Clever Cook Devises Many Ways of Disposing of Icebox Remnants.

For the special occasion, it is next to impossible to have a roast of the exact size needed. There must always be plenty for second helpings, and there must always be a certain leeway for the carver.
And besides, a good-sized roast lends an air of distinction and a suggestion of plenty, which a small roast never can. Sometimes by only reheating them in a sauce of one kind or another. There is, however, one thing to remember in preparing leftovers. They have already been cooked, so the less they are cooked the second time, the better.

If there are both meat and vegetables among the leftovers you are lucky because you can have a very delicious hash that may be colorful as well as economical. If a generous amount of diced meat is used with plenty of meat gravy as seasoning the dish will be satisfying.

Recipes for leftovers are practically useless because, unless planned, they are never the same.
For hash it is a good idea to use vegetables and meat in equal proportion. As to vegetables, let your conscience be your guide. Carrots are good, and so are peas and potatoes, turnips, beans, onions, whole kernel corn are a few of the combinations.

Hash Is Popular.
Any kind of meat may be used in hash or stew. Corned beef, roast beef, lamb, are particularly good. Cut the meat into dice, one-fourth to one-half-inch in size, just like the vegetables. Combine meat and vegetables, season with salt and pepper and moisten with leftover gravy. If there is no gravy use a well-seasoned cream sauce. Melt bacon drippings, spread the hash evenly over the frying pan and let it cook slowly until a brown crust is formed in the bottom and the rest is heated through. This takes about 15 or 20 minutes. Loosen the hash from the pan, fold it over and turn out on a hot platter.

Remnant Stew.
The last remnants of the refrigerator are not to be despised, for they can be transformed into a tasty concoction. This is not a stew, but a casserole dish, and the liquid is only leftover gravy.
Chop leftover meat and add leftover vegetables. Season with a little onion juice and spices depending on the kind of meat and vegetables. Curry powder is good with beef and so is chili and tomatoes. Line a casserole or baking dish which has been greased, with cooked rice. Put meat and vegetables in center and pour over gravy. If there is no gravy use cream soup. Sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until heated through.

Barbecued Beef Slices.
Sliced roast beef.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons flour.
One-fourth cup tomato ketchup.
One-half cup water.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
One tablespoon vinegar.
One tablespoon brown sugar.
Melt butter and blend flour with
it. Mix with ketchup, mustard, vinegar, brown sugar and water.
Bring to the boiling point. Reheat sliced beef in this sauce and serve at once.

Spinach Loaf
Two cups cooked spinach.
Two cups canned tomatoes.
One cup cottage cheese.
Two eggs.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two tablespoons chopped onion.
One teaspoon salt.
Melt butter, blend in flour, stirring until smooth. Add chopped onion and well-drained tomatoes;
cook until slightly thickened. Combine all ingredients and mix well.
Bake in oiled baking dish at 325 degrees for 20 minutes. Be sure the spinach and tomatoes are drained of all juice. This is especially attractive cooked in a ring mold. A mushroom sauce or tomato sauce served over loaf is delicious.

Rhubarb and Apple Compote
One pound rhubarb.
Four tart, medium-sized apples.
Peel of one-half lemon.
One and one-half cups water.
One and one-fourth cups sugar.
Clean the rhubarb and cut it into one-inch pieces. Peel and core the apples, cutting each quarter into fourths. Dissolve the sugar in the water, add the other ingredients, and cook gently for 15 to 20 minutes. Chill and serve.

PRE-SCHOOL CHILD NEEDS PROPER FOOD

Proper Growth and Maintenance of Body Possible Only With Proper Diet.

Someone has said that the pre-school child is the forgotten child, from the standpoint of proper food. During his babyhood and his school years great care is taken to see that he gets the right food but beginning with the age of three, when he is neither the one nor the other, he is apt to be neglected.

As the child grows his bones become longer, his muscles increase in size and every part of his body advances toward its own maturity. Materials needed for this growth must be supplied in his daily food or it cannot take place.

Some foods are necessary for the building of tissue, others yield energy and still others are body regulators. Milk serves all three purposes while supplying only energy. The substances necessary to the body are protein, fat, carbohydrate, minerals and vitamins and water.

Protein Important.

Protein is an important part of living tissue. There are many kinds present in the foods that are eaten. Some will maintain the body and promote its growth. It is essential, in choosing foods for children, to select those proteins which maintain the body and promote its growth. Milk, cheese, eggs, meat and fish are important since they are rich in protein. Some grains such as oats and wheat, some vegetables such as peas and beans contain tissue-building proteins but they cannot substitute completely for those mentioned above. The amount of protein in one egg and one quart of milk or its equivalent in canned milk, together with a well-chosen diet fulfill the protein requirements of the pre-school child.

Fat is the most concentrated form of energy-giving food which the body uses. Some fats are more valuable than others because of the vitamins which they carry in solution. Butter which contains vitamin A and cod liver oil which contains both A and D are most notable. Too much fat in the diet is undesirable because it upsets the normal digestion, causes loss of appetite and nausea and influences the absorption of calcium. Whole milk contains cream which is one of the valuable fats for children. Milk from which the cream has been removed has very little food value for the growing child.

Energy Giving Foods.

Potatoes, rice, flour and sugar are some of the carbohydrates which have a place in the child's diet. They are also some of the cheapest energy giving foods. One-half the energy required by the body may be supplied by carbohydrates and if the remainder of the food is chosen wisely the child will still have a well-balanced diet. Vegetables and fruits are classed as carbohydrates because they contain either starch or sugar, but they are indispensable because they contain minerals and vitamins. Since very young children usually have bread or cereal for breakfast and bread in some form for their supper, it is wise to see that the midday meal includes a relatively large amount of vegetables which will supply vitamins and minerals.

A number of minerals are needed if the body is to maintain its balance. The blood maintains its neutrality, the heart its regular beat and nerves and muscles retain their "tone" through the presence of phosphorus, calcium, magnesium, sodium and potassium in the tissues and fluids. It cannot be said that one of these is more important than another since each is essential to life, but some are needed in greater quantities.

Calcium, or lime, is important to the body. Malformation of bones and thinness of skull bones may result from insufficient quantities of calcium in the daily diet. Calcium maintains the bones and teeth, plays an important part in the beating of the heart and is essential to the nerves. Growing children need calcium in abundance since their bones are growing and their teeth erupting. Experiments have shown that growing boys and girls need at least one quart of milk per day. This amount, supplemented by a well-chosen diet, will supply enough calcium and phosphorus. In the light of present day knowledge it is safe to say that no child should have less than a pint of milk per day for his body needs.

Many Sources of Iron.

Iron is an important constituent of the body because it must be present to make hemoglobin, which is the substance in the red blood cells which enables them to unite with oxygen and carry it to every tissue of the body. Egg yolks, liver, dried beans and peas, green vegetables, whole grain cereals and certain fruits are regarded as valuable sources of iron.

Vitamins occur in natural foods and are necessary for health and to protect the body against disease. Vitamin A, present in butter, cream, milk, eggs, green and yellow vegetables and cod liver oil, makes it possible for the body to resist infections. B, found in whole grain cereals, vegetables, milk, fruits and nuts, must be included in the diet for normal body growth and proper functioning. Vitamin C is present in citrus fruits, tomatoes, raw cabbage and lettuce, vegetables and fruits. Lack of this vitamin caused scurvy in the early eighteenth cen-

SAUCE FOR COCKTAIL HELPS MAKE FIRST COURSE A COMPLETE SUCCESS

A pretty as a bouquet of flowers, baby carrots, tender beets, emerald green string beans, and crisp diced celery are combined with rosy shrimp and served in dainty cocktail glasses. Gay and colorful to look at, the vegetable cocktail is a welcome change from the usual fruit cocktail, and the new grapefruit sauce tops it off to perfection.

Grapefruit Sauce.

Mix together two teaspoons grated horseradish, three tablespoons catsup, four tablespoons grapefruit juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-eighth teaspoon tobacco sauce. Blend all ingredients thoroughly and chill well. Serve the vegetable cocktail tray cold with a slice of lemon if you wish.

ICE CREAM RATES HIGH IN DESSERT CLASS

No Matter What the Method This Warm Weather Dish Is Always Popular.

American lads and lassies may fail to remember even important dates in their history books, but tell them the date on which ice cream was invented and that date will never be forgotten. The year 1774 was the blessed occasion on which the chef of the Duc de Chartres suddenly appeared with a dish of newly invented ice cream.

Boys and girls in this year of grace are several times blessed in the matter of ice cream. For never was ice cream more easily obtained or better than it is now. Good ice cream can be bought, and it can be made at home—in a freezer, or in the freezing tray of an automatic refrigerator.

Parents now look upon ice cream with a friendly eye. No longer is it an occasional treat for the celebration of high days, holidays and bonfire nights. Ice cream is now accepted as one of the staple articles of nourishment, side by side with the less alluring and not so exciting milk puddings, spinach and carrots.

Here are the basic recipes for making ice cream at home in a simple, economical way, one recipe for freezer ice cream—the other recipe for automatic refrigerator ice cream. An endless procession of variations can be made with these simple recipes—none more popular than fresh strawberry ice cream.

Freezer Ice Cream.
One quart milk.
One package ice cream powder (vanilla, strawberry, lemon, maple or chocolate flavor).

Add milk very gradually to ice cream powder, stirring until dissolved. Pour into freezer can; place in freezer and pack mixture of cracked ice and salt around can (use eight parts ice to one part salt). Turn slowly for three minutes, then rapidly and continuously until frozen. Makes one and one-half quarts ice cream.

Any of the following may be substituted for milk in this recipe: One quart rich milk or light cream, one cup cream and three cups milk, or two cups evaporated milk and two cups milk or water.

With chocolate ice cream powder, add three-quarters cup sugar. Automatic Refrigerator Ice Cream. (Tray method.)

One-half package (scant one-third cup) ice cream powder (vanilla, strawberry, lemon, maple or chocolate flavor).

Two tablespoons sugar.
One cup milk.
One cup cream, whipped.

Combine ice cream powder and sugar. Add milk very gradually, stirring until dissolved. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator, setting control for lowest freezing temperature. Stir when frozen one-quarter inch thick on sides and twice more at 20-minute intervals. Freezing time: About three hours. Makes about three-quarters quart ice cream.

With chocolate ice cream powder, use one-half package (scant one-half cup) and four tablespoons sugar.

For about one and one-half quarts ice cream, double recipe above, using full contents of package. Freeze in one or two trays three to six hours, depending upon amount of cream in trays and freezing speed of refrigerator.

Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream. (Freezer method.)
Two cups crushed strawberries.
One-half cup sugar.
Two cups milk.
One cup heavy cream.
One package strawberry ice cream powder.

Combine crushed berries and sugar and let stand. Add milk and cream very gradually to ice cream powder, stirring until dissolved. Pour into freezer can. Freeze as for freezer ice cream. When ice cream mixture is thick but not hard, add berries and continue freezing. Makes about one and three-quarters quarts.

Fresh Strawberry Ice Cream. (Tray method.)
One cup crushed strawberries.
Four tablespoons sugar.
One cup milk.
One-half package (scant one-third cup) strawberry ice cream powder.
One cup cream, whipped.

Combine crushed strawberries and sugar. Add milk very gradually to ice cream powder, stirring until dissolved. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into tray. Freeze as for automatic refrigerator ice cream, adding berries during second stirring. Makes about one quart.

ASPARAGUS PATTIES
Two cups mashed cooked asparagus.
One cup grated dry bread crumbs.
Four tablespoons grated parmesan cheese.

Two teaspoons chopped parsley.
One-fourth teaspoon pepper.
Five eggs well beaten.

Cook asparagus in salted water until very soft. Drain and mash with fork or potato masher. Measure two cups. Place in bowl and add other ingredients, eggs last. Mix well. Use heavy skillet for frying, filling it about one-half inch with oil. Drop mixture by tablespoonfuls into hot fat. Fry until golden brown. Yields about 24 patties.

VERSATILE ENGLISH MUFFIN
MAY BE SERVED AT BREAKFAST OR TEA

English muffins are most versatile. They may be served with lots of melted butter right off the griddle for breakfast or they may be reheated and served for luncheon or tea.

English Muffins.
One-half cup scalded milk.
One cup water.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon sugar.
One yeast cake.
One tablespoon water.
Three tablespoons shortening.
Four to five cups general purpose flour.
Heat the milk in a saucepan. Cool. When milk is lukewarm, add water, salt, sugar, yeast, dissolved in the one tablespoon of water, and two cups of the flour. Beat well. Let rise until double in bulk (temperature 85 degrees, about one hour). Add shortening (softened) and remaining flour. Beat and knead well. Let rise until double in bulk (about 50 minutes). Roll about one-quarter inch thick and cut. Let rise one hour (must be very light). Preheat the griddle. Place muffins on slightly greased griddle, four at a time. Turn frequently. Fry about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve hot or reheated, as desired. Makes four dozen muffins.

EGGS ABUNDANT AT THIS SEASON OF YEAR

This Important Part of Dietary Backbone May Be Extended With Little Extra Work.

During these spring months the hens of the poultry family are busily working overtime. They are so generous with their egg gifts during this period that it is estimated that they lay more than half the annual egg crop in these four spring months (March, April, May, June). This great abundance means attractive egg prices. To buy this choice food package at a few cents a piece is a bargain indeed. But whatever the price there are few foods which have more real nutritive merit for the money investment. The nutrition expert, the dietitian, the doctor, the foods teacher say with one accord—eggs and milk—milk and eggs for dietary backbone.

More Vitamin A.
Right now egg dishes of all sorts may take on an especially attractive color. Just as the human being craves certain fresh food which makes their entrance in the spring, so the hen craves green things. Her satisfaction of this desire shows itself up in deeper yellow yolks. Such eggs will be richer in vitamin A, although the lack of color does not mean necessarily a lack of this vitamin. If the hen is not fed greens, cod liver oil in her diet will make the yolk rich in A and D but leave the yolk pale in color.

Dishes in which the egg is extended by the addition of other material for flavor, for texture, or for other good reasons will still maintain an attractive color. One that is particularly good and well recommended for the cook and the diner equally is called Never-Fail Omelet. This one can afford to wait a few minutes if necessary before serving. The soft bread crumbs do the trick. For two people use:

Never-Fail Omelet.
One-fourth cup soft bread crumbs.
One-fourth cup milk.
Two eggs separated.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Speck pepper.
One-half tablespoon butter.
Soak the bread crumbs in milk. Add to beaten yolks. Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff. Meanwhile melt butter in an eight-inch to nine-inch skillet or omelet pan. Fold whites with yolk mixture and pour mixture into the moderately hot pan. Cook slowly until this mixture is fluffy throughout and delicately browned underneath. Fold and serve on a warmed platter. The surface may be dried if desired by placing for a few seconds under the broiler before folding.
And who could resist crunchy scrambled eggs that won't water if it must stand for a few minutes waiting for meal laggards? Then try it this way:

Scrambled Eggs With Toasted Croutons.
Two tablespoons fat.
One cup very small croutons.
Four eggs well beaten.
One-half cup milk.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Speck pepper if desired.
Melt fat, add croutons and brown or toast evenly. Stir occasionally. Add milk and seasoning to beaten eggs. Pour over croutons, scramble slowly until creamy and flaky. Four servings.

Mushroom Stuffed Eggs.
Four hard cooked eggs.
Four mushrooms peeled and chopped.
One teaspoon pimiento, chopped.
Two tablespoons cream.
One-half cup soft bread crumbs.
Salt and pepper.
Cut the eggs in half crosswise and remove yolks. Mix the yolks with the mushrooms, pimiento, cream, crumbs and seasonings and heat until quite hot. Stuff eggs and place the halves on toast. Cover with cheese sauce and place in oven. Heat until sauce bubbles and serve at once.

HAM PATTIES
Two cups cooked ham, chopped.
Two eggs, beaten.
One-third cup dry bread crumbs.
One teaspoon prepared mustard.
One-fourth cup cooking fat.
Six slices canned pineapple.
One-fourth cup dark corn syrup.
Pinch of powdered cloves.
Three boiled sweet potatoes.
One cup pineapple juice.
Combine the ham, eggs, bread crumbs and mustard. Shape into six patties. Heat one-quarter cup of cooking fat in a skillet and, when hot, slide in the pineapple slices, cooking until brown on both sides. Drain out the slices and thoroughly brown the ham patties in the same way. Now place the pineapple slices in a baking dish or another skillet and deposit a ham patty on each side. Cut the cooked sweet potatoes in lengthwise slices and place them in the first skillet, pouring over them the corn syrup. Dust with powdered cloves and fry until brown and glazed. Place these in the second skillet around the ham patties and over all pour the cup of pineapple juice. Heat thoroughly in a moderate oven and serve on a large hot platter.

Rolls Sandwiches.
Checkerboard and rolled sandwiches are easy to cut and serve after being well chilled in your refrigerator. Use day-old bread, and spread with highly seasoned and well-softened butter. Wrap in waxed paper and chill.

MOLDED SALAD IS ANSWER TO PARTY FOOD QUESTION

Now that bridge parties and luncheons are in order once more the question of food and what to serve at these functions becomes a general one. A molded salad combination is an excellent answer.

Tuna Salad in Vegetable Ring.
One cup vegetable broth.
One cup strained tomato juice.
One-fourth cup cider vinegar.
One small onion.
One stalk celery.
One and one-half teaspoons sugar.
One tablespoon chopped parsley.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Bit of bay leaf pepper.
Two tablespoons plain gelatine.
One 7-ounce can tuna fish.
Coarsely chop onion and celery and place in saucepan with all ingredients except gelatine and tuna. Bring to a boil and simmer gently three minutes. Strain and pour over gelatine. Stir till dissolved.

Turn into ring mold which has been rinsed with cold water. When cold and firm, unmold. Flake tuna, add one cup chopped celery and mayonnaise to moisten and pile in center of ring, on lettuce leaves. Serve more mayonnaise with each helping.

Vegetable Salad.
Remove eight crisp leaves from two heads of lettuce, then cut heads into fourths. Arrange the leaves on salad plates and in each place a section of lettuce. Around the edge of each section of lettuce arrange two ripe olives, whole, two quarters cooked egg, four sections of tomato and a celery heart or celery curl. Garnish top with several shreds of pimiento and pepper crispbread. Serve a small bowl of both French dressing and mayonnaise, letting each person select his own dressing.

HONEY PLAYS PART IN DELICIOUS BREADS

This Natural Sweetening Keeps Them Moist and Palatable for Weeks.

Honey has played a prominent part in the diet of all races of men. No matter where one goes one will find honey used in some form or other. Honey is sugar in a reduced form and consequently it is more satisfying than other forms of sugar.

As a liquid sweet it blends with many ingredients. The practice of drizzling honey over fruit that is baking is a tasty one since it gives the fruit a delicious flavor.

Extracted or strained honey is liquid honey obtained by uncapping the combs and forcing the honey from the cells. It differs from comb honey only in the absence of the comb. Honey which has become granular may be liquefied by placing it over hot water. Care must be taken because honey scorches easily.

Cakes and breads made with honey should be aged. Honey has a moisture retention quality which keeps them moist and palatable for weeks.

Orange Nut Bread.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One cup honey.
One egg.
One and one-half teaspoons grated orange rind.
Three-fourths cup orange juice.
Two and one-half cups flour.
Two and one-half teaspoons baking powder.

One-half teaspoon soda.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Three-fourths cup chopped nuts.
Cream the honey and fat; add the beaten egg, add orange rind. Sift the dry ingredients and add alternately with orange juice. Add chopped nuts. Bake at 325 degrees for one hour and 10 minutes.

Honey Date Nut Bread.
One cup dates.
One cup boiling water.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One cup honey.
One egg.
One and one-half cups flour.
One cup nuts.
One-fourth teaspoon salt.
Two teaspoons baking powder.

Cut dates in small pieces. Cook in the water until they are done. Mix until thick. Cool. Cream honey and shortening. Add beaten egg and date mixture and nuts. Sift together dry ingredients and add. Bake in moderate oven 325 degrees for one hour and 20 minutes.

Fig Bread.
One-half cup figs.
One-half cup raisins.
Two tablespoons shortening.
One cup honey.
One egg.
Two and one-half cups flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Three-fourths cup sweet milk.
One-fourth cup sour milk.
One-half teaspoon soda.
One cup nuts.

Cut raisins and figs in small pieces. Cream together shortening and add honey. Add beaten egg. Sift dry ingredients together. Reserve a little to flour, fruit and nuts. Add alternately with milk. Add nuts and fruit. Bake in moderate oven at 325 degrees for one hour and 10 minutes.

Besides these bread recipes you will be pleased to try this delicious honey salad dressing. By following the suggested variations, this dressing may be adapted equally well to vegetables, fruit, meat and fish salads:

Honey Dressing.
One-half cup salad oil.
One-fourth cup honey.
Two teaspoons salt.
One teaspoon mustard powder.
One-fourth cup vinegar.
Two tablespoons catsup.
Two tablespoons lemon juice.
One teaspoon horseradish.
Two teaspoons paprika.

Blend honey with dry ingredients, add catsup, lemon juice, horseradish and then vinegar and oil. Beat well with egg-beater. Yield: One and one-third cup. If the horseradish is omitted from the above dressing, it makes an excellent French type for vegetable salads. Use one-third cup honey for dressing pineapple, pear or apple salads.

LIVER LOAF MAKES TASTY LUNCHEON SANDWICHES

Because liver is so valuable in the diet it should be included frequently in children's menus. When prepared in a tasty loaf, it makes hearty sandwiches particularly suitable for the school lunch.

Tasty Liver Loaf.
One and one-half pounds liver.
One and one-half cups bread crumbs.

Two eggs.
One-half cup meat stock.
One cup milk.
One tablespoon onion.
One tablespoon parsley.
One-fourth teaspoon dried celery salt and pepper.
Four long slices bacon.
Calif. pork, beef or lamb livers may all be used. Soak liver and grind. Combine with bread crumbs and seasonings and moisten with beaten egg, milk and meat stock. DEEP DISH RHUBARB PIE IS FINE GUEST DESSERT

Everyone loves ice cream; and when you serve it in such delicious company as the fascinating deep-dish rhubarb pie, you can depend on your family or guests coming back for "seconds."

Deep Dish Rhubarb Pie With Butter Pecan Ice Cream.
One cup sugar.
Three tablespoons flour.
One-quarter teaspoon salt.
Five cups sliced rhubarb.
Three tablespoons butter.
Milk and butter pastry.
Butter pecan ice cream.

Combine sugar, flour and salt; add rhubarb and mix thoroughly. Place in a buttered baking dish and dot with butter. Roll pastry to one-quarter inch thickness and sprinkle lightly with sugar. Roll up like a jelly roll, cut in slices and place on rhubarb. Brush with milk. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 10 minutes, reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake until the rhubarb is tender and pastry is brown. Serve with the ice cream. Serves six.

Cooking Temperatures.
When cooking tender cuts of meat a temperature higher than 300 degrees saves time only and the roast may not be so evenly or uniformly cooked as with a lower temperature.

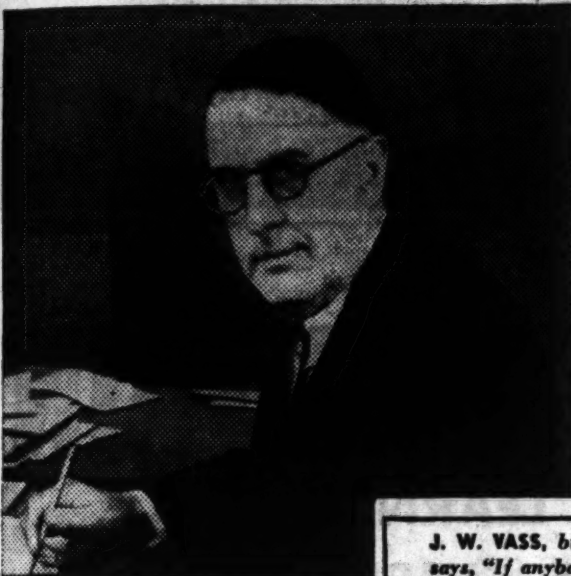

Good Pie Crust.
Never stretch pie crust to fit a plate as the dough shrinks when baking.

Good Diet Cornerstone Of Child Health

May 1st Set Aside in Consideration of Ways in Which Child Health May Be Promoted.

May day, for the child, means hanging May baskets and scampering away before he is caught. For the youth it often means dancing around the Maypole and crowning a fair queen. But for an increasing number of their elders it means Child Health Day.

As President Roosevelt said in his proclamation, May 1 is a day for special consideration of ways in which the health of children shall be promoted and safeguarded.

Health obviously can be built only upon a well-balanced diet. And it's pretty difficult, though not impossible, to work out a well-balanced diet for growing children without milk.

Milk provides essentials. Milk does not contain all the essential food elements, but it provides many of them—and very cheaply. Give a child all the milk possible, to work out a well-balanced diet for growing children without milk.

A quart of milk would of itself supply the day's calcium need for the child—what is necessary for building good teeth and bones. If less than this amount is consumed, certain fruits and vegetables can bring in the rest of the calcium.

A liberal supply of vitamin A is essential to vigorous health in the child. It stimulates growth, protects against one of the more serious eye diseases, and possibly also against infections in the body. Vitamin A deficiency is more common and more serious than is generally recognized. In a recent survey of Iowa school children a fourth of those from the country, half of the village pupils and half to three-fourths of the city children, depending upon their economic level, showed deficiency in this nutritive element. The record of the country children was believed to be due to their having a more plentiful supply of milk and fresh vegetables. All the children in the survey were cured by adding cod-liver oil or carrots.

The vitamin A content of milk varies widely according to the cow's diet. Milk and butter from cows on pasture may have 10 times that of cows fed on grain and poor hay. The vitamin A in milk is entirely in the fat, and the natural yellow color of butter is a fairly good index of its vitamin A potency.

Vitamin G, which is often found in generous quantities in milk, is another food element essential to health and growth. Milk is a "fair" source also of vitamin B, though the milk of some cows is deficient in this mineral most efficiently in the presence of vitamin D. And milk itself has practically no vitamin D.

Sunlight Important. Fortunately there is in the human skin a substance called ergosterol which is changed into vitamin D on exposure to ultra violet light. So the person who goes out into the sunlight long enough generates his own vitamin D. Hence, the sun baths prescribed for the baby. City people usually are not exposed to sunlight enough to get an adequate supply and must get this food essential from other sources such as the fish-liver oils, eggs, salmon and butter.

But the parent who faithfully sees to his children getting their cod-liver oil but is indifferent to the quantity of milk or calcium-rich vegetables they are getting will be doing them little good.

Dental health for life is largely determined by the time a child is 6, so that for his first years an adequate supply of milk or green vegetables and vitamin D is doubly necessary. A recent report concerning the teeth of U. S. Navy recruits showed the dental health of rural recruits considerably better than that of urban recruits. The belief was that both diet and sunlight had been important factors in the contrast.

Not only is it essential that a child have an adequate supply of milk but also that the milk should be wholesome. Yet a large proportion of the small towns and villages of the United States have no efficient milk inspection or control, according to O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry. Not all large cities even have adequate inspection. But the U. S. Public Health Service Milk Ordinance and other similar ordinances are being adopted by more and more communities. This ordinance is really an outline of the standards necessary for a sanitary milk supply, and of the administration and procedure required to put those standards into effect. United States officials may be invited to check the city's supply of milk and report to the city officials their findings, but have no power to do more. The 678 cities having the ordinance utilize the Federal Government service, however, to find whether or not their milk measures up to the 50 per cent pure standard considered the minimum for city health.

The grading of milk has been of decided help to consumers. Where enforcement of good city milk ordinances is effective, Grade A milk means sanitation all along the line: healthy cows, milked by healthy persons in a sanitary way, and carefully handled in the shipping and delivering.

The grading of milk is not especially concerned with the amount of butter fat. Grade A milk may not yield a bit more cream than Grade B does.

The Federal Public Health Service believes that all milk should be pasteurized or boiled before it is used, for this process kills all disease germs present in the milk. Pasteurizing is preferred. Proper pasteurization raises raw milk one grade; Grade B raw milk, for instance, becomes Grade A.

Pasteurization, it is true, destroys most of the vitamin C along with the disease germs, but the gain outweighs this loss, especially since tomatoes or citrus fruit can supply this vitamin.

Certified Raw Milk

Certified milk is raw milk which has measured up to the high standards of the American Association of Medical Milk Commissioners. The fact that milk has been pasteurized or certified doesn't mean that it needs no further care. It must still be kept clean, covered, and cold.

Dried whole milk is better than questionable raw milk. It has the advantage of having most or all of raw milk's original vitamin, but is not always available. Where dried skim milk can be purchased it, too, can be used. Three and a half ounces of it with one and a half ounces of butter give the food equivalent of a quart of whole milk.

Unsweetened evaporated milk is another safe milk, with the added advantage of being economical and keeping well.

Milk also may be worked into the diet in the form of custards, soups and other dishes. Though there is no one food which supplies all food essentials, milk comes the nearest to being the perfect food. Supplement it with an egg, a citrus fruit or tomatoes, some fresh green or yellow vegetables, and you have a wholesome diet for both child and adult.

To Remove Scratches.

Here is a way to remove scratches from silver: Mix enough putty powder with a little olive oil to make a paste. Rub this paste on the silver with a soft cloth. Polish with chamomile. The scratches will disappear.

To Clean Marble.

To clean marble use two ounces of soda, one ounce powdered pumice stone, and one ounce finely powdered chalk. Sift these together, mix with water, rub over marble, and then wash off with soap and water.

A Pie Filling.

Half apple and half blueberry makes a delicious filling for a two-crust pie.

LIKE LOVERS AGAIN

ONCE SHE LEARNED THIS SIMPLE TRUTH...

Jack was such a grouch in the mornings. He'd sit down at the breakfast table and nothing would be right. He even complained about the bread—wouldn't eat it—said it just didn't make good toast.

One day I plopped down on the sofa and had a good cry. Then common sense came back. Maybe the fault was with me! Maybe men didn't like dainty, frilly food...and soft, crumbly bread.

The next day when I ordered my groceries, I asked particularly for Bond Bread. The delivery boy was all smiles: "Most all our customers insist on Bond. They say their husbands prefer it, especially for toast."

PROVE IT YOURSELF...

by the world's easiest bread test

PUT BOND BREAD AND ANY OTHER BREAD ON THE SAME PLATE, SERVE AT MEAL TIME AND SEE WHICH DISAPPEARS FIRST!

"BOND LOOKS LIKE GOOD BREAD...TASTES LIKE GOOD BREAD...IS GOOD BREAD"

SAYS Robert J. Fuller

Mr. Fuller II. is at 3417 Potlatch Street. His mother, the food buyer in the Fuller home, certainly knows what man likes in the way of food. She always buys Bond Bread.

HOME-LIKE FLAVOR! That's what men like about Bond Bread. And wives agree it's the kind of bread they'd bake themselves.

How can they know? Because the Bond Bakers print the list of ingredients on the wrapper, for every purchaser to read. They guarantee that these ingredients and no others go into every loaf of Bond Bread.

Read this guarantee the next time you market. You'll know then why it's really true that Bond does make the best toast—why Bond is the home-like bread that men prefer.

Remember, when you order... always ask for "Bond" instead of just "bread."

CHILDREN LIKE FOOD WITH EYE APPEAL

Dishes That Are "Good for Them" May Be Served to Pass Muster.

It is no poetic fancy to mothers that "coming events cast their shadows before" when the event they are thinking of is Child Health week, to be ushered in by proclamation of the President on Child Health day—the first of May.
The "shadow" of this event is a lengthy one, and stretches through the year as mothers feed their youngsters wholesome and healthful food every day and every week. But this annual observance of May day puts a special emphasis on child health programs and stimulates us to provide new dishes the children like; to learn the new things nutritionists have been developing for the younger generation.

Children Particular.
Homemakers have discovered that youngsters are sensitive to textures, flavors and the appearance of their food—and what's good for them may still be served so that they "eat it and like it." A famous doctor once said that the things we like best, providing they are healthful to start with, are the things which do us the most good. Certainly a happy frame of mind aids digestion, and even a hungry child will balk at eating "anything." Simple but attractive-looking dishes are the popular and good for them.

Soft Date Cookies.
One package pitted dates.
One cup water.
Three cups flour.
Three teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One and one-half cups brown sugar.
Two eggs.
One teaspoon vanilla.
One-half cup chopped nuts.
Cook the dates and water slowly to form a thick paste, stirring occasionally; cool. Sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, stir in sugar gradually; when well blended stir in the undrained eggs one at a time. Add vanilla and chopped nuts. Stir in sifted dry ingredients alternately with the date paste. Drop rounded teaspoonfuls of the mixture on greased baking sheets. Bake in a moderate oven (375 to 400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes. 48 to 60 cookies.

Banana Muffins.
One cup sifted flour.
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-quarter teaspoon soda.
One teaspoon baking powder.
Two tablespoons sugar.
One egg, well beaten.
Two tablespoons melted shortening or oil.
Two tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk.
One cup thinly sliced banana (2 bananas).
Sift together the flour, salt, soda, baking powder and sugar. Combine the egg, shortening, milk and sliced banana. Stir until banana is broken into small pieces. Combine liquid and dry ingredients, stirring only enough to dampen all the flour. Bake in well-greased muffin pans in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees) 30 to 35 minutes. Makes four large or eight small muffins.

Orange Tapioca Pudding.
Three cups water.
Two-thirds cup quick-cooking tapioca.
One cup granulated sugar.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Two cups orange juice.
Two tablespoons grated orange rind.
One cup whipped cream.
Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Combine dry ingredients; add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook five minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from boiling water. Mixture clears and thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, add orange juice and rind. Chill in refrigerator. Add whipped cream to mixture, blending well. Just before serving garnish with orange slices. Serves eight generously.

Glaze Dates.
One package dates.
One-quarter nut meats or one slice canned pineapple.
One cup sugar.
One cup white syrup.
One-half cup water.
Stuff the dates with a bit of nut meat or pineapple, wrapping the date entirely around the filling. Cool the sugar, syrup and water until the syrup begins to discolor (310 degrees). Remove the pan from direct heat and place it in a pan of hot water so that the syrup will not cool too rapidly. Place each date on a fork; dip into the syrup; let drip a moment and then place on a greased pan or marble slab to harden.

APPLE RINGS

Four large apples, cored and sliced one-half inch thick.
Four tablespoons shortening.
Two tablespoons sugar.
Melt shortening in frying pan; add sugar and stir until slightly caramelized. Add apple rings and saute until golden brown on both sides.
Serves six.

MAPLE BANANA DESSERT

Four bananas, halved.
One cup maple syrup.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One-half cup whipped cream.
One-third cup coconut.
Cut bananas in lengthwise halves. Arrange flat sides up in buttered shallow pan. Cover with syrup and juice. Add salt. Broil five minutes or until bananas have browned slightly. Top with cream and coconut and serve warm. The bananas can be baked in moderate oven 10 minutes if preferred to broiling.

HAVE YOU TRIED IT YET?

This New "No-Scrub-No-Boil" Soap Soaks Out Dirt! Faster Washing, Shades Whiter Washing—Safe for Hands, Colors, Fabrics.
Why let washday "get you down" when this amazing new soap invention makes washing so easy! Today millions of women are quitting old-fashioned back-breaking washing methods for this easier, far whiter-washing way!
Oxydol is an utterly new kind of laundry soap, perfected by the makers of gentle Ivory. It is the result of a patented process which makes soap much faster acting, yet keeps it safe... a formula that makes it 2 to 3 times whiter washing than less modern soaps. By actual test, just 15 minutes' soaking of the tubful... no scrubbing, no boiling... and your white things come so white it will amaze you!
Yet Oxydol works with safety to your clothes and hands. Even sheerest cotton prints washed 100 consecutive times in Oxydol suds, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

With Oxydol you get thick 3-inch suds—even in hard water. Suds that go to work on grease, dirt, and stains, 2 to 3 times faster than less modern soaps.
Oxydol is economical, too. Tests show that it will go one-third to one-half again as far as even the most modern soap flakes on the market.

NEW YORK BANKER FOUNDS ART MUSEUM

J. S. Bach Changes Residence Into Gallery for Exhibition of Rich Collection.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, April 29.—Julius S. Bach, banker, announced through his attorneys last night he would convert his Fifth Avenue residence into a public museum for the permanent exhibition of his art collection, regarded by critics as one of the finest private groups in the country.

The collection includes paintings of the masters of the Italian, Flemish, French, English, Spanish, Dutch and German schools, as well as many rare examples of sculpture, tapestries, porcelains, furniture and bric-a-brac. The announcement was made shortly after Bach departed for a summer in Europe and no estimate was made as to the value of the collection. It was recalled that in 1927 it was valued for insurance purposes at $5,000,000. Since then a number of expensive additions have been made.

When he returns, Bach probably will establish New York living quarters in a hotel. In addition to the Fifth Avenue house, a few blocks from the Metropolitan Museum, he has a large estate home on Upper Saratoga Lake and a winter home in Florida.

It was announced that the State Board of Regents has approved the organization of the Julius Bach Foundation, which will be endowed with sufficient funds to maintain the collection permanently as a free museum available to all under suitable regulations. The foundation also may make additions to the collection from time to time.

The museum probably will be opened during the current year. Included in the collection are four famous Italian paintings, each dating from the fifteenth century, which Bach purchased from Sir Joseph Duveen in 1928 at an estimated cost of $1,000,000. The most famous of this group is Bellini's "Madonna and Child," a panel 14 by 11 inches formerly belonging to the gallery of the Duke of Hamilton. The others are "Madonna and Child" by Carlo Crivelli; "The Flight into Egypt," by Cosimo Tura; and "Portrait of the Sassetti," by Ghirlandajo.

A year later he acquired from the same source Raphael's "Gladius de Medici," at a reported cost of $600,000.

Among the other noted items in the collection is an 11 1/2 by eight-inch painting of Petrus Christus, noted Flemish artist of the fifteenth century, which is believed to represent Dionysius the Carthusian.

EAST ST. LOUIS TAX BILLS MAILED, INCREASE IN RATE

Assessment is at $5.75 Per $100 Valuation; How Levy is Divided.

The East St. Louis Treasurer's office today began mailing out tax bills to city property owners. The total rate for 1936 taxes, payable on or before next June 1, is $5.75 per $100 assessed valuation, divided as follows: County, 57 cents; city, $1.59; East Side Levee and Sanitary District, 42 cents; East St. Louis Park District, 48 cents; East St. Louis School District, No. 189, $2.40; poor relief, 30 cents.

The total tax rate has climbed steadily since 1933, when it was $5.43. The 1934 rate was $5.54, and for 1935 it was $5.72. The 1932 rate was $5.50, but this included a 50-cent State real estate tax which was removed the next year and succeeded by the State 3-cent sales tax.

HOUSE FOR STATE WAGE BILL

Passes Keating Measure on Pay for Women and Minors.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—The House of Representatives passed yesterday, by a vote of 100 to 11, a bill by Edgar J. Keating, Kansas City, to set up an industrial welfare commission to establish standard wages for women and minors.

The law would be administered by a commission of four persons appointed by the Governor, with the State Labor Commissioner serving as an ex-officio member. The bill would make it unlawful to employ women or minors (those under 18 years of age) in any industry or occupation within the State "at wages which are not adequate for a reasonable and decent standard of living."

BEAUTY SHOP INSPECTION LAGS

No State Service Since July Because of Small Appropriation.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 29.—Most of Missouri's beauty and hair dressing shops have not been inspected by the State since last July, because of a small appropriation by the last Legislature, the Senate Appropriations Committee was told yesterday.

Dr. Harry Parker, new State Health Commissioner, said earnings of the division of cosmetology and hair dressing were far in excess of the amount appropriated for that the excess went into the State general fund. The department stopped sending out its inspectors, he said, when it ran out of money to pay their expenses.

Oswald Jacoby Visits in City.
Oswald Jacoby of New York, noted bridge player, and Mrs. Jacoby arrived in St. Louis last night to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tanenbaum, 555 Waterman avenue. Jacoby, a member of the Four Aces bridge team, which recently won the national team-of-four championship, will play a few informal games with friends here. He will depart Sunday.

Oil Wrung From Blanket Was Lowly Start of Great Petroleum Industry

Gen. MacArthur's Struggles With Army Contractor in 1812 Told to Historical Society—Other Papers.

The humble beginnings of the petroleum industry on a farm in Pennsylvania in 1851 were described by Paul H. Giddens of Allegheny College before the Mississippi Valley Historical Association at the opening of its thirtieth annual meeting today at the Coronado Hotel.

His paper was based on information derived from the recently discovered letters of Dr. Francis B. Brewer, a leading figure in organizing the first oil company in the United States.

Dr. Brewer, a physician who became a member of a lumber firm in Titusville, Pa., was attracted by an oil spring on the company's property. To collect the oil, a woolen blanket was spread in the spring, then it was raised and the oil wrung out. Anyone who wanted oil was welcome to wring out the blanket. The only use for the oil at that time was as a domestic remedy for almost every disease known in Western Pennsylvania.

Later the lumber firm began using the oil for illuminating purposes, Giddens related. A thorough examination of other surface conditions along the entire length of Oil Creek led Dr. Brewer to think the oil had great possibilities. He therefore persuaded other members of his lumber firm to lease the farm land to a man who would repair the oil spring, construct new springs and split the profits, if any.

Three Gallons a Day.
Three or four gallons a day, even as many as six, were collected. The field was believed to be inexhaustible. In the autumn of 1853, Dr. Brewer took a bottle of petroleum to Hanover, N. H., where two Dartmouth College professors, one of his lumber firm to lease the farm land to a man who would repair the oil spring, construct new springs and split the profits, if any.

One of the professors, Dr. Dixi Crosby, showed the bottle of petroleum brought from Pennsylvania to a young lawyer, George H. Russell. They discussed the possibility of using the petroleum for illuminating and lubrication on a big scale.

They purchased the land containing the oil springs and formed the first petroleum company. But hardly any stock could be sold because few persons had money to invest and because of the almost universal distrust of such an enterprise. A favorable report by a chemist on the properties of the petroleum dispelled doubts and the great oil industry was on its way.

Gen. MacArthur's Troubles With Army Contractors in 1812

Tribulations of a military commander in the War of 1812, Gen. Winfield Scott, were described by C. H. Cramer of Southern Illinois State Normal University. MacArthur's first embarrassment, he related, was the difficulty of recruiting men. The commander would send several horses visiting dozens of villages. The pay offered prospective soldiers was so good that the good of the winter and the coming of the spring made it hard to recruit to spread-eagle oratory to get men to sign at all.

Once the war was on, MacArthur was deterred by two major obstacles. The first was the indecision of the War Department as to his plans, "as a consequence of which he found himself on many a wild-goose chase," Cramer related.

Provisioning System "Frightful."
"The second was the frightful system of provisioning the army, which rendered activity impossible at times. These difficulties, reinforced with wounded vanity, played a prominent role in his too frequent resignations, nine of which were accepted by the War Department."

Contractors were a source of great irritation to MacArthur. He reported that "supplies cost double what they should; that the clothing did not enable the men to appear respectable in summer much less to shield them from the inclemency of the winter and that many things were lost as a consequence, that shoes were made of the worst leather and that the blankets were so small that they did not cover a man or keep him warm; that the food was inferior and the cooking defective, causing much trouble and even death; that the wagons furnished were rotten and broken down with astonishing regularity."

Speaking on the West as a safety valve for labor, Joseph Schafer of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin asserted the availability of farm land for industrial workers who saved their money in the last century, "prevented the occurrence of the winter of 1830 and 1846 in Europe and also prevented such oppression of the laboring classes as they suffered in England."

About a third of the Middle Western farmers around 1850 had earned their farms as laborers or craftsmen, he said.

"The condition of American industrial labor has been by no means ideal," he went on. "Yet, despite the disruptive effects of the successive immigrations and the near disasters incident to recurring depressions, a gradual, if irregular, advance in wages and in working conditions has been achieved."

"Were it not for the safety valve, it is permissible to ask if American employers, served by such a strong and steady influx of cheap labor from abroad, would have been more considerate of their employees than were the employing classes in France, Germany and England. The effect of the safety valve has been largely psychological, operating like a upon laborers, employers and the general public."

Three newspapers of the Civil War period—the New York Tribune, the Missouri Democrat and the Chicago Tribune—were discussed.

"Horace Greeley was the New York Tribune," said Ralph R. Fahney of Iowa State Teachers College. "Evidence of its blunders was its inconsiderate lack of stability and its acid criticism are subject to misinterpretation unless analyzed upon a background of the emotional strains, perplexities, despair and bewilderment of a North torn by internal dissensions, and almost completely demoralized at times by a succession of military reverses."

In the midst of such confusion, Lincoln met opposition and criticism from all sides, not the least of which came from the Tribune, and much of which was unfair and destructive in character. But in justice to Greeley, it must be recalled that he faced the dilemma of parrying the thrusts of the administration's pro-slavery critics, and at the same time, spurring the President on to meet the requirements of military success.

Greeley Erratic but Sincere.
"Furthermore, while Greeley was eccentric, erratic and impetuous, he was always courageous and sincere, and the Tribune to a great degree merely reflected the instability of an erratic and confused public opinion molded in an atmosphere of war hysteria."

ROBINSON FOR TO PCT. ECONOMY PROPOSAL

Says He Prefers Byrnes Plan to One for Impounding 15 Pct. of Appropriations.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, introduced today the proposal of Senator Byrnes of South Carolina to make a flat 10 per cent cut in all appropriations, with the exception of power for department heads to transfer the reduction from bureau to bureau.

Robinson said he would prefer the Byrnes method to the one for impounding 15 per cent of all appropriations, with the exception of power for department heads to transfer the reduction from bureau to bureau. The 15 per cent measure has the support of President Roosevelt.

Robinson said he also would favor reduction of next year's relief appropriation to $1,000,000,000 instead of the $1,800,000,000 recommended by the President, "if on investigation it is found practicable to do so."

His views on two proposals. Commenting on the proposal to impound 15 per cent of all appropriations next year, Robinson said: "I do not think the 15 per cent cut as proposed is practical, or that it can be expected to accomplish any real economy."

He said he believed 10 per cent proper reduction and thought it would be impractical to reduce individual items. A straight horizontal reduction, he said, would be the most effective method of balancing the budget.

Senator Byrnes told reporters he was "confident" Congress and the administration would "stick together" in an effective economy program. Vandenberg Hits Monetary Policy. Soon after Robinson's announcement Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, told the Senate the Government could not expect "to come within gunshot" of a balanced budget as long as it continued its gold and silver-buying policy.

Denouncing the administration's monetary policy in connection with a proposed $350,000,000 deficiency appropriation for the Government's gold depository at Fort Knox, Ky., Vandenberg charged that sterilization of gold is "adding to the national debt at the rate of $1,000,000,000 a year."

"All the gold and silver in the world is flowing in our direction," Vandenberg shouted, assailing the purchase prices established for the two metals.

He said the situation "challenges an early definite response respecting the future monetary policies of our country from those in high authority."

"I realize, however," Vandenberg continued, "it is almost as dangerous to stop it as it is to keep on doing it, but manifestly we can't go on sterilizing one and a half billion dollars of gold every year and come within gunshot of a balanced budget."

"The Government's fiscal difficulties cannot possibly be solved without a courageous, rational and realistic realignment of the giddy gold and silver policies under which we play sucker to the world."

BILL TO BAR CHILD LABOR PRODUCTS PASSED IN NEW YORK

Measure Goes to Gov. Lehman Who Has Opposed It as Unenforceable.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 29.—A proposed bill to bar the sale of goods produced by children under 16 years of age won final legislative approval yesterday.

The bi-partisan measure, passed without debate, 48 to 3, in the Democratic Senate, went to Gov. Lehman, who has opposed such legislation as "unenforceable" and "impractical."

First introduced by Republican Assemblyman Abbot Low Moffat as a substitute for ratification of the Federal child labor amendment, the bill already had passed the Republican Assembly. Democratic Senator Joseph D. Nunan sponsored it in the Senate.

Midville Chief of Police Says They Took Him In Auto and Drove Away.

MIDVILLE, Ga., April 29.—Chief of Police L. W. Murphy said today five men captured a Negro wanted in a criminal attack case at Blythe, Ga., and took him away in an automobile. "When he is now we do not know," the chief added.

"The Negro is known as Willie Hopkins. We heard he was in the vicinity of Midville today and went to look for him. About a mile from Midville we learned that five men from Blythe had picked him up and taken him away in an automobile."

A Negro attacked a white woman at her home near Blythe early Monday.

HOUSE RECEIVES STATE DRIVER'S LICENSE BILL

Favorably Reported as Senate Passed It—Vote Likely Next Week.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 28.—The Senate State automobile drivers license bill was reported this afternoon by the House Roads and Highway Committee, with a favorable recommendation. The bill, already passed by the Senate, is likely to come up for final passage by the House next week, under present plans of House leaders.

The committee agreed on a favorable report on the bill last night, after a hearing. However, it was unable to make formal report at that time because the bill technically was not in possession of the committee as it had not been read a second time in the House and referred to committee. The bill received its second reading and reference this morning.

The bill was reported in the same form that it was passed by the Senate.

The hearing was held by the committee last night, in advance of formal reference of the bill, to save time, as the House was expected to adjourn today over the week-end and a committee quorum would not be available.

Senators Donnelly of Lebanon and Kinney of St. Louis urged favorable action at the hearing.

St. Louis Amendment Beaten.

John G. Burkhardt, Associate City Counselor of St. Louis and legislative agent for the city, offered an amendment which specifically would give the City of St. Louis authority to continue enforcement of its drivers' license ordinance, which was adopted under an enabling act passed by the 1935 Legislature. Burkhardt said there was doubt whether the measure, by implication at least, would repeal the 1935 act authorizing municipalities to pass drivers' license ordinances.

Senator Donnelly expressed the view the amendment was unnecessary and that cities with such ordinances could continue to enforce them under the proposed Statewide act.

Provisions of Bill.

The measure is a makeshift one, due to compromise that were necessary before it could be passed in the Senate, but it affords a basis for some Statewide regulation of automobile drivers.

It provides for issuance of a driver's license for two years for a fee of 25 cents. Every person driving an automobile would be required to have a license, and it has been estimated that an average of three licenses would be issued for every automobile registered in the State. The bill contains no provision for a physical examination to determine the fitness of applicants for licenses. It provides for suspension of revocation of licenses for a period of not to exceed one year of persons convicted of careless driving, driving when intoxicated, failure to stop after an accident, refusing to disclose identity or driving a car without the owner's consent, conviction of manslaughter resulting from operation of an automobile and commission of a felony in which an automobile was used.

MORE ATTACKS ON WORKERS OF CENTURY ELECTRIC CO.

One Man Felled With Bricks; Windows in Employees' Residence Smashed.

Fred Meyer, 3623 Virginia avenue, an employee of the Century Electric Co., where a strike is being conducted by the United Electrical & Radio Workers of America, a C. I. O. affiliate, was struck with several bricks after he alighted from a street car at Grand boulevard and Miami street at 5:30 p. m. yesterday. Meyer was treated at City Hospital for contusions of the back, arms and legs. He said he did not see the assailants.

Two windows in the home of Miss Jeannette Kern, a Century employee, 2007 South Fourth street, were smashed with bricks at 10:30 o'clock last night. A window in a rooming house at 912 South Eighth street, where James E. Wall, a Century worker, lives, was smashed with a brick last night.

Five Century strikers were cited yesterday by Circuit Judge Robert J. Kirkwood to show cause May 6, why they should not be declared in contempt of an injunction protecting the company and working employees. Those cited are: Vernon Stiles, Edward Donato, Belmont Zeigler, Harold Powell and George Melton. Simon Schneider, a Century worker, complained that the men beat and kicked him on the street.

SUSPICIOUS HUSBAND BEATS MAN IN HOME WITH HAMMER

Murphy Porter Says He Found John Boyd Making Improper Advances to Wife.

John Boyd, 19-year-old laborer, was beaten with a hammer last night by Murphy Porter, a suspicious husband, who hid on a woodshed roof behind his home at 2321A Benton street after telling his 19-year-old wife he had a business appointment.

Porter, who is 35 and a tree surgeon, told police he obtained the hammer, entered the house and attacked Boyd when he saw him make improper advances toward Mrs. Porter. Boyd was taken to City Hospital for treatment of a skull injury.

Mrs. Porter's mother, Mrs. Eva Lakin, brought Boyd and his brother, Henry Boyd, 25, to live at the Porter home about three weeks ago, Porter said. He became suspicious of the younger brother.

Before entering the house last night, he went to the nearby home of his sister's husband, William Riley, 2323 North Market street, and took him to the woodshed roof as a witness. Mrs. Porter, mother of two children, said she had feared to tell her husband of Boyd's previous advances.

YOU NEVER can judge a person's character by the way they act when people are watchin' 'em. I suppose politicians are just as kind hearted as anybody else, but I've seen a lot of 'em make over children and pet dogs just to get votes. It's when a man gets away out in the open where nobody can see him that his real nature comes to light. My Uncle Hod was just crazy about animals and he would go out of his way just to be considerate of 'em. He was goin' through the woods one day and he heard a noise back of him. When he turned around, he saw a great big, ferocious man-eatin' bear sniffin' at his tracks. Uncle Hod watched the bear just a second and then he says, "Oh, so you like my tracks do you? All right, I'll make ya some more!"

On Bidding Sequence

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright, 1937.)
ANNOUNCED that, while asking bids have been proved perfect from a technical point of view, mass psychology and the inability of players to readjust their bidding habits have induced me to make two minor changes in the asking bid system. For the benefit of readers who missed the article I will briefly restate the first change.

With such bidding as: South, one heart; West, one spade; North, two spades, North's two spade bid is put back to its original traditional status of a cue bid, showing first round spade control and a big hand. To make an asking bid in spades North must jump one round and bid three spades.

The second change concerns a bidding sequence such as: South, one spade; West, pass; North, four clubs. As originally outlined, this four club bid was an asking bid settling partner's suit as the agreed trump suit. The ingrained habits of millions of players, who have been using such a four club bid for years as preemptive, sometimes led to tragedies and I have, therefore, decided that this particular method of setting the trump suit shall be abandoned. In such bidding the four bid over an original one shall again be considered pre-emptive, not asking.

Frank K. Perkins, one of New England's outstanding players and bridge writers, has a terrific grievance against red-headed feminine opponents. He was "fixed" to the queen's taste by one such on the following hand.

HOUSE BUDGETS FOR THE BRIDE

Suggestions for Apportioning Money in Planning Furniture

SOPHISTICATED MOOD—BLONDE WOOD FURNITURE, PINK-BEIGE WALLS, WINDOW AND WINDOW-WALL DRAPES IN DEEP PINK BEIGE.

AN EASY CHAIR, A TABLE AND LAMP ARE ESSENTIALS IN A REALLY COMFORTABLE BEDROOM, AND WHEN THEY ARE BESIDE A WINDOW THEY ARE DOUBLY USEFUL. THE COLORS IN THIS ROOM ARE PALE PINK, PALE BLUE WITH ACCENTS OF GREEN AND BACKGROUND OF WHITE. THE CHAIR IS GREEN MOIRE.

By ELIZABETH BOYKIN

WORD to the wise husband-to-be—don't worry if your girl friend shivers at the idea of a budget. It's perfectly normal for figures to give a lady a headache. But she'll probably end up as the best bookkeeper in the family.

And a word to the wise bride-to-be—if you'd rather have the fun of buying on the spur of the moment, that's your privilege. But you'll get a lot more for your money if you plan your spending on paper ahead of time. You'll find that you won't mind so much doing without a smart gadget that catches your eye when you know it will bring that lovely new rug a lot closer.

A budget isn't such an awesome thing when you get used to the idea; but it's a good plan to take it a little gradually or you may feel lost in the sea of numbers.

Suppose we begin today on budgeting a bedroom because that's fairly easy. Later we'll go into budgets for other rooms. Here is a pretty good approximate way to divide the money you have on hand for furnishing the new home:

Living Room ———— 27 pct.
Dining Room ———— 23 pct.
Bedroom ———— 20 pct.
Kitchen ———— 8 pct.
Bathroom ———— 2 pct.
Hall ———— 5 pct.

And for the 20 per cent allowance for the bedroom, here is a safe way to apportion it approximately:

Floor covering ———— 31 pct.
Curtains ———— 4 pct.
Furniture ———— 49 pct.
Spring, mattress and pillows 19 pct.
Bed linen ———— 5 pct.
Spread, blanket, comforter —12 pct.

In planning your bedroom purchases keep in mind the amount you can afford to spend on the room in the long run as well as what you have in hand right now. If you can reasonably count on money for additions later (and if you plan to include them on the budget, you can) figure these percentages on the basis of the ultimate amount to be spent on the room. This may avoid too cheap purchases that you will want to replace. In that case consider the order of making purchases according to your actual need.

In a bedroom, we'd say that bed, springs, mattress, pillows, sheets and blankets should come first; if the budget is pinched. Next, a chest of drawers with a mirror and at least one chair. You could manage to get along with even if you had to stop there, although you could add glass curtains inexpensively and a couple of rag rugs. This would be better than buying a room full of cheaper things that you'll never really like.

house. That meant just $100 for the bedroom. Here is how they spent it.

Rugs—she made these herself, smart girl.

Furniture ———— $80
Springs, mattress and pillows ———— 18
Curtains ———— 5
Linen ———— 5
Spread and blankets ———— 10
Lamps ———— 2

But for a young couple who feel that they will be able to spend more in the aggregate, it's better economy to buy better springs and mattress, better sheets, better blankets. These are life-time buys if they're really good. Here, for instance, is the outfit of a typical pair of newlyweds who would spend all told $2000 on their furnishings, which meant $400 on the bedroom:

Rugs ———— $30
Furniture ———— 108
Springs, mattress and pillows ———— 76
Curtains and draperies ———— 20
Linen ———— 15
Spread, blankets and comfortable ———— 45
Lamps ———— 10

Naturally these figures would vary according to personal tastes, what presents they received and a hundred and one other considerations.

Now cover the other half of the meat and cut into round cakes. Fry sufficient bacon in a large pan to have a slice for each cake. Remove bacon and cook in the fat one cup of chopped onions and one chopped green pepper until tender. Place meat cakes in on top of the onions and brown. Turn with a cake turner, picking up onion and peppers as well as the meat so they are on top while the other side is browning. Serve on a platter, each cake garnished with a slice of bacon and a sprig of parsley.

A little grated onion is good added to the potato pancake batter if the flavor is relished in your family.

Lie Detector As Means of Solving Crime

Mere Use May Affect Emotion, Doctor Says—Sweat Glands as "Give Away."

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

MY OPINION has been asked as to the value of the so-called lie detector as a regular adjunct to the scientific detection of crime.

The device commonly called the lie detector is the Keeler polygraph. "Polygraph" means "many writings," and this particular one records in written form the variations in blood pressure, respiration and pulse rate, on a running strip of paper. The suspect sits with the inflated cuff of the blood pressure apparatus around his arm and a belt around his chest to record his breathing. Naturally emotional reactions under questioning are seen in the rise or fall of blood pressure, and in change in respiration and pulse rate.

A priori a doctor would be inclined to doubt the validity of these instruments. Any kind of emotion, the very fact that a person knew he was under suspicion, would be enough to make records. I have had applicants for life insurance faint while being examined with a blood pressure apparatus, and every physician knows that the first blood pressure record is probably inaccurate on account of excitement of the patient.

In spite of that, however, actual experience seems to show that the lie detector in practice works out pretty well. We have one record of a Chicago bank which had tests made on 56 of its employees in order to track down the embezzler of $5000. Not only was the guilty man discovered, but nine other employees confessed to petty larceny hitherto unknown to the bank officials.

It is all right when the victim confesses after a lie detector test. But I disagree with Prof. Wigmore in his Treatise on Evidence, who says that it need only work with a reasonable measure of precision. Since it is an instrument, it seems to me it should work with complete precision all the time.

Another form of lie detector, not in such general use, is that invented by Father Sumners of Fordham University. The suspect holds a small metal slab in his hand, and a tiny current of electricity from a single dry battery is passed to the body. The suspect is asked questions, at first innocent and then pointed. If he has a guilty knowledge of any of the questions, his sweat glands are stimulated and the extra deposit of perspiration on the skin of his hand reduces his resistance to the electric current passing through his body.

With this instrument, for instance, a subject is asked to select any card from the deck. The operator then goes through the deck, showing each card and asking the question, "Is this your card?" In spite of the fact that the subject regularly answers "No" when his card comes up the indicator shows up immediately.

The prompt treatment of a stain on the garment will have much to do with its successful removal.

Right Shades In Rouge

By Gladys Glad

"I'VE been having quite a bit of difficulty in applying my rouge so that it looks natural. I know well enough that rouge should be placed to correspond with the natural coloring in the cheeks. But unfortunately I don't have any natural coloring in my cheeks. What can I use as a guide in applying my rouge, so that I shall be sure to place it correctly?"

"MATILDA."

If there is no natural coloring apparent in your cheeks, you may do either of two things to assist you in applying your rouge skillfully and artistically. If you pat your cheeks briskly—but not roughly, mind you—the blood will rush to the surface of the skin, and the cheeks will become flushed with color. You can then note where your rouge should be placed.

Again, if you bathe your face in hot water for a minute or two, and then quickly press on it a towel saturated with cold water, the color will rise in your cheeks and will serve to guide you in applying your rouge so that you can make it appear as natural as Nature's own handiwork.

"ALTHOUGH the skin of my face as a whole is perfectly normal, the skin of my nose is very oily. I've heard that in such cases it is beneficial to use bran on the oily portion of the skin. Is this true? And can you tell me the bran should be employed?"

"HARRIET."

Bran can indeed be used to help correct the excessive oiliness of the skin of your nose. First cleanse your skin thoroughly, employing your usual cleansing method. Then mix enough witch hazel with a teaspoon of bran to form a thick, smooth paste. Rub the paste briskly—but not too roughly, of course—over your nose, and then allow it to dry.

When it is completely dry, remove the bran mixture with tepid water and the application of a mild skin tonic or astringent. This procedure will help to normalize the condition of the skin of your nose.

Willett Dandelion and Bacon
The young dandelions are appearing and don't forget to include this healthful dish in your menu this spring. It is a tonic in itself. Shred the dandelion and add a little salt. Cook one cup chopped bacon until a golden brown. Remove meat from the grease and add three-quarters cup vinegar and one-half cup water to the bacon. Let come to a boil, then add two well-beaten eggs. Let come to a boil again and pour over the prepared dandelion. Mix well and serve immediately.

A breakfast suggestion for the person who eats lightly at this meal is to place crisply broiled bacon in the center of a cut roll and serve this delicious sandwich with the coffee.

The Vassar Girls Name Preferences

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, April 24.

WELL, Vassar has spoken, and now we can relax for a while. The girls up at Poughkeepsie, who are already practicing having a dummy daisy chain, have chosen the names for the year. Here are a few of the favorites: The Rainbow Room; book, good old "Gone with the Wind"; movie, "Dodsworth"; play, "Victoria Regina"; newspaper, N. Y. Times; hairdresser, Charles of the Ritz. With the world-shaking balloting over, the kids now subside to basking in the first exams.

Oscar of the Waldorf is shaking up an extra fine dinner for Mr. and Mrs. George H. Eddy of West End Avenue, who are celebrating their golden wedding at his fancy hotel. What makes it cute, from the hotel's point of view, is that they celebrate their 25th at the old Waldorf, which stood at 24th and the Avenue, where the Empire State Building now impertinently sticks its chromium snout into the stratosphere. The Eddy report that the 50 years have been right pleasant, on the whole.

With the good weather, the trailer business here gets madder and crazier by the hour. The finest I've seen is the property of Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., better known as Neil, who is a busy journalist. Neil's has a regular apartment—a living room, with two bedrooms that can be made into extra beds; a radio, a bedroom, a closet, press for 30 suits suitable for a Vanderbilt, and a shower bath. Neil says he's going to take it over to the Coronation and show the Brits how funny Americans really live!

John Steinbeck, current western novelist of the proletarian, thanks to "Of Mice and Men," has just turned up here with his wife Carol, after a freighter-trip from California. Took them a month. He's finishing up a play from his new novel hit, then he and the missus hit for Ireland. John's feeling nice fresh money for a change — and no doubt it's very pleasant, too.

Rain can't stop the fifty buses. It poured the day Glen Swanson, clamored up the Quins Mary, but she wore the same outfit she had planned for bright sunshine. It was a swell "help" light wool ensemble—a long low coat worn over a little jacket skirt. Her shoes were pale beige suede, and she was topped by a brown pointed toques. Good old Glen! Rain shines, never lets down the public.

IF YOU ASK MY OPINION

By Martha Carr

Dear Mrs. Carr: I STARTED my daughter, who is now in her teens, in the city public schools at the proper age, and she has always ranked third in her class. Then when she reached the eighth grade, I sent her to a parochial school, and she never seemed to do so well. When she graduated she wanted to go to a vocational school, but we sent her to a ninth grade center where she failed in every subject.

My daughter likes to draw, especially figures; in the next year she took up commercial drawing. But after a little, they advised her to take something else, and here again she failed to make good. Her grade was poor, and at this she was much surprised. Now she thinks she would like to try a course in millinery. Do you think there would be much future in that line here in the city?

The all has me stumped, and I don't know what to do next. I have tried kind words, pleading, and, I am afraid, some harsh words to spur her on, all to no avail. In one way, I feel guilty for taking her out of public school when she was doing so well.

V. L. M.

It so happens that your daughter, during these changes, was at an age when all kinds of changes take place in the maturing of a girl from childhood into womanhood. Her failure in each line, after having made such a good record as a scholar before this, indicates that in maturing she may have encountered some complex caused by a nervous condition. I believe both you and she would find satisfaction and probably help in a mental and physical test, which might be made by a good psychologist. There is no reason to hesitate about this, because it might explain a certain instability which could be corrected. You could ask what indications there are, which might help her concentrate her efforts along lines in which she is talented and capable.

Dear Martha Carr:

I am very much interested in "Bachelor Dreamer" plans for an organization and would like to know if he has advanced to the point where he is willing to meet some people who are waiting patiently for this project to materialize.

I notice letters in your column from time to time from potential members for such an organization, but I have not seen anything definite as to meetings or other activities. Hoping you will keep us posted on any future news that you get of the progress of this organization. I am "ALSO A DREAMER."

I have just received a letter from "Bachelor Dreamer" in which he explains that, through business absorption and lack of time and also in the search of a proper meeting place convenient to those who want to meet, his plans have been somewhat delayed. However, he has found the meeting place and if you will communicate with him, he will be glad to let you know how arrangements and the program are progressing.

I cannot use his name in the column, but will be glad to send it, with his address and references, if you will write me, sending self-addressed stamped envelope (as you do not give your name or address).

Dear Mrs. Carr:

HAVE often had the urge to write to some of your clients; for instance, the little old lady who did not care to go to the Masonic Home. I have wanted to send her a clipping by Dorothy Canfield on a subject similar to hers.

Will you please send the letter enclosed to "Ich Dien"? What, by the way, does this mean? S. D.

Your letter, as well as all others, written to "Ich Dien," and sent to me, have been forwarded to him. He is the one to decide which ones he will answer and it is likely he will indicate just what credentials and references he will require before negotiating with anyone. "Ich Dien" is the German for "I serve."

Dear Mrs. Carr: WOULD like to have your opinion about a party who is doing a most questionable thing. Twice a day, as the mail man brings the mail, this man watches to see when the mail man leaves, then goes out and gets all the mail. I know that he steals them open and then seals them again and puts them back in the box, having read all of them.

Have seen his wife and daughter do the same thing. Don't you think such people ought to be reported to the Postmaster? S. A. D.

Certainly, if the tenants have reason to suspect this man, they should report it in confidence to the Postoffice. Opening this mail is a serious Federal offense, whether money is taken from the mail or not.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

PLAYTIME STYLES for YOUNGSTERS

Practical Outfits in St. Louis Displays Are Also Very Chic

The frock which covered her mother had found so many different types in the stores that she came away with five different suits. She finally decided to wear her overalls. This pleased her mother because she had hesitated about buying them since overalls seemed rather boyish for a dainty little girl to wear.

"They're o. k.," was Mary Ann's comment as she surveyed herself in her mirror and when her mother saw her later dumping sand out of the wheelbarrow she was convinced they were quite the thing for backyard sandpile parties.

But Jeanne had become so absorbed in the sand house that before the afternoon was over and the ice cream had arrived she had discarded the frock and had only her sun suit to hamper her work.

JOEY, being a typical boy, liked shorts and shirts and was a bit resentful when he learned that his mother had bought some for his 'big sister, too. Here were faded blue denim and didn't look like much to his learned masculine eye, although Sister exclaimed that they were the smartest things of the season.

Joey's suit consisted of white cotton gabardine shorts striped with blue sail cloth and a cross-striped navy blue and white cotton knit slipover sweater. The sweater had raglan shoulders. A little cap that was no bigger than a puff of wind alternated between his head and the ground.

The belle of the party undoubtedly was Jeanne, who looks like a miniature of a bathing beauty from the Hawaiian Islands in her navy blue suit imported from Honolulu. It was made of a big splashy print involving all of the bright shades you could think of. The shorts were fitted like brief pants and tied at the center front. A "bod-ice" very brief and grown-up in its fitting became "little girlish" at the shoulders. The same suit could have been obtained of a novelty silk print, but Jeanne's mother thought she had gone far enough in trying to make a fashion plate out of a pre-school daughter.

As the mothers sat on the screened porch and surveyed the busy little builders, each one secretly thought that her child looked the best, although Mary Ann's mother could not help but admire the dainty flowered pinafore in which Jeanne arrived, and Jeanne's mother occasionally wondered whether blue denim shorts or overalls might not be more practical than Hawaiian togs. Joey's mother seemed to be playing a better game of bridge than the other mothers. Her mind was on her cards, because she had learned from bitter experience that boys will be boys and they may come home in rags even though you send them out in swank and splendor.

SEAFOOD DINNER MENU

WHITE GRAPE COCKTAIL SAUTED SHRIMPS WITH CREAMED RICE BORDER FRENCH SALAD CORN BREAD LADYFINGERS WINE JELLY HICKORY NUT MACAROONS

Remove white seedless grapes from stems. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and finely chopped fresh mint. Set in refrigerator for several hours. Serve in chilled cocktail glasses.

Sauted Shrimps. Cook two and a half pounds of shrimps in acidulated water with one sliced onion, celery leaves and paprika for 10 minutes after starting to boil. Peel and remove center line. Melt one-half cup of butter in the double boiler and in this heat the shrimps, stirring until all are well coated with the butter. Just before serving toss shrimps with two tablespoons of finely minced shives. Place in center of platter and surround with creamed rice.

Creamed Rice. Boil one cup of well washed rice in two quarts of fast boiling salted water for 20 minutes. Drain in colander and let hot water from the faucet run through it for several minutes. Shake as dry as possible and place in warming oven, shaking every now and then until puffed.

Make two cups of rich cream sauce, seasoned with a little curry powder and into this fold the cooked rice. Border the shrimps with this and on top at intervals, place spoonfuls of India chutney. Garnish with parsley.

French Salad. Prepare curly endive and mix with crusts of French bread lightly rubbed with garlic and broken in pieces and tossed together until all the leaves are coated with an oily French dressing, adding some minced parsley and tarragon leaves.

Cornbread Ladyfingers. Two eggs. One-half cup sugar. Two-thirds cup white flour. One and one-third cups of cornmeal. Two-thirds cup buttermilk in which one-half teaspoon of soda has been dissolved. Pinch of salt. Two teaspoons of baking powder. Break the eggs into a bowl and beat until very light with the sugar. Add the sifted cornmeal, flour, salt and baking powder, then the buttermilk and soda. Beat until very light. Pour in heated, greased lady finger pans and bake from 20 to 25 minutes in a moderately hot oven.

Wine Jelly. Two cups of sherry. One-half cup orange juice. One-third cup lemon juice. One cup sugar. Two tablespoons gelatin. One cup boiling water. Soak the gelatin in one-fourth cup of cold water and dissolve in one cup of boiling water, add the sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Mix wine, orange and lemon juice and mix thoroughly. Combine and stir until cool. Pour in a cold rinsed ring mold and place in refrigerator to set. Unmold and fill center with one cup of cream beaten stiff and flavored with one teaspoon of vanilla and two table-spoons of sugar.

Hickory Nut Macaroons. Beat the whites of two eggs stiff with a pinch of salt. Add very gradually as for meringues, two-thirds cup of sugar, and after beating quite a long time, add one teaspoon of vanilla and fold in one cup of chopped hickory nut meats. Drop from end of spoon on buttered paper and bake in a slow oven until straw colored.

Lunch Carrier If the man of the house carries his lunch and includes a thermos bottle of hot coffee, enlighten him that a fruit jar rubber slipped over the thermos bottle cap permits the handling of hot coffee without burned fingers. The tabs of the rubber form little places where the fingers can grasp the cap without touching the heated metal in any way.

"Children Grow When They Do Creative Work"

They Need More Than Adult's Conception, for Appreciation of Life.

By Angelo Patri

EVERY now and then we have a movie in school. These are always good movies, that is, they are selected by people trained in the field of entertainment and recreation for children and youth. They are in good taste, artistically performed by the best actors of the day. There is nothing better on the screen. The children take them as a matter of course, rather bored than otherwise, unless there is a high point of melodramatic interest or of sharpened tragedy. Then they usually laugh or cheer at the wrong time much to our distress.

One day the dramatic class decided to write and produce their own movie, and they did. The story was drab enough, not much color in it, little dramatic quality. There was a laxy, indifferent boy who neglected his lessons and there was a fine boy who did his well. The laxy boy did good work in sports and the good boy did very poorly. They formed a combination, the boy who was good in lessons helping the one that was not so good, and the latter taught the good pupil sports. They ended happily, both graduating with honors. Not much to thrill movie-wise children there.

I watched the picture as it was shown to the audience of older junior high school pupils. I watched the audience particularly. They glued their eyes to the screen. Their heads went forward, their bodies tensed, not a sound, not a wiggle throughout the great hall until the picture ended. Then a great outburst of applause. Such enthusiasm hadn't been shown a Pickford, a Garbo, a Gable or even a Chaplin in all the years of their showing. This picture was their very own. Written and produced by their own. And in their own field. It was, therefore, perfect.

WE DON'T do enough of that. We keep thinking that children must have perfection. We keep offering them adult conceptions, adult products without ever saying, "Now see what you can do." The perfect model is essential. It creates a desire to go and do likewise, or at least for like doing it. But the next step is even more essential in the education and training of children. "See what you can do about this."

Children grow when they do creative work. Don't hope for the perfect, artful work. What you get will be crude to the point of rawness, but take it gladly and encourage the creators. Don't be harsh in your criticism of the children's product. Deal with it gently lest you crush a tender and hopeful growth. Remember that in the eyes of its creator the work is about perfect, and behave accordingly. Yes, he will need criticism, but hold it for a while. Let the first fine flash be creative success pass before you begin to say, "Yes, but..." When the mind cools off it is ready to receive help. Wait until then and offer it as needed. Then it will be recognized for what it is—help, not fault-finding.

Any real teaching must allow for creative work, and that goes for all departments of learning from reading to cooking and from chores to art.

Eat My Words

Author of "Live Alone and Like It."

WELL, it turns out that you can't be too definite about laying down law. For years I have been believing that a one-color wardrobe was a pretty important part of chic, and that you had to mix the colors in any one costume very carefully—and saying so, too! And now I see in the papers that the Duke of Windsor went to church "conservatively" dressed in a green suit, a shirt with a bluish tinge, a purple necktie with red stripes, a black derby, and a brown overcoat. And everybody knows that this important gentleman has set a dozen styles, while I have never done anything more than follow fashion panting-ly and a couple of paces behind. (I am not, however, going to get a green suit, a blouse with a bluish tinge, a black hat and a brown coat.)

I have also done a lot of talking about the error of having too many pictures, and the chic and restfulness of plain wall spaces. But the other day I went into a bedroom that had one whole wall completely covered with personal photographs of all types and sizes, and seldom have I been more intrigued. Some were celebrities (friends, of course, of the woman whose room it was), and a few were old photographs of ladies in charming costumes of bygone years, and engaging groups that it was fun to look at. They were all framed exactly alike in narrow scarlet frames, and the other walls of the room were completely bare, so the effect wasn't the least bit "busy" and I don't have to swallow my words completely. But I'm afraid I was a little wholesale in condemning too many pictures.

THEN, after all I've said about bed being the only civilized place to breakfast, I week-ended in the country and came down to breakfast on Sunday morning (nobody had mentioned a tray, so there was nothing else to do) to a sunny room with a picture of various kinds of fruit-juice on the table, a sideboard with a row of hot plates holding appetizing and unfamiliar breakfast dishes, a pile of Sunday papers, and a group of lazily sociable fellow-guests. I've seldom spent a pleasanter hour.

And, finally, I've discovered recently that while living alone is fun, I detest traveling alone to cities where I don't know people, and I'm only going to stay a day or two and the hotel is nothing to boast about. Traveling discomforts are amusing only when you have some one to laugh at them with!

Two Problems About Wedding Anniversaries

Propriety of Details for Celebrating 30 Years and One Year of Marriage.

By Emily Post

Dear Mrs. Post: MY husband and I will have been married 30 years soon and we would like to give a party in honor of the occasion. Since we could not give a party on our silver anniversary, would you suggest turning this year into a silver celebration? We would like just a simple party at which time we will be at home to our many friends, and if possible the children would like to send the invitations.

Answer: I think it would be a little late to call your thirtieth wedding anniversary a silver one. It would seem to me that making it a sapphire anniversary would be much better. It is true that every one in the world knows about the silver wedding and the golden wedding, and comparatively few outside of the jewellers and silversmiths know that the thirtieth-year anniversary is dedicated to sapphire. If you celebrate your actual anniversary, this would of course not mean that people really give you sapphires, but that emphasis be put on the color of sapphire blue in whatever way you can. It would be quite all right to let the children write the invitations on deep blue paper, and worded somewhat like this:

We, Anne, Susan and James Brown, hope you will help us celebrate Mother's and Father's Sapphire Wedding Anniversary Saturday, June 30 at 9 o'clock.

Dear Mrs. Post: It will be our first wedding anniversary soon and we would like to make an occasion of the day principally because we had nothing for our friends at the time we were married. How should we word the invitations and what type of party would you suggest?

Answer: Why not a paper chase and all meet at your house afterwards for a Welsh rarebit supper? The Welsh rarebit could equally well be rolls and frankfurters or sandwiches. Invitations either telephoned or written on note paper, since the message must necessarily include the fact that in celebration of your paper wedding you are having a paper chase starting at such and such a place at 8 o'clock. Why bother with BACTERIA COUNT?

Native-Wide Milk is bottled at Edwardsville Creamery.

Only BY YOUR GROCER

Here at Edwardsville we do bother with the bacteria count. In raw milk, as received from the farms, the bacteria count doubles itself about every twenty minutes at moderate temperature. Because of this, it is necessary that milk be delivered from the farms, tested, pasteurized and bottled as rapidly as possible after production. Our source of raw milk is at near-by farms, which insure quick deliveries to our dairy, where this milk is tested, perfectly pasteurized and bottled. The location of Edwardsville Creamery close to the sources of supply, gives very little growing time for bacteria in the raw milk we receive. That is why Edwardsville Milk is so extraordinarily pure and wholesome.

OUR FACT-FINDING DEPT. ASSEMBLES YOUR DATA. THIS is a Stop, Look and Listen age for the cautious business man. He wants facts, data, figures before launching on an expansion program, introducing a new product. To meet this need we have organized modern Fact-Finding Facilities, available to the public free except for a service charge.

HOW DO WE WORK? We have a Man-In-The-Street ready to answer calls on short notice at any time of the day and night. He is located in our new Man-In-The-Street building. If we are called upon to make a survey, we merely press a button. This brings our Field Agent into the problem the moment he returns from lunch. Equipped with microphone, he asks our Man-In-The-Street to submit to questioning. The answers are spoken into the portable microphone and carried by remote control to our Recording, Sorting and Packaging department. The conclusions, in all-weather capsules, are then placed in bins ready for instant shipment.

EXAMPLES: A large manufacturer of glass and imitation pearl beads wanted a survey before doubling production. He asked us to find out—

(A) Do strip-tease exhibitions appeal to the man in the street?

(B) Do reformers favor more beads for strip-tease artists?

In exactly seven minutes the desired information was on the busy man's desk, and excavations for the new plant were under way before the sun, like a flaming ball, had dropped beneath the Western horizon.

Our report was concise, clear and to the point. It was, in fact, conclusive and convincing. It consisted of two words—words the busy executive could understand. Our report, as obtained direct from our Man-In-The-Street, was—

YOU BETCH!

(News Item.) LONDON.—Instructions to English gentlemen overseas and in the country, who are planning their wardrobes for Coronation week, have counseled them not to wear spats "as they are no longer smart in London."

Thus another tradition falls! Henceforth spats belong to the ages—and to vaudeville acrobats, traveling salesmen and Newark gangsters.

It wouldn't be surprising now if the English repudiated Stilton cheese and sherry.

Circus acts wanted for booking.

CHAPTER TEN.

"Unfortunately," Westward said grimly, "I cannot discuss my patients even with you, Helen, any more than I can stop them from making appalling fools of themselves. There is a phase of the emotions which we medicine men meet with pretty often; in fact, most people go through it. In the case of a man, he gets into what I call the harem mood, when he says openly that all women were born to minister to his pleasure.

"Bellane—now forgive me; I like the dear fellow—Bellane has always really been in that mood; he's never seriously thought otherwise. But about this phase in general; sometimes it is a fact, sometimes it is a fancy, and it has been referred to by novelists as a second blooming, or an Indian summer."

"And when it is all over," said Helen, "the man or the woman is left with the result of a great mistake."

"Oh, well," said Westward, "we can't help that."

She cried swiftly: "I want to help if that is the case with Jim."

"You'd better leave it alone," said Westward, and he reiterated in his heart all the things he had thought for years, but never said yet, because he was not free to say them and until recently she had not been free to hear them.

But now she was free, and Bellane was still free—not yet linked irrevocably to his Doris. That had frightened Westward.

The human temptation came to him to keep Bellane still out of her reach if he could; to use any degree of influence that he might have to keep Helen to himself.

True, he himself was still tied, and might be so tied for life; but there was stubborn optimism in him which said: "You never know." "I must leave it alone," said Helen, under her breath, moving away from him.

WESTWARD stood with his back to the room and her, his elbow on the mantelpiece, his head on his hand, looking into her wood fire. "She wants me to talk," he thought to himself. "She wants me to set her right over a lot of things, or to agree with her own summing up, so that she may know what to do next."

He spoke aloud: "Well, Bellane's girl is in love with him. He knows how to make her fall in love. She is flattered by his attentions; and excited; and then the Randells—I know them—are not really well off. All Jim's accessories thrill Doris Randell. She hasn't separated them from the man. Jim is his Rolls Royce; he is his bank balance. He is fun and fun; jewels and prosperity."

Helen murmured: "When I first met him, he hadn't all those things." Still keeping his back to her, Westward answered: "You loved him for himself, didn't you, Westward Declines to Tell Helen What He Learned About Bellane—However, On the Wedding Day He Gives Bellane His Views.

Helen? You have never told me as much before."

Her answer was a soft chord or two of music, and turning, he saw that she had seated herself at the piano, and with head bent a little, was fingering the keys.

"You're a fatal woman, Helen," he said, rather huskily. "Men always just miss getting you. Your husband—because he did not understand; Bellane—because he does not know. And I... because I can't."

"What is the answer to all that, Mat?"

"There is no answer yet," said Westward, and then he astonished her—for he was dry, reticent, even saturnine, in his mood of everyday—by coming across the room to her, and standing behind her as she fingered the keys, he leaned down and kissed the nape of her neck, before he walked furiously out of the room.

"I will be a joy," Bellane said, "to form her mind."

It was his wedding morning.

For the last time—as he had mentioned to Westward—who was with him preparatory to performing the duties of best man—Jim Bellane was in his flat off St. James; and very much the radiant bridegroom he looked as he stood on his bachelor hearth for the minutes to pass before it should be time for the car.

"Well," Westward thought, "Jim's a damned fine fellow, and I have never seen him in better fettle." Aloud he said: "You must be the joy of your tailor, Jim."

Bellane was laughing, looking straight ahead of him with shining eyes; and Westward knew that he was looking into the future, as he dreamed it would be.

"Just over 15 years ago," Westward thought, "I was looking into the future much like that," but this was not a thought that he often allowed himself, and he dismissed it instantly.

The tragic years of his bitterly mislaid marriage, the inhuman loneliness of his life, his long friendship with but too few glimpses of her, with Helen Forrest, made a queerly patterned fabric which gave no nourishment. He looked very well himself this morning in his wedding garments. He knew that Helen was to be at church and reception, and he knew also what she would be feeling.

So much frustration; so many bewildered hearts, so much pairing off of strangely assorted people... these things passed fragmentarily through his head, as they always did when, in his professional life or in his private life, he had to behold all the performance of a marriage day.

SYNOPSIS.

Doris Randell, lovely young girl, has become engaged to James Bellane, a middle-aged man of means. They were dining in a very superior restaurant when he asked her to marry him and gave her an emerald engagement ring. Doris, wearing a borrowed table cape, thought that now the cape would be taken care of. Then she saw, sitting at another table, Terry Waters, a handsome young man with whom she had been in love, and Helen Forrest, who had once been in love with Bellane. Doris was jealous because Terry seemed to be enjoying the company of this good-looking, older woman. But Terry was telling Helen how he had met Doris and fallen in love with her. Bellane went to Helen's apartment for cocktails, and there he saw Mat Westward, a man who had been in love with Helen for years. After Bellane left, Westward told her of an appointment Bellane had made with him.

He contemplated Bellane. "You don't think," he suggested, "that the modern young woman forms her own mind, and forms it pretty early?"

"My dear chap, of course I don't. Women are always women all the world over. They never change fundamentally."

"I am not so sure."

"There speaks the Scotchman," Bellane said good humoredly. "I am sure, Mat. I am sure as I can be that my girl and I will understand each other perfectly, because I shall interpret. It is my job to be the teacher, and I shall be. I know so much; she knows so little."

Westward was silent.

Bellane said: "There is no such thing as the modern man and the modern woman. There are only modern habits. A man still leads in marriage as he always did, and woman, my dear Mat, is still as acquiescent as she always was."

"Woman is a great deal more expectant than she was," said Westward; "she has her eyes open, and she is not so keen now on just being a pawn in the game."

Laughter came easily to Bellane this morning. "That is blige, my dear fellow."

"Shall you always remain a bit of the sultan, Jim?" Westward asked grimly.

"All men are sultaneque by conviction; Oriental or Occidental." He added: "I like a woman to behave as a woman ought to. Her job is to please man, and you know it, Mat. Such brains as she develops are best used to get herself the natural and normal prizes of life."

"Meaning us?" said Westward.

Bellane laughed. "Well, Mat, I suppose I do mean that, if we are worth getting."

"I haven't a doubt that you're worth getting, Jim," said Westward dryly. "Nor have you a doubt," he added to himself.

"You're making reservations all the time, Mat."

"No, not many. But women do change, Jim. As a doctor who has known a good many of 'em intimately as patients, I have to see and be convinced of that. And there is such an animal as the modern woman—whether she is Miss Randell's age or double it—and this animal that is modern woman takes a lot of keeping up with."

"My dear old fellow!" Jim muttered tolerantly.

Self-Reliance

Just because it is easier and quicker for mother and daddy to do sonny's job for him is not sufficient reason to take away small duties from him. After all, that is the only way a child learns to do for himself and it makes him dull and lazy not to have small responsibilities that can only be done by him. Let him alone and see how he makes out.

When Life of Man Is But Dull Routine

By The Rev. J. F. Newton

"TWO great sorrows have befallen me recently," writes a reader, "and they have hurt me deeply. My beloved mother passed away, and soon after a lifelong friend died in a distant city."

"My loneliness is terrible; at times it seems so useless to go on. I read your daily articles and they lift me up while I am reading, but when I lay the paper down I sink into melancholy."

"Will you not write an article just for me, which may help many others, too, who have been wounded in the same way? Help me to feel that life is worth while, and not just a dull routine."

"Once you wrote some words, whether your own or not I do not know, but they have done me no end of good: 'To live in the hearts of those we leave behind is not to die'; those words helped."

Ah, yes, good reader, they are old and noble words indeed, but they are not enough. The very fact that our loved ones do live in our hearts adds to the ache, because their presence is withdrawn.

Alas, how feeble we feel, how futile and empty our words sound! How idle to say, "Tomorrow, next month, or maybe next year, the hurt will be gone." But that does not make our suffering less today.

"Courage!" our friends say. "When the pain is gone you will forget; only God remembers everything." Yes, but we are human, and if time heals, real suffering leaves a scar which we carry to the end.

Here is an old and deep saying that has helped me greatly: "Those who love God never meet for the last time." Only when we lift our sorrow to that level do we find healing for our bitter hurt.

ON BROADWAY

By Walter Winchell

Max Eastman got off a nice capsule on humor on the Vallee hour (is it only an hour?), to wit: "Humor is just as complex as dynamite, and fails to explode for just as many reasons." One of which, presumably, is sogginess. . . . Nifty by the N. Y. Times' Mr. Crisler on the new "Robert Taylor Loves Harlow" peasant-pleaser: "It's more an affair of the marquee than of the heart." . . . Buford Lorimer, son of the famous George Horace Lorimer, Salavoski's long time editor, began fictioning the hard way—by cracking Collier's! . . . L. E. Charles does a piece every day called: "Two Words a Day" for an Indianapolis gazette, the name of which wasn't marked on the clipping that follows, to wit: "My Man Friday" is derived from DePoe's tale of "Robinson Crusoe"—politically it is a derogatory appellation. The modern "Girl Friday" denotes a private secretary." . . . MGM please note.

"All the poems glorifying war," sensibly states Dr. F. Raymond Clee, "were written by those who had never seen war." . . . Veterans have other pictures of it, like that Congressman Maverick of Texas, who tells of a man driven mad by the ghosts of five Germans he had bayoneted. . . . And wasn't it a soldier who saw war, who wrote: "I Have a Rendezvous With Death"? . . . Named Allan Seeger?

When, demands Phyllis Bentley, British novelist, are the Dixie authors in this country going to forget their grandfathers and come out to play? . . . Just as soon, maybe, as the grapples stop harvesting royalties like "Gone With the Wind." . . . In the old days, relates Daniel Frohman, 66-year-old stage producer (and very nice gentleman, too) plays were about "a man, a woman and an obstacle—the obstacle being the play." . . . The obstacle still is present, only now it's the financing.

Some of the H-Trib's letter-writers have joined the move to outlaw the term "hors-d'oeuvre." . . . Some want it Americanized into "orderves," "savories," "conders," "appetizers," "tasty-bits" and "yum-yums." . . . One akchelly proposed eatable bitles." . . . If this last one is adopted, eating them will present two dangers: There'll be a chance to choke on both the savories and the pronunciation.

New York Novelties: This is the story of a nice guy. . . . He was an actor, but that doesn't matter. . . . All his life he gave people pieces of his big heart. . . . He felt that someday he might need a favor, and anyway, it patted his heart to be nice. . . . Last year he was financially kayoed. . . . He came to his friends for help and they up-held the Broadway version of that familiar adage: "A friend in need is a friend we don't need."

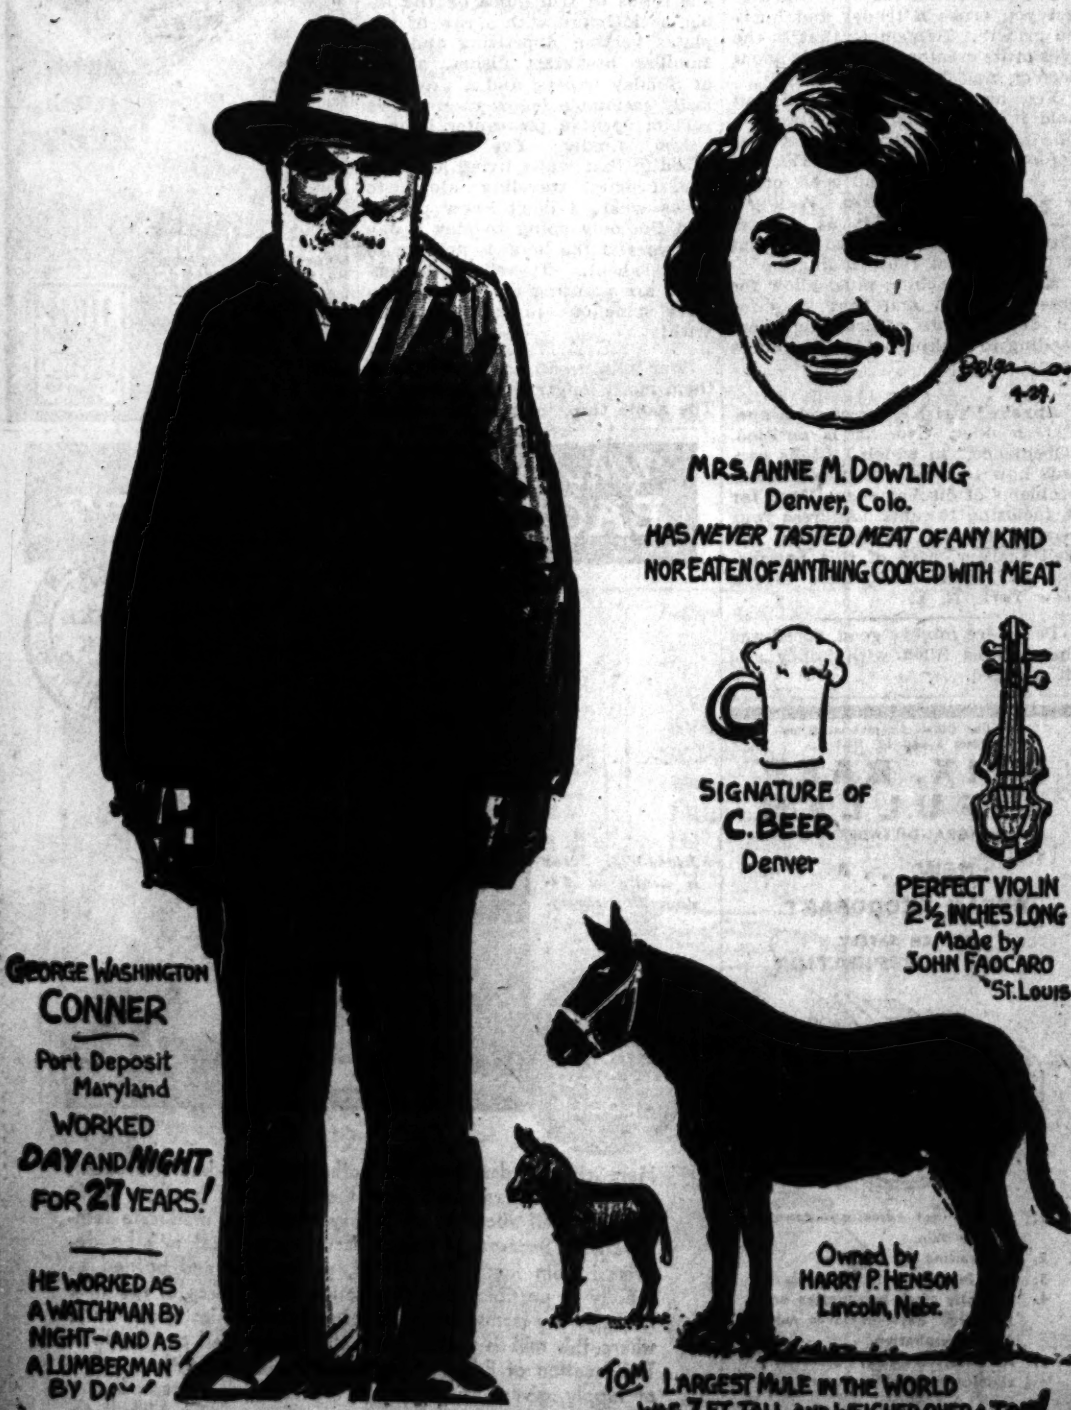

That's why we once named it "The Mean Stem." . . . A little while after, he died of a dented heart. . . . When the lice he smiled upon, with cash, learned that he had passed on they were shocked. . . . They immediately took up a collection for him, etc. . . . In sum: He was a nice guy when he lived, and in return, they were nice to him, when he died.

Youth Protests "No Experience No Job" Stand

"How Can We Get It Without a Chance?" Employers Are Asked.

By Elsie Robinson

(Copyright, 1937.)

YOUNG... penniless—rarin' to go. Sick of "lying around home" —with the family, perhaps equally eager to see you on your way.

So, with millions of other yearlings, you're looking for a job. For weeks you've studied all the Success Tips. Now—according to the rules—you're ready. Trim grooming... charming manners... vigorously alert, yet sufficiently deferential to the Big Boss who, sitting you on the other side of the desk, his masterful fowl slowing chewing a cigar as he inspects your various papers.

High school record? An approving grunt.

Letters from influential friends?
More grunts.

He raises his head—gives you a long, calculating once-over, which leaves you inwardly gasping, yet feeling elated, for obviously the impression is favorable. Surely your worries are at an end! Almost you can see yourself seated behind a similar desk... mounting rapidly, by glorious leaps and bounds, in your ambitious flight.

Then suddenly, cruelly, your dream is shattered. With the violence of a bursting bomb, the fatal question comes—
"WHAT PREVIOUS EXPERI-ENCE HAVE YOU HAD?"

Previous experience? Was ever a question more heartless or unreasonable? How can you possibly have had "previous experience" at 18—seeking your first position? Or perhaps you're older. Even so, what chance have you had, during the depression, to accumulate "experience," but surely he won't hold that against you?

Yet surely he does—nine times out of ten. And, from the Big Boss's angle, there's nothing else to be done. How can he put green youngsters in positions of heavy responsibility?

But to the youngster, such an attitude is monstrously unfair, and daily our mail is filled with scores of bitter protests on this one subject. So today we're giving different angles on a situation that's plenty pesty to both Old and Young Americans. Due to limited space they're greatly condensed—but, even so, should start the fountain pens to roaring!

First—THERESA ANGELLINI, in the shortest, crispest letter of them all, puts it straight up to the Powers That Be—"Must we lie to get a job?"

"Dear Miss Robinson—
"When will Young America be given a chance to prove that we can face and master the same obstacles that stood in our father's path?"

"We spend 12 to 16 years of our life in schools, and when we attempt to face the business world, what kind of a reception do we get?
A contemptible cry of 'you're too young'—or 'you haven't had the experience!'"

"How and where in this world, Miss Robinson, are we going to get this experience if people don't give us a break. I admit they may be taking a chance with us, but then isn't life a gamble? And didn't someone once take a chance with them?"

"Must we lie about our ages, about the experience we never had?
Some may say yes—but then we start with a policy of 'lie your way through life.' That's not what we want. We want to be able to look back at the next Young America and give them the helping hand that we today need and want so much."

Then there's Manuel Mauricia Trecet, who, in addition to his protest against the heartless attitude of Big Business toward the inexperienced beginner, asks another question that's guaranteed to start a minor war of its own. Manuel is 26, graduate of New York University. For years he has struggled, dreamed, sacrificed, to fit himself for the professions. Now, after endless asking, he finds only manual labor jobs open to him. So what? He's speaking for his fellow college graduates as well.

"Isn't it absurd to expect a young man who has spent his life, so far, preparing for mental work, to abandon all his finer ambitions and accept work which the most ignorant and incompetent can perform
... work for which he needs no educational preparation?"

"Please don't misunderstand me.
It isn't that I 'feel myself above'
this class of work. I'd gladly do it, if there were any future to it—no would any worthwhile fellow. But there isn't. One wastes all he or she has learned at college and becomes a meaningless cog in a machine... so unimportant that your employer is hardly aware of your existence.

Is that sensible? Billions of taxpayers' dollars... as well as that tremendous amount of individual effort and enthusiasm... all wasted! There's something wrong with a society which cannot find work for the young people it has educated at such enormous expense.

Yes, Manuel, there is something wrong with a world which leaves its young people on such a spot-and it's up to your generation to find the answer. And, while we're at it, I'd like to have about 1000 Big Business Shots tell me their answer.

Amazing, New Shampoo Discovery Sweeps Aside Old-fashioned Methods

NOT SOAP—NOT OIL Thrills Nation With Beautifying Results

It's no wonder women everywhere are raving about this amazing, new liquid shampoo—no wonder one trial converts them for life! For it gives your hair a thrilling new gleam. Yes, actually transforms dull, average-looking hair into a brilliant, glistening halo—with a single application. Look at the girl above. See what a difference it makes when you use it. So try it soon—see how beautiful your hair really can be. Just how this unusual shampoo works these miracles is a new scientific secret. It isn't oil, it isn't soap—it isn't anything you've heard of before. Scientists have brought us something brand-new; a shampoo so different that they've patented the process by which it is made. You simply wet your hair, shake on a few drops and instantly you get a glorious, billowy lather, 5 times more lather than soap in hardest water. Lather so neutral—being neither acid nor alkaline—that it is ideal for either oily or dry hair. You rub it briskly into the hair, rinse thoroughly—and you're through. "What?" you say, "no special rinses; no vinegar, lemon or after-rinses to 'cut' the lather?" No—they are not necessary—just a thorough dousing in clear water! That's the marvelous part. Drene cannot leave unnatural film on hair to cover up dull, lifeless hair as ordinary shampoos do. Your hair is left radiant, silky, smooth. Even dull, bleached or dyed hair becomes more brilliant, more natural looking after a Drene shampoo. More amazing, embarrassing flakes of dandruff disappear with a single washing, leaving the scalp scrupulously clean. Tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau. Women who have used it for months rave about the beauty and health their hair possesses—and have found its thorough cleansing is the quickest, best way to a healthy head of hair. Your scalp can really nourish the hair properly, when cleansed the Drene way, which simply calls for one or two shampoos a week with Drene, and a few minutes of scalp massage and brushing of the hair. Then it glows with new life and lustre. Procter & Gamble make this marvel, and you can buy it in various sizes at all drug, department and ten-cent stores. Only half a tablespoonful for a perfect shampoo. The most economical and beautifying shampoo you have ever used. Try Drene at once. Buy the large size. It costs less per shampoo. FLOWERS OF NIPPON By Bruno Lessing

MIYANOSHITA, Japan, April 28. OKO and Soko-ni. "That's my Japanese for 'Here and There.'" I got it out of How to Learn Japanese in Two Weeks. (I couldn't learn the language in two centuries.) "The Flowery Kingdom" is no misnomer for this land. In no other country have I ever seen flowers so much in evidence as here in Nippon. Being a bigger country, we, in United States probably have more flowers than you find here. And India, Ceylon, Malaya—to say nothing of Central and South America—having a greater range of tropical climate, probably have a greater and, possibly, a more beautiful variety. But in Nippon flowers are an essential part of life. China, also, is called "the Flowery Kingdom,"—so is Korea—but the Chinese are far behind the Japanese in the developments of the flower cult, and Korea now belongs to Japan. Here you find flowers in every room of every household, both in town and country. Sometimes in luxurious profusion, but usually in simple display, and always artistic. The arrangement of flowers in a pot or a bowl is part of the curriculum of every school for girls. Where we hang pictures and mottoes on the wall, lay Oriental rugs on the floor or stuff a room with machine-made furniture, the Japanese prefer a flower on the mantel or the table.

No matter in what season you journey through Nippon you cannot get away from flowers. The chrysanthemum is a national emblem. When the cherry trees blossom millions flock to see them. Even the Emperor gives a party to view the cherry blossoms in the grounds. The older, Plum blossoms fall into second place. But the blossoms of all trees and bushes play a part in the pleasures of this country. Holidays are devoted to flowers. They are the subject of many ancient prints and form the most popular design in all textiles. On every table in the dining room and in the bedrooms of all hotels there are invariably flowers, not just carelessly tucked into a vase, but painstakingly arranged. Such a widespread and persistent love of flowers must surely reflect an inherent trait in Japanese nature.

On the other hand, I've told the story of the 47 Ronin. Well, as you ride from here to Lake Hakone, you pass three lichen-covered stone monuments standing on a hill-top, two close together and the third slightly apart. The first two mark the graves of the Soga brothers, the other that of Koro Genzo, who was the sweetheart of the elder brother. The story goes back to the year 1175. The father of the two boys was murdered by Kudo Sukekune, a kinsman, who was in the service of the Shogun, or feudal lord of the district. The older lad was the murderer of the boy's father was invited. Juro's sweetheart obtained a place as serving maid in the camp. And, one night, she guided the brothers to the murderer's tent. Kudo was asleep. According to the code of Samurai, it is cowardly to kill a sleeping man. So they awakened him and there was a fierce fight. Kudo was slain, but Juro lost his life in the combat and his younger brother was captured. He was sentenced by the Shogun to have his head chopped off with a blunt sword. Here, on this hill-top, the two lads lie buried with the devoted, Tora close beside. Every Japanese knows the story and reveres those lads for an outstanding feat of filial piety. This also reveals a trait in Japanese nature. To balance the gentleness which a love of flowers indicates, with the vindictiveness which the story of the Soga brothers exemplifies, is a problem beyond my wits to solve.

MANY foreign visitors, especially elderly spinsters, are fascinated by what is called the "tea ceremony" in Nippon. Serving tea in a private house is a painstaking ritual. If everything isn't done just right, the party is supposed to be a flop. The host or hostess must make the proper number of bows to the guests, take up the various utensils in the proper hand, with the elbow crooked at the proper angle and serve the cups in proper order. The guests must flop down on their knees and, at the proper time, admire the utensils. As, in many wealthy families, these utensils are hundreds of years old and highly artistic, they are worthy of admiration, but no guest must make any remarks about them until the proper time comes. The Japanese claim that this ceremony is conducive to calmness of spirit, intellectual poise and refinement of manners. Being a low-brow, I think it is conducive to boredom. When I want a cup of tea, I want a cup of tea and no hokum. By the way, the Mayor of Tokio requests that foreigners refer to this land as Nippon. The word "Japan," he says, means, nothing here. It's O. K. with me. A country ought to know its own name. Try baking a sponge cake in a covered omelet pan on top of the stove. Be careful not to fill the pan more than half-full, since allowance must be made for the cake's rising.

Mock Angel Cake One cup sugar, one cup flour, three teaspoons baking powder, a pinch of salt, one cup scalded milk, one teaspoon orange extract, two egg whites beaten stiffly. Sift sugar, flour and salt twice. Add scalded milk to this, stirring constantly. Add extract. Fold in stiffly beaten whites. Pour carefully into a greased tin and bake in a moderate oven.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A Democratic majority in the Senate today in open revolt today against President Roosevelt's new economy through White House control over appropriations, and that revolt was the figure of Vice-President Garner. It is the second time within a month that Garner has defied the President. This time he has not only Senator Robinson, floor leader, but almost the entire Democratic bloc in the Senate.

Garner's other stand in opposition to the President's desires for a sit-down strike when the industrial conflict was at its height. At that time he encouraged Senator Byrnes of South Carolina to introduce a resolution opposing sit-downs which would seriously embarrass administration at a critical moment, on that occasion in the rescue of the White House and the day was saved by a compromise resolution, conceding labor espionage by employees as the sit-down technique. Garner Waxed Believers. This time it is again, hitherto regarded as one of the most loyal administration figures in the Senate, who is acting in opposition. Garner with other administration leaders conferred with President on the budget two days ago and throughout that conference the note of economy on a relief appropriation of $1,000,000,000. The President held out for a somewhat larger figure but at the same time the possibilities for executive departments of government.

Shortly thereafter Byrnes introduced his resolution calling for a 10 per cent cut in the appropriations of all departments coming fiscal year. Under resolution heads of department of course, meet contractors who cannot be reduced would make up the full 10 per cent of departmental expenditures that are flexible. It is a resolution that Democrats have rallied.

"Scientific Economy"
It was not long after the President put Treasury at work drafting what was termed as a "scientific" economy. Under this economy all departments would reduce appropriations by 10 per cent but the President has power to restore from 1 to 15 per cent of the new fit. Plainly this was the White House very great measure.

Before the measure was introduced, acting chairman of the Appropriations Committee, Stephen M. Reed, of New York, telephoned Garner. He said that he had gone him on the matter of economy cut 15 per cent instead of 10 per cent.

But when the Vice-President learned of the method proposed, the resolution, subsequently public by Cannon, his amendment against the Byrnes plan for his mind with this freedom on the "scientific" economy. He recorded the Senate by a 50-40 vote.

Court Plan Opponents
Immediately Democrats who have bitterly opposed President's court plan rallied to this new cause. It gave a new impetus to the Byrnes plan. It was the Byrnes plan of New York and opportunity to accuse the President of seeking power for political purposes. And, too, it served
